Picture: Corbis/VCG/Corbis/Getty Images Grunge's music isn't just about wearing flannel and being depressed. The first grunge sounds came out of Seattle in the mid-1980s, but it really gained popularity in the early and mid-1990s. This subter of rock music was a sensation. Bands such as Nirvana, Pearl Jam, Soundgarden and Stone Temple Pilots broke through and showed the world that there was a type of rock music that wasn't necessarily metallic and not necessarily psychedelic. This alternate sound resonated with the pariahs of the 1990s, and it changed the way we saw music. Rock was no longer a fusion of country, blues and electronics. It became a pure sound that wasn't always perfect, but always made a difference. The lyrics of these new sounds have invaded society more than they have focused on government than music from previous decades. It was about looking at yourself and understanding who you are. She attacked themes of self-understanding, bullying and inequality. No doubt grunge changed the sound of music for an entire generation, and with good reason. The music was pure, the singing was passionate and the lyrics were poetry. It was so popular that the genre lasted more than a decade with fans spanning around the world. Fortunately, the industry-created band of five has an album coming out that is said to revive the art of pop song writing. The first one direction reviews four praised the boys for the mature. But what are they growing from? Hallmark-like lyrics, that's what. To prove that point, we dug through Hallmark's collection of sentiment and 1D discography for bits of prose that could go one way or the other because they all have that one thing. And one thing is saccharine words. Some may be signed, sealed, while others are strapped by Mr Harry Styles & co. Protect yourself! This is the best quiz in the world. Sometimes.
