And unlike the world a long time ago, you no longer need to download Java to play it - a real win for all computer users. Editor Suggestions Even if there is something that can be said to start with a fresh, convenient (and fun) map to plooad the whole world to your Minecraft Realms server— whether it's the world you create your own or download online. Why Would I Want to Do This? Minecraft Realms is an official server platform from Mojang, the company behind Minecraft. This is a great user-friendly way to host remote servers for you and your friends (or their children and friends) to play Minecraft together. RELATED: How To Set Up a Minecraft Server Without Easy Pressure with Minecraft Realms In our guide to start with Minecraft Realms, we emphasize how to create a new world or fill your Minecraft server with mojang-supplied maps, but now we're back showing you how you can upload your own world. This not only allows you to upload the world you have worked on (either with friends or solo), but you can also download maps from the Internet that other industry builders have filled with their cool creations for you to explore. Let's take a look at what you need to do before uploading your map and where you can find additional maps online to upload to your Minecraft Realms server. First, Update Your Maps (If Necessary) Minecraft Realms uses minecraft's most recent public release. So far this tutorial is version 1.8.9, but Realms will roll to 1.9 once it is released. RELATED: How to Upgrade your Old Minecraft Map for a smooth Transition to Ideally's New Biomes, you'll use a map that's from the current version of Minecraft. If you have a map from the older version you want to use (for example you've played on an old map of 1.6.4 over the years but now you want to upload them to Realms) you can definitely do so, but be aware that you might face some issues. The most obvious issue revolves around ugly lump updates where the edges of the map are being explored (produced with old-world engines) meet new engines (which will be generated with new world engines). If you're in such a situation where you're going to upload very old maps, we highly recommend you check out our guide on How to Upgrade your Old Minecraft Map for a Smooth Transition to New Biomes. For many players, though, the old map is not a big concern, and only takes up Their existing world map will be fine. However, it is good to know about the nuances of the process so that you are not surprised later when your map looks alien than you remember. With that little caution, let's take a look at where you'll find your local map and where to find cool maps online shows you how to upload them directly to your Realms server. Find Your Local Save Directory The first step in uploading any maps, whether your local player map or a custom downloaded map, only find the world keeping directories on your PC. We've detailed finding and backing up your Minecraft files in How to Back up Your Minecraft World, Mode and More but we'll re-record here to make it easier to read (and to make you running faster). Although your world saves may be in different locations if you use a custom launcher like MultiMC, the following is the default storage location on the main operating system: Windows %appdata%\minecraft\saves\ Mac OS X ~/Library/Application Support/minecraft/saves/Linux /home/[username]/.minecraft/saves/ In the folder \saves\ First, you will find a unique folder for each saved world named after the world itself (for example). Think of folders like containers that hold all the important data about your world, including the world map, and the accling metadata. Now it would be a good time to make backup copies, in a secure location, your world data. Uploading the world will not make any changes to it, and when it is on Realms server no changes will be made to your local data. However, it's always good to get in the habit of backing up any digital project, such as a large Minecraft map, you've invested a lot of time. Even if you don't plan on uploading a map you create personally and you want to jump straight into downloading custom content, pay attention to this directory, since it's important for the entire upload process. How to Find and Download Cool Maps Online When uploading your own creation frees up buildings you've worked, equally fun finding cool custom maps online and uploading them to explore with your friends. If you only upload your own world, you can skip this section, because the upload process is the same for both. But if you want to find new content to play, we'll discuss it here. If you want a good overview of different types of maps, such as adventures and parkour maps, see Lesson 13 of our detailed Minecraft Geek School series: Download and Install Custom Maps. Our two favorite locations, both on their extensive account of choice and their longevity, are PlanetMinecraft and MinecraftMaps. Between the two websites, you'll find thousands of maps you can take for spin. On Planet Minecraft, you'll find a world saved for download in the Project category; make sure you use the Fall under and filter out project categories by the world saving to overcome various other projects (such as video and world seeds). You can further shrink your search by filtering through project types to downsize them to just adventure maps/challenges, certain types of structures, etc. MinecraftMaps a little easier to navigate navigating for no other reason than, as the name may be, there is nothing there but a map of Minecraft to download. With both websites, the only thing that really needs to be ensured is the version number of the map. If you sort by download/popularity, for example, you'll often find very old Minecraft maps from 3-4 years ago that have been downloaded hundreds of thousands of times but may or may not be updated for a newer version of the game. Today, we download an adventure map so we can do a little adventurer with friends. So we have chosen the map of Le Gran Maze from MinecraftMaps and will use it for the next step in the tutorial, uploading the map to Minecraft Realms. No matter if which world saves or maps that you have downloaded, you need to extract. The ZIP file you downloaded into Minecraft/saves/directory on your PC (which we located in the previous section of the tutorial). Forget the time to do so now. How to Upload Your Maps to Minecraft Realms Whether you've grabbed your own personal map, or connected through an online maps list to find the perfect one, it's time to upload it to your Realms server. Note: If you haven't fully set up your Minecraft Realms server and/or need help with basic navigation, see our guide to getting started with Minecraft Realms before continuing. Launch Minecraft and select the Minecraft Realms button to access your Nature. Select the configuration icon, large wrench, Minecraft Realms server that you want to upload your map (for most people, it will be the only option available). Once in your Realms server configuration menu, you need to choose a blank slot available, as seen above, or unlock/delete one of your worlds to give room for your new map. After selecting your blank map slot, you'll be prompted to choose what you want to do with it; select World uploads. In the options screen, you'll see the world listed just as you do in your single player menu. You'll notice that the entry we've highlighted above has two names: the world and Le Gran Maze 1.8. Minecraft world saves have two names: names embedded in the storage files and folder names they have. When you download maps from the Internet, they often have generic names like the world but you can always customize the folder name, as we do, for easy identification. Select the world you want to upload and then click Upload. After the upload reaches 100 percent and your world file is verified, select Finish. You will return to the main Realms configuration screen. Above, and you'll be prompted to choose which world you want to load. The previously empty World 3 slot now has our new world uploaded into it. Don't worry if you've downloaded a spacecraft map or some such things and you see a generic-looking landscape (as seen in the screenshot above). top). Thumbnails for the uploaded world are created using world seeds and ignore whatever structures the world has built or changed the creators of the map have been made. Double-click the map to load it up and you're in the business. Enjoy your new map and make sure you tell your friends there's something new to check out on your Realms server.
