

Who was the first cat to go to starclan

Hello there, I am A Stargazer and welcome to StarClan. Don't worry, you're not dead yet *chuckle, chuckle*. I was the first cat to die of the clan cats, and also Silverpelt after my buddy, Silver. Enough about me, because it's time for me to show you the most famous cats of the forgotten clans who have come to join StarClan. As you know, StarClan is heaven for all cats; it is a place for us to be when we are no longer alive. We send prophecies in dreams and in what the cats call omens, like a vortex of water or a fallen leaf, to help our former clans and clan mates. Here we go between the stars. Stargazer was the first cat ever to walk in StarClan. When he died, he created the sky for cats and called him StarClan, after his daughter Star and maybe himself, although I don't think he would be so greedy. Stargazer named the night sky after his buddy Silver, so the name is Silverpelt. He is a very mysterious Tom with a quiet nature. Stargazer is not known among the forgotten clans, although he has created their heavens and all their beliefs. The only cat that knows about him is Starpaw, but everything will be revealed in time... Stargazer is very similar to rock. Silver was Stargazer's buddy when they were still alive, and she still loves him. She has a fluffy silver coat and pale grey eyes. Her daughter is a star. Silver is a gentle, caring cat with a friendly heart. She met Stargazer in a battle before the clans were formed. They fell in love immediately. Later, she had star. When Silver Star was born, Stargazer in a battle before the clans were formed. died fighting a fox trying to get a simple meal. Five moons later, Silver died. Silver watched over Star and protected her to protect her life until she joined her. Star is Silver's Kit. It is small and weak as a kit. Her mother called her in the hope that she would remain strong, like her father. She never knew her father and was very young when her mother died. She never let it stop her. Star said to herself every day to be strong. She had a kit whose name is not known. She is very peaceful in StarClan and watches of all clans. Dawnstar was the first leader of DawnClan. She is a Calico cat with eyes as orange as the sunrise. She was known to get up early! This gave her time to hunt and attack the others when no one was the second cat selected for leadership and was an extraordinary leader. She had a buddy, and although no one ever knew who it was, she has relatives in the current DawnClan... But who are they? Icestar was the first leader of IceClan. He is a fluffy white Tom with ice blue ice blue ice blue Icestar's thick fur allowed him to hunt late into the vear, sometimes through leaf baldness, which made him strong when other cats were weakest. When the time came for him to gather a clan and choose his territory, he settled in the northern mountains on the border with the territories. He made sure that all his cats also had some thick skins, so that they were strong in winter... To be continued... Coming soon! Bramblefur is a brown and black spotted Tom with blue eyes. He was once a warrior of MoonClan. He is Moonlight's buddy and father of Leafpaw and Lionpaw. He is Ice's brother, but he joined a clan, not a group of villains. He died in a badger fight that tried to stop Lionpaw from falling in when Lionpaw from falling in when Lionpaw was just a kit. Moonlight is a warrior of StarClan. She is Leafpaw and Lionpaw's mother. She died to save her kits from attack. She was and is very friendly. She looks over her kits, hoping they grow up to be strong, loyal and courageous. Hazelpelt was a reddish-brown cat with green eyes. Yuccaplant is her partner. Bloodshine and Mushroomkit their kits. She died when a DawnClan warrior named Mudfoot murdered her. She is disappointed that Bloodshine murdered her own father and avenged her death, but she understands her reasons. Yuccaplant is a grey Tom with yellow eyes. Hazelpelt is his buddy and Mushroomkit and Bloodshine, when he made them angry. Mushroomkit was a grey Tom with green and blue eyes. Hazelpelt is his mother and Yuccaplant. His sister Bloodshine lives in LightClan. Everyone in the clans believes Bloodshine killed him, but he knows it was just an accident when Bloodshine and hopes she recognizes it. Mudfoot is a black Tom with yellow eyes. He used to be the DawnClan DEPUTY, but when he killed Bloodshine's mother, Bloodshine killed him to avenge her mother's death. Triptail is a Tom who loves to joke around and play pranks on people. he punishes himself if he insults someone. grey and