Cube world beta how to level up

There is no experience like in traditional RPG, but you can level up by finding artifacts. Finding these artifacts is the main goal in Cube World. They increase your exploratory skills such as hanging flying, climbing, swimming, etc.. We are taking an early look at some Cube World Beginner tips on how to get started on your quest! The game is a little different than most people remember, and does not play in the standard RPG-ish adventure game style that you might be used to. Hopefully we will provide you with some initial instructions to help you wrap your mind around how best to play the game! Leveling up you won't gain experience from killing monsters. Yes, that's weird. Coping is not really that important at the moment when it comes to your character's progress. Equipment and items are more important and will help increase your damage and durability. However, you can level up, it's only in the form of artifacts that you will find in the game. However, the settlement does not appear to serve a purpose at this time. &Items; Gear are region Locked This is another peculiarity in Cube World. Most of the items you find in the area are locked in that area. This means that if you specify a different map area, this device will not be usable in that area. If you return to the area where you previously got the device, you will be able to use that device again. Some devices can be used in multiple areas, you will know that this is the case if you see + next to the name. This device is locked to a larger range and is supposedly usable from anywhere in this particular kingdom. The difficulty of the enemy is color-coded The difficulty of the enemy is based on the system of color codes. Their name will be one of the following colors: white, green, blue, purple, yellow. The simplest difficulty is white, and the most difficult difficulty is yellow. You will pretty much just want to focus on killing white named creatures until you find some other device. Looking for your friends? Find the city of the flight master! If you want to meet your friends in the game, you will need to get to the city and find Flight Master. This allows you to fly to an area in which they are free. You can also fly to other areas for the price! Flight Master is represented by a wing icon on the map if you are in the city. How to change the specialization of my class? If you want to change your class specialization, you will need to go to the city and talk to the guild receptionist. They are marked with a crown on the map. Just talk to them and you will have the opportunity to exchange your specialization. Get away from my character? While it doesn't immediately seem like you could do it, you can actually press and hold ctrl and use the mouse wheel to zoom in and out of your characters! Restart until you are near the city (Updated) Being near the city is super important so I would just create a character and have a look on the map. Look at the city that is nearby, it should look something like this: You may not have to do it now because a patch has been added that should spawn you near the city. Move & Fight you can avoid! It is bound to the middle mouse by default and can be changed in options. You can climb! If you go to the wall, you can hold the E to climb up. You have a limited amount of time before you get tired. You have three different skills: left click (primary), right click (secondary, it usually takes mana), R (ultimate ability). Your final will have a fairly long cooldown. You regenerate mana naturally, but you don't regenerate health. Always beware for Heartflowers on the ground to pick up. These are used to craft Life Potions, which you will need quite often. There is fall damage, so be careful how far you let your figure drop. Take advantage of friendly NPC if they get into fights. You can help them or just wait for them to kill the aggressive monster and take the loot! Survey Pick up everything that is not nailed to the ground! You can use these resources to sell or craft potions and various other items. You can change where you're born when you die playing the flute in the sanctuary of life. These are quite common, so if you've traveled a long distance, be sure to find one of them so you don't have to respawn away from the current area you're in. You can quickly travel to these shrines of life once you have played the flute on them! Just go to the map and click on the blue circle icon to teleport back to this place. Talk to the NPC. They give you quests or point out where you can find artifacts! You get a tag on the map if the NPC gave you a guide for something. You can use the middle click on the mouse to add a star tag. You have a lamp that you can turn on and off by pressing F. Quests Talk to NPC to sometimes have a task marked on the map. You usually save a dwarf from witches or kill monsters in a particular area. Quest difficulty is displayed according to the color of the place that is placed on the map! These are the same colors that indicate the difficulty of the enemy, here is a list from the simplest to the most difficult: green, blue, purple, yellow and red. Always look at the shrines of life near your search site just in case you die. You don't want to travel far to go back to it again and again if it's hard. Enlarge the map and look for a silver square. This should be the sanctuary of life, although sometimes it will be a tradition. This guide is still in development and we will update more over the coming days. Let us know what tips you think will help others in the comments! Follow us on Twitter and Facebook to stay up to date on your favorite games! Cube World is an action RPG with a very geometric aesthetic. With an emphasis on exploration in the fantasy world, players can choose Class and travel the world looking for adventures. As they do so, players will fight monsters, craft weapons and armor, and collect loot. Being aesthetically similar to Minecraft, this game differs by adding features such as quests, talking NPC, and regions with different difficulties. Called the game's fight and reconnaissance, some players will want to level up their character as quickly as possible. So how do you do it? Understanding levels in Cube World The first thing players need to understand is that players already level up in Cube World by gaining experience or something like that. Instead, the levels in the cube world are now determined by how many artifacts the player has collected. What is an artifact? These are objects that the player can collect to increase their passive stats. There is always at least one artifact for all zones, but some zones may have multiple artifacts. It's easy to confuse these levels with performance levels, which is a power order that takes things like devices and weapons into account. Still, collecting these artifacts can give players a decent stat of support more that is collected. Examples of these effects include reducing the cost of swimming endurance or increasing the speed of movement when using a hang glider. How to find artifacts in Cube World So where are the artifacts found? It depends on the zone, but in general they can be found by completing dungeons, defeating bosses and searching for treasures. In order to get information about the artifact, such as its name and location, the player will want to chat with as many NDCs as possible in a given search area. They will not only potentially give players information about the regional artifact(s), but also show the player points of interest around the map. It's basically free information that will make travel easier. Players can also get information about artifacts by visiting monuments or places of tradition scattered throughout the map, but talking to the NPC is usually a faster way. Once the player gets a few pointers about where the artifact is, it's then a simple matter after following these hints. If the player is lucky, it will lead to an artifact that requires only travel and reconnaissance with minimal enemy encounters. But more often than not, fighting is inevitable. Which means he's safe, the player should attack all the white or green crowds he sees on the road. These enemies tend to have easy combat difficulty and still have the potential to drop useful equipment for players to use against tougher enemies. If a player meets the boss or enters a difficult dungeon, he can also prepare for it. To this end, players will also want to collect all the healing and elixir items they see. This includes heart flowers, mushrooms, dragonroot, etc. Just collect anything and everything that will increase the player's character survival. Players may also want to have time to discover all the sanctuaries of life in the area, which will serve as a comfortable respawn point if the player dies on their adventure. But that's basically it. Collect artifact information, try to prepare for enemy encounters along the way, follow the instructions, and hopefully collect the artifact. If obtaining this particular artifact is too difficult, then the player always has the opportunity to find another by searching for a tradition and later to return to the original artifact (assuming, of course, that the area has more than one artifact).
