He is best known for creating props for movies and television programs. He was also the host of popular online sessions, Man at Arms. [1] The history of Swatton is a self-trained blacksmith and trained jeweller. [2] When he was young, he used to cut jewels and later expand his skill to include silver coins. When he was 15, he met Jody Samson, who worked on the conan barbarian film, and started swaping jewels with Samson for knives. Swatton didn't get a knife and showed it to Samson. Samson told him he could easily break because he didn't use the right metal or type of treatment. [3] When he was 17, Swatton attended the Renaissance Fair, where he watched another blacksmith make armor. Swatton then made copies of the blacksmith's equipment and used them for his own helmet. When he was 26, he opened his first North Hollywood store called Sword and Stone, where he sold euro products to Disney and Michael Jackson. In 1991, he was employed for his first film work on Hook. [3] Between 1994 and 1998, Samson worked at swatton's store. [3] Webseries Swatton was involved in Man at Arms after being approached by a director. The director was looking for a blacksmith who could create 12 special weapons and get close to Swatton. Swatton accepted, as he had previously built props, several weapons created by the director. [3] In online settings, Swatton created real versions of fictitious weapons and armor. Among his creations were Zenith Blade from League of Legends[4] and Wolverine's X-Men claws. [5] The last episode, which was on display in June 2014, was on display. Beginning in April 2015, Swatton was starred in Blizzard Entertainment's intermittent Azeroth Armory webseries, in which he forefired an iconic weapon from the Warcraft video game series, with episodes that are usually released as part of a marketing push for a new World of Warcraft expansion. Personal Swatton has a fiancée. He was granted U.S. citizenship in 2013. [7] Swatton was once a member of the Society for Creative Anarchism, but he left after other members refused to concede hits from Swatton in mock battles, forcing him to use force to make Swatton leave because he said he didn't want to be a bully. [8] Swatton's film credits were even uneasy in many films and TV shows departments, making weapons or armour for them, some of the credited performances that he has been given are as follows: Year Title Credit 2020 Prop Culture himself, episode: Pirates of the Caribbean: Curse of the Black Pearl 2012 The Hunger Games weapons: props – uncredited 2011 Thor props 2011 Sucker Punch weapons 2010 Alice in Wonderland sword maker – uncredited 2007 Beowulf weapons 2007 Epic Movie weapon fabricator 2006 Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest sword maker 2005 Into the Blue sword maker 2005 The Legend of Zorro sword maker 2004 Hellboy sword maker 2004 Scooby-Doo 2: Monsters Unleashed armorer 2004 Spider-Man 2 knife maker 2004 Blade: Trinity armorer 2004 Van Helsing armorer 2003 Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl sword maker 2003 The Last Samurai sword maker 2003 The Matrix Reloaded sword maker 2003 Jeepers Creepers 2 armourer 2003 Holes knife maker 2002 The Ring jeweller 2002 Spider-Man sword maker 2002 Men in Black 2 sword maker – nekredtted 2001 Ocean's 11 draguljar – nekredited 2001 Rush Hour 2 meč maker 2000 Pravila engagement noža maker 1999 Angel orožije 1998 Blade swordmaker – nekredited 1997 Spawn oklopnik 1997 Buffy vampir Izbačajno orožje 1997 Lice/Off nožem 1996 Sabrina, Teenage Witch (1996 TV serija) mačevaonica 1996 Vrana: City of Angel The Cable Guy armourer – nekredited 1995 Casper armourer 1994 The shadow helmet maker 1993 Hot Shots! Man at Arms is an online series in which blacksmiths and armour are known, which make the right versions of fantasy weapons. For several seasons, blacksmith and jeweller Tony Swatton was the host of the series. In 2013, Swatton retired from Man at Arms, and brothers Kerry and Matt Stagmer of Baltimore Knife and Sword were selected to replace him. Along with his team of armored personnel carriers, fabricators, jewellers and fellow blacksmiths, the Stagmer brothers are ready to step up and create a fantastic weapon you've never seen before. The Stagmer Brothers store is in Marriottsville, Maryland, 20 miles northwest of Baltimore. Defy Media, the digital media company that created Man at Arms, is based in Los Angeles, and needed a local production team for the first six episodes of the rebooted series. Defy Media went to Mark Leisher Productions and we were thrilled to be part of such a popular and beloved series. MLP provided all the recording equipment, as well as the 1st U.S. During the 10-day filming, our crew worked closely with Defy Media and Baltimore Knife and Sword as they made 6 mashup weapons from beloved franchises including the Marvel Cinematic Universe, Ninja Turtles, and My Little Pony. Meanwhile, our D.I.T. has struggled to manage, transmit and provide all digital recordings for post-production. The hard work paid off - filming was wrapped on July 1, and a week later a preview for the new season was posted on YouTube. For two and a half months, we watched the reboot gain in popularity and regularly received more than half a million views on YouTube. Despite some initial sadness over Tony's departure, fans of Man At Arms welcomed the Brothers Stagmer of Baltimore Knife and Sword, and the series is a strong match for 2.45 million subscribers.