white tom with blue eyes his brothers are Monkeypath and Elksong. his younger sister is Lunapaw. his parents are dead, but their names were Snakeclaw and Quailfeather. his buddy is Ivyvine. He died when Lionshadow killed him and blamed Sunclaw. Stormclaw was a warrior in DarkClan. He goes to know with StarClan and is angry at the cats of darkness. He is a pretty blue-grey Tom with red eyes. He was killed by Greentooth and wished he come back to him. His buddy was called Patchfur and he wished he could be back with her. He is very loyal and trusting and could not harm a living soul unless it was about self-defense. He is very intelligant intelligant sometimes looks like a kit. Silverclaw was a warrior of DarkClan. She is a grey cat with blue eyes and long claws. Silverclaw is very well spoken and is never afraid to question the warrior code. She is a hard-working warrior and very loyal to her clan. She doesn't have a buddy or kits. StarClan cat that was in DarkClan. She has green eyes and a reddish coat. She liked Starpaw and hopes to guide him through his fate. After so many good souls sent to Starclan and prayers, it has built up an enormous amount of good energy. it was concentrated in a single ship. the spirit of Starclan. it is neither male nor female, and it would like to help Starclan and the other clans, but it has not built up enough energy, only good spirits and prayers give it energy. when it is complete, it will be a firm cat and be able to look into other cats' hearts and dust them at will only if the cat is naturally evil. StarClan lives in peace, all old rivalries end here, and there are no lines to divide anyone, StarClan is guarded by the hidden man named Stargazer. If there is a time of crisis, he is the one who is called. All StarClan cats make it Disisions togeather. WARNING:SPOILERS FOR THE ARC, DAWN OF THE CLANS, AND THE SUPER EDITION, MOTH WING'S VISION, but why? Don't anyone know? Well, that's what I think! Well, some people might say One-Eye was the first member of the Dark Forest. Honestly, I thought so. Well, I think the Dark Forest was created AFTER the first medicine cats to be. And only cats that believed in Starclan could go to the Dark Forest. But One-Eye did not believe in the ghosts. (correct me if I'm wrong). One-eye from Servoke to DevianArtBut here's who I think it was the first. I think it was Willow Tail. (From the vision of moth flight). Willow Tail of the warriors WikiaJust think. Willow Tail started a war against SkyClan by framing them for stealing loot! Just to get back to Red Claw! I mean, seriously! Several cats died in the war, including Willow Tail himself! And even if you're careful, she wasn't the most beautiful cat. And also, only clan cats went to Starclan or the Dark Forest. One-eye, technically was not a part of the clans, even if he joined SkyClan. It was clear that he wasn't really a part of it. So the bottom line is, Willow Tail was the first member of the Dark Forest, but was the first member of the Dark Forest, but wandered around and found the border StarClan and the Dark Forest, but she did something she was worthy of StarClan. OR she was supposed to go to StarClan. OR she was worthy of StarClan. The Dark Forest still there, but no cats to inhabit it. So really, Willow Tail might not be the first cat, just the one that created the idea. We may never know who the first cat was! But one day we can find out !, what one of you has something that supports this theory, or refutes it, say it in the comments, and say badly that I'm thinking about it! Now it's time for me to go so much fun theorizing, and can starclan light your way!#Curatorreview-theory hashtag -> Just because :3 Wikipedia list article For characters in the American crime-related media franchise, see list of warrior characters. Due to the large number of characters in the novel series, this list is shared by Clan, e.B. all characters in ThunderClan (from The Silent Thaw) are compiled in the loyalty list. Naming Convention In ThunderClan, RiverClan, WindClan, ShadowClan, and SkyClan, the end of their name. Z.B. Dawnkit, Bramblekit, Lionkit, Crowkit. If they are an apprentice, -Paw will be at the end of their name (Dawnpaw, Bramblepaw, Lionpaw, Crowpaw and so on). When this cat is made a warrior or medicine cat, the suffix is changed to its name (Dawnpelt, Brambleclaw, Lionblaze, Crowfeather, etc.). If a cat ever becomes a leader, they get the suffix -star at the end of their name. (Dawnstar, Bramblestar, Lionstar, Brambleclaw, Lionblaze, Crowfeather, etc.). Crowstar, etc.). In The Tribe of Rushing Water, the