Enter your golf scores and check your annual summary, in this free Excel workbook. There are single player versions and multiple players in the workbook. Golf Score Overview of Workbook Enter your golf scores in this Excel workbook, for every round of golf you play during the year. Excel will calculate totals for 9 and back 9 front holes, and total score. Then, depending on your handicap, you calculate a net score. The Summary sheet shows the overall results for the year. The Summary worksheet is protected, without a password, to prevent formulas from being accidentally deleted. Enter course information The first step is to enter the par for each hole in the golf course, in the summary sheet. Enter your scores After each round of golf, enter the date and your score for each hole, into the light green cells. The worksheet has conditional formatting, so the pars will be orange, and the scores below par are bright green. The Scores sheet has an Excel table with some rows, and it will be expanded automatically when you start a new row. See the annual summary in the summary sheet, calculate the average and best scores, as well as the number of rounds played. In addition, it shows the best score for each hole, and its average score in each hole. Finally, there is a count of your pars, bogeys, birdies, etc., for each hole, using the COUNTIF function. The most frequent type of score is highlighted for each hole. How It Works There is a named range in the book - CoursePar. The CoursePar named range is used in conditional formatting of the Scores worksheet. Several players There is also a verion of the golf book results for several players. In the Scores sheet, there is a column for player names. Select a player name from the drop down list in this column Whose names are displayed in the Admin Lists sheet, in a table named Excel. Add new names at the end of the table, and the table will be expanded automatically to include them. The list of names can be sorted alphabetically, to make it easier to find names. At the top of the summary sheet, there are drop-down list of player names. Select a name and see the results of this person. In the Summary SHEETALL, a pivot table displays results for all players: number of rounds, best score, average score, best net and net average.
