The series tells the adventures of the well-known future Gonzo journalist Spider Jerusalem and is characterized above all by his protagonist's worldview, which resorts to both verbal and physical violence, reflecting Ellis's view of religion, politics, television, advertising, discrimination and intolerance, dehumanising, power, and therefore, the whole view of the world and society today. Transmetropolitan: We are in a major metropolis of an uncertain future. Spider Jerusalem is a journalist left in the city to live isolated on the mountain after gaining fame five years ago. Now he has to return to the city and return to work, taking charge of the weekly opinion column in a newspaper, where the social topikalit talks about different topics. The series revolves around Spider's research and documentation process on everything, which helps us to know the society in which the protagonist moves, while his character is slightly better and helps us get to know some details of his past. Spider Jerusalem is a very bizarre journalist: almost always in a bad mood, antisocial, malhablado, addicted to all kinds of drugs and highly irascible, he does not hesitate to use all kinds of tricks and tricks (and even a little physical aggression, when necessary) to put him under investigation. Although Spider is the absolute protagonist of the series, he has the counterpart to his helpers (at first a girl, then two) accompanying him in his work, helping him first with surprise and then entering into a certain friendship with his orthodox methods crime and even with him, although none of them recognize him [Comic Book Guide]. The series tells the adventures of spider Jerusalem, the well-known gonzo journalist of the future (paying tribute to hunter S. Thompson, the founder of the movement), and above all, is characterized by the worldview of ellis's protagonist, who resorts to both verbal and physical violence, reflecting Ellis's view of religion, politics, television. . publicity, discrimination and intolerance, dehumanism, power and therefore, the whole view of the world and society today. The argument transmetropolitan story arcs 34 stories, some of which are told on 60 topics that are more important than others for funnier overall history. Spider Jerusalem is a renowned investigative journalist who returns to the City to fulfill a business contract, corrupt and futuristic New York, after being elected to the Beast as president of the United States, held in the mountains (possibly New England). Against The Beast's government, he begins working for The Word, a newspaper in which his editor, Mitchell Royce, has long known Spider Jerusalem. On his return to the city of the first story arc (Back in the Streets), Spider then finds the members in the midst of a violent police crackdown on a city tribe, a city tribe called thee-dominated: replaced by human foreign genetic codes, those who want civil rights and financial assistance. His live broadcast from the roof of a building makes him a media figure again, and he earns better living conditions and an assistant, Channon. As a journalist, his life is hectic and he begins a very important political relevance. In La Ciudad, social interest articles covering different aspects of life, from religion to cultural minorities to mass media, are published. Channon is resigning to being her assistant because of the rawness of her views on her boyfriend, who decides to become a foglet (nanotechnological cloud with human discharge of conscience) his second major story arc, called the Year of bastard, and takes place in the second year of publication, when Spider finally begins to cover the presidential election between Senator Callahan (a) Gulen, with a new assistant: Yelena Rossini. This arc, one of the most important for the development of the story, Spider Vita Severn, campaign director of Callahan, meets that he makes very good crumbs, but at the end of the plot he is killed, this leaves the spider very sad. During the campaign, Channon reses appears on stage and Spider as private security. After Severn's murder, Spider engages in a permanent confrontation with Callahan, a much more psychopathic president than Heller. In the middle, Spider diagnoses a brain degenerative disease, an over-exposure product of i-pollen (an illegal mechanism of information transmission). This permanent click will result in the president encircling the city. Character Spider Jerusalem, the main character in the series, is an outstanding gonzo journalist. It was inspired by Hunter S. Thompson and his spiritual cousin Uncle Duke in Doonesbury. His primary appearance in comics, bearded and hairy, seems to be a direct reference to prestigious comic book writer Alan Moore. All kinds of drug addicts, he, we talked about violence and his dirty, morally very condemnation, but with a strong fixation with the truth, he is his inspiration. He hates the city of Spider and is only to fulfill his contract. Allies Vita Severn: Smiley, Political Aide and Campaign Director, is described by a female Spider as brilliant, funny, acidic, determined, ruthless and passionate. He's the only person I've ever met in politics, and the way he's also a campaign manager would make me laugh if it wasn't so wasteful. Vita appears only in The Bastard Year, but appears to be the only character with an emotional commitment to the point of Spider flirting with each other. Spider's Dirty Assistants are the closest allies, its two helpers are the most important and recurring. Two women who take office at different points in the comic book. Both are attractive and smart, and take over spider features. Yelena Rossini is Spider's second assistant and probably the most important. The story The Year of the Bastard also appears quite insensitive at first, but over time reveals a personality very similar to Spider's. She has sex with him in the same volume, something he regrets and denies. A person with a low appearance, even more than Spider, slim, with an intermediate bust and marked factions. He has black and bulging hair similar to that of the eternal Morpheus. He's a big smoker (although he starts smoking working for Spider). She is the daughter of wealthy philanthropist and political activist Oscar Rossini, who took part in the failed presidential campaign of the late James Longmarch. Finally, after leaving town with Spider, she looks very similar to him, and apparently pregnant, Channon Yarrow is the first of Spider's assistants. He's tall, and the second one comes out. As a snudist at a nightclub near angels 8, where the temporary riot took place. After the riot, she was hired by Royce as Spider's assistant but left after her boyfriend Ziang left her to discharge her consciousness into the nanotechnology cloud. During The Year of the Bastard, she returns as the bodyguard of Spider, who failed as a nun of the make-up church. Channon is tall and attractive, has blond hair and is physically very strong. Editor-in-Chief Of The Word, Royce is the editor-in-chief and therefore its boss. One of the main themes of the comic book is the antagonistic relationship between Spider and Royce. Although the two share a constant disagreement, which is almost a caricature of modern journalism, there is two mutual professional and even emotional appreciation, and Royce Spider records his life and reputation several times during the series (he is very famous for Year Five, which helps Spider with key elements to rebuild his fight against Gary a bow smiling Callahan). #32 issue, Spider describes Royce as a good man; A good degree with a bad reputation by your standards. When he leaves The Word, he tells Royce that he did everything right because of him. Royce is a chronic smoker, often seen with a pack of cigarettes in his mouth - often in response to spider requests neither spine delay, in addition to his classic phrase where my damn column!, an expression that changes intensity and sound. This phrase is so present in the context of its interactions that spiders notice from time to time when the spider fails. Every time he attends parties with Spider at least twice, he mentions contracting some illness (of course, he blames him). He is divorced and at one point claims to be at least one of his previous wives. The relationship between Spider and Royce is good, it becomes that real aggression is more than shared confidence code beyond aggressive verbal language. Lau Qi, a feedsite (a virtual website/community of news and futuristic information) is a feeding site that allows you to read raw information on a page similar to a .txt format, a young Chinese-American co-founder, which can also download and share other information. Qi then just put hole online to distribute pornography and admits that the news is quite an add-on. With Spider Qi and her boyfriend and colleague John Nkrumah she is forced to abandon Word after her managers, pressured by Smile, to fire her; Regardless of whether Qi is an unconscioused apolitical. Spider Martial Cure / Law foresads him to accompany him during story arcs He and his friends try to escape from the National Guard. He most recently accompanies Oscar Rossini and setting up cameras to record his arrest; it is likely to be with him (and eventually a home-maintained) arrested (and eventually a host). Antagonists Beast: First U.S. President Spider Minister. He is an unscrupulous, violent and fascist man who embraces basic survival policies and whose morality is based on the idea of one more day of life. He is a man who is not really interested in doing his job and therefore thirsts for power, dedicating his government to a dangerous survival policy in which the majority of the population can survive. He is known for torturing and punishing his enemies and areas that did not vote for him. Gary Smile Callahan: Originally supported by Spider rather than Beast, Callahan proves to be a much less psychic stable subject. He's very smart and equally bad. It's extremely dangerous. His nickname takes him against his enduring, static smile and resemblance to a psychotic smile. He quickly bees the main antagonist in the series. Bob Heller: A fascist senator who trained his political advisors on clone farms, a historical ally of the Beast, in favor of Gary Callahan, in exchange for giving him vice president. His political career is based entirely on hatred and the exploitation of prejudice as a voting engine. Originally a publishing career, the series was part of comics published by Helix (a label owned by DC Comics), but at the end of the first year of his career DC, along with all of the company's other series, decided to cancel the episode and survived only Transmetropolitan, which would move to vertigo. The monthly series began in 1997 and ended in 2002 with 60 monthly delivery numbers, and ten compilation volumes were re-printed. In addition, two special topics, I Hate It Here and Fifth of the City, were written by the character Spider Jerusalem and featured with illustrated texts by a wide range of artists from the comic book world. Both custom properties were able to be included in the build volumes.