cat's names have no prefixes or suffixes. The mother of a cat will call her kitten after the first memorable thing the mother sees after birth (e.B. Brook Where Small Fish Swim and Night of No Stars). ThunderClan is named after its first leader and founder Thunder. In the Warriors series (with the exception of Underseries Dawn Of The Clans) are the most protagonists ThunderClan cats. During the original series, ThunderClan cats are accustomed to being cut through the thick underbrush of the ThunderClan, along with the other clans, undergoes a dramatic territorial shift in the course of the New Prophecy Arc. During the time when Brambleclaw, Squirrelpaw and their travel companions are on their journey to find Midnight, the Badger, much of ThunderClan's territory is destroyed as people continue to deforest the area. [2]:320 Finally, ThunderClan and the other clans move to the lake area, where the ThunderClan camp is located in an abandoned quarry. The camp is protected by high stone walls, but the surrounding area is similar to the forest that ThunderClan previously inhabited. [3] Bluestar's prophecy Pinestar A reddish-brown Tom with green eyes Pinestar is the leader of ThunderClan when Bluestar is born. His warrior name is Pineheart. His father is Oakstar. When he has only one of his nine lives left, he decides to resign as leader and become a kitten after becoming disillusioned with the violence and fragility of clan life. Although he leaves the clans, he is accepted by StarClan when he finally loses his last life. He's Leopardfoot's buddy, Tigerstar's father, Grandfather of Tawnypelt, Brambleclaw, Hawkfrost and Mothwing, great-grandfather of Thunderwhisker, Juniperclaw, Strike Sunstar Sunstar, a bright ginger tom with green eyes His warrior name is Sunfall. He looks after Bluepaw after her first mentor, Stonepelt, retires prematurely into the elder's cave due to an injury that did not heal properly. Sunstar becomes leader of ThunderClan when Pinestar resigns to leave the clans and become a kitten. However, since Pinestar still has one of his nine lives when Sunstar becomes leader, StarClan gives him only eight lives instead of the usual nine, a secret he keeps in front of the clan because he fears he feels he didn't have StarClan's support in full. When Sunstar's first deputy, Tawnyspots, retires early due to illness, Sunstar chooses Bluefur as deputy instead of the ambitious Thistleclaw for fear of Thistleclaw's violent tendencies and is impressed by Bluefur's selflessness in the face of several personal losses. Sunstar eventually dies when he is unable to run over a dog after being weakened by illness. His brother is Featherwhisker, ThunderClan's medical cat before Spottedleaf. [4] Moonflower Moonflower is a silver-grey, tabby queen with pale yellow eyes, mother of Bluestar and Snowfur. Take life at the beginning of Bluestar's and other ThunderClan warriors took part in an attack on the WindClan camp in which Moonflower is killed by WindClan's medical cat Hawkheart when she attacks her drug supplies. [4] Moonflower's buddy is and she is sister of Goosefeather. She is also a grandmother of Stonefur, Mistystar and Mosskit. Snowfur fell in love with Thistleclaw and disapproved of Bluefur, as shown in Bluestar's prophecy. She has a kit with Thistleclaw, Whitekit, Snowfur dies when shadowClan chases intruders over the Thunderpath, and is run over by a twoleg monster, causing Bluefur to go into another cycle of mourning. Snowfur also shared her own story about what happened to Mosskit in Secrets of the Clans. She is the daughter of Moonflower and Stormtail. Snowfur also gave Rosetail her name (when she was a kit) because of her pink-orange tail. At the bluestar leader's ceremony, she gave her pride to know her own value and the value of her clan. She gave bluestar's ninth life. [4] Snowfur, while still alive, teased Bluefur about the taste of Oakheart, a RiverClan warrior. Thistleclaw is a large, grey-and-white patched Tom with amber eyes. Bluestar suggests his name because of its prickly fur when they are both kits in the nursery. He is hot-headed and aggressive, which makes his relationship with the more reserved Bluestar quite difficult. He is the buddy of Bluestar's sister Snowfur and father of Whitestorm's nephew. He is also the mentor of Tigerpaw and one of the causes of the causes of Tigerpaw and one of the cause of the cause of the cause of the cause bloodthirsty and wants to keep other clans out of ThunderClan territory by marking the borders with blood. In Crookedstar's promise, Crookedjaw witnesses his education in