(July 2016) Paper TossPaper Toss iOS iconDeveloper()Backflip StudiosJavnik()Backflip StudiosPlatform()iOS, AndroidReleaseJune 6, 2009Genre (2009)CasualMode()Single-player Paper Toss was a casual mobile game developed originally for the iOS operating system (iPad, iPhone, iPod Touch) from Backflip Studios,[1][2][3] which has since ported to Android. [4] Uses multi-touch input and is available in two versions: supported and paid for without ads for free. [5] It has been downloaded more than 50 million times. [6] It was discontinued and removed from app stores on September 9, 2019. Gameplay Basement level paper Toss Paper Toss is set in the office. The goal of the player is to fly a piece of paper into the bin. To make the game more challenging, there is a running fan in the room, thus displaying wind direction and speed as they should be considered when flicking a piece of paper. Players are stoned about how many times they manage to soften paper in the bin before missing out. There are online scales and 8 different levels: 3 office levels with small, medium and large distances away from the bin, the level of the airport to promote the emergence of Paper Toss, and Paper Toss: World Tour,[7][8] low-lit basement level, and level toilets, all of which are in the office. There is also a pub and a street level, which appear away from the office. Paper Toss Boss Like his predecessor, Paper Toss Boss (original Paper Toss 2.0), published on 8 December 2011, follows the same goal. The newer version includes new locations, diverse items for tipping and special features. The new locations that appear in this game include a warehouse, the Boss's office, where the sleepy boss lies, and the airport terminal. The number of items other than paper balls available have also increased with the possibility of using various food items and household items and grenades as well. The game also presents special new graphic features that were missing from the first version, such as colleagues, which can be hit with paper balls or drawers, fish tanks and broken boxes Another special is an intern, where an intern carries trash as he glides across the office in his chair. Here the player must not only adjust as a throw with an air current, but also time the intern is moving properly to get the ball in. The game also has a list of achievements that can be synchronized with the Game Center. Plywood, preferably put, to build a box with its back to support the toilet seat. The design with the toilet back shown in the images above is ideal because it prevents too many throws to prevent volunteers from hunting for tp scrolls. Paint to complete the look (see photo above) Setting the game: Before carnival set up the game Toilet Paper Toss and make a few different lines for different age groups of children. Of course, the younger kids will be closer to the game to make it easier for them to win. For your carnival awards, be sure to show them up for kids to see - it makes the game so much fun. So if you have prizes big enough to hang on the line and show up -it's fantastic. Otherwise, you can place smaller prizes on the table in colorful buckets of prizes so that kids can see what they are trying to win! How to play toilet paper Toss Carnival game: Players are getting 3 rolls of toilet paper for the chance to get so many rolls of toilet paper in the toilet. Winnings can look like this: 0-1 roll in the potty = prize2 rolls in potty potty Medium Prize 3 rollin in kahlo = top prize Additional tips & tips: Remember if you're pinching for time, feel free to take this game out of the big box – it looks great all painted – and next year you can be out of the wood as shown above. It's fun to theme up some of the rewards for this game – choosing snakes, lizards, noise kit and as mentioned above, Tootsie Rolls as a consolation will really get a laugh from some of the people they get caught on! On!