the Dark Forest. He is characterized as very violent, as was shown when he orders his apprentice Tigerpaw to attack the young Tiny (later scourge) who had gone to ThunderClan without knowing about the clans, as described in the manga The Rise of Scourge and the Superedition Bluestar's prophecy. [6] Goosefeather has a vision with Bluefur and sees Thistleclaw's fur dripping in the blood, symbolizing the trace of death he would leave if he ever ascended to the leader. When Thistleclaw dies, he is found unheathed with Unlaws, lips lying in a snarl and in a pool of his own blood, as Bluestar and Goosefeather saw in their shared vision. In Night Whispers he is shown as the leader of the training session in the Dark Forest. In Sign of the Moon he kills the living cat Antpelt during the Goosefeather is a speckled grey Tom with pale blue eyes and brother of Moonflower. He was the medical cat of ThunderClan when Bluestar was born and interprets a piece of prey (a vole with its fur bent like a forest creature down through wind) as a warning from StarClan that WindClan will destroy ThunderClan. He suggests that the only way to stop this was to destroy WindClan's medical care; In the ensuing battle, his sister is murdered and many cats are injured, with Stonepelt's injuries forcing him to retire early. Several cats, including his niece Bluestar, blame him for the results of the battle. He was the mentor of Featherwhisker, the medical cat before Spottedleaf. He interprets a burning branch as an omen for Bluestar being a fire and burning through the ranks of ThunderClan, but being destroyed by water. After that, Goosefeather seems to go crazy. He sees Tigerkit as a dangerous monster (ironically, although no cat believed him, this proves true), and that Thistleclaw thunderClan will lead on a path of blood when he becomes a leader. Although many cats think goose-sines are crazy, some of its omens and prophecies are true. He even tells Bluefur that she has to give up her kits to save ThunderClan, which she reluctantly does. At the bluestar leader's ceremony, he gave her patience. Featherwhisker is a pale silvery tom with amber eyes, long whiskers and a sweeping, plump tail. He is Goosefeather's apprentice when Bluekit is born and becomes Spottedleaf's mentor. He trusts ThunderClan more than his mentor Goosefeather, who was considered eccentric and often asked to help with tasks that Goosefeather, who was considered eccentric and often asked to help with tasks that Goosefeather. during a Greencough outbreak and eventually dies of Greencough himself. After his death, Spottedleaf ThunderClans becomes a medical cat. Featherwhisker is Sunstar's brother. [5] Leopardfoot is an elegant black queen with green eyes. She is sister of Patchpelt, Redtail, Willowpelt and Spottedleaf, buddy of Pinestar and mother of Mistkit and Nightkit (both died shortly after birth) and Tigerkit, later known as Tiger star. It was introduced in Bluestar's prophecy as a five-month-old kit. Later she had her kits early and was weakened. She gave Tigerkit his tough name because he was the weakest throw. Her parents were Adderfang and Swiftbreeze. [4] Her buddy was Pinestar, who left the clan to be a kittypet shortly before Crapkit and Nightkit's death. Swiftbreeze is a tabby and white queen who likes to boast about her kits and comments, for example, that her kits have opened her eyes earlier than Bluekit. She is the mother of Leopardfoot, Willowpelt, Spottedleaf and Redtail, partner of Adderfang, grandmother of Tigerstar and great-grandmother of Bramblestar, Hawkfrost, Mothwing and Tawnypelt. kit. He had a damper damper and they all took note and led the clan to believe that he was the father of Stonefur, Mistystar, and Mosskit Hough he never knew who her real father was. Bluestar told him she knew she was happy with him. [4] Mosskit Mosskit is a pale grey and white cat with blue eyes. She is the sister of Mistystar and Stonefur and the kit of Bluestar's prophecy, she gives her is the avent of the RiverClan. Bluefur burys them in the dirt under the snow, so Mosskit is not eaten by foxes when winter thaws. In Bluestar's prophecy, she gives her mother a life when she becomes ThunderClan's leader after Sunstar. [4] She also appears in Secrets of the Clans and The Last Hope. Original series thour. Many of the characters mentioned here were introduced in the original series, but many of them also play smaller or significant roles in The New Prophecy and Power of Three series. Characters listed in the other series may have been introduced in the original series, but play larger roles in the series in which they are listed. Firestar, a pretty flame-colored Tom with green eyes, [7] is the protagonist of the original series. Initially a kitten named Rusty, he often dreamed of hunting for his own prey in the forest beyond his owner's house (and ventured into the forest beyond his fence and garden). Rusty joins ThunderClan after meeting Graypaw when he was caught trying to hunt prey in ThunderClan Territory, and is first established as an apprentice and renamed Firepaw for his flame-colored fur. Throughout the series, Firepaw gains respect within the clan and eventually gets his warrior name Fireheart at the end of Forest of Secrets, he becomes a proxy and finally ThunderClan's leader, Firestar, at the beginning of the darkest hour, when Bluestar died when she rescued her clan and her fireheart from the pack of dogs with which Tigerstar tried to destroy ThunderClan at the end of A Dangerous Path. Before Bluestar dies, she finally tells Fireheart that she was right with him, and that he was the fire in the prophecy, Fire alone can save the clan she heard before he even joined ThunderClan. Firestar was cared for by Bluestar (and for a short time Lionheart and Tigerclaw) and has looked after three apprentices themselves: Cinderpelt, who later died because of her accident on the Thunderpath (the was trained by Tigerstar as a trap for Bluestar) medical cat was trained at Yellowfang, which permanently injured her leg; Cloudtail; and Brambleclaw (star). Cloudtail is the firstborn son of his kitten kittens were born, firestar had her firstborn kit to be raised with him as a warrior to ThunderClan, where Bluestar called him Cloudkit, Firestar has no significant character flaws and is fully committed to the warrior code. Only sometimes will he bend the rules to help his clan, but also to his many friends and allies he meets along the way, regardless of their affiliation. He respects the rules of his superiors, but also has the in the clan's traditional rules (a trend that began with his inclusion in the clan, domestic cat or kitten origins) to help his friends or correct a situation he thinks is right. He is primarily responsible, along with his friend Graystripe, for several feats that have ensured the welfare of all clans, such as the return of WindClan after they were driven out of their camp in fire and ice[8] and the hunt for loot for RiverClan when they were damaged and forced to leave their territory in a flood. In A Dangerous Path, he professes his long-standing love for Sandstorm, who is supposed to love him again. [9] He struggled with feelings for Spottedleaf, who died in Into the Wild. As a warrior, Fireheart received Bluestars disapproval for frequently helping the other clans. He led all four clans against the ranks of BloodClan as LionClan in The Darkest Hour. He killed their leader, scourge. [10] Erin Hunter also revealed that Firestar is the half-brother of Scourge through her father Jake. He appointed Graystripe as deputy after the fight against BloodClan MP. Firestar maintains a significant and often very important presence in the following series, The New Prophecy, Power of Three and Omen of the Stars as the ubiquitous leader of ThunderClan. In addition, he travels north between the original series and The New Prophecy with his buddy Sandstorm to reunite the lost and scattered descendants of SkyClan in Firestar's Quest. [11] He also starred in the history of the Ultimate Leader competition when he briefly reunited the clans, with the strong support of his pal Sandstorm. Sandstorm doesn't like him when he first joins ThunderClan and becomes jealous when he gets his warrior name in front of her. Firestar also saves sandstorm from falling over the gorge during a border battle with RiverClan in fire and ice. has two daughters with his beloved and longtime buddy Sandstorm: Leafpool and Squirrelflight. Both have starred in The New Prophecy and supporting roles in the Power of Three and Omen of the Stars series. Father is a plump ginger tom named Jake, who is also the father of Princess, Luna, Tommy, Filou, Ruby, socks and scourge. Jake's other buddy Quince was the mother of Scourge, Ruby and Socks. Firestar's mother is a tabby and white cat named Nutmeg dreamed that one of them, a ginger tom, was standing on a giant rock apre a pre d'. She called on him to come down, but he didn't seem to hear it. Princess is Firestar's sister, and her son Cloudtail is Firestar's nephew. Whitewing, Cloudtail's daughter, has two kits: Ivypool and Dovewing. Dovewing is one of the three and completes this trio. Ivypool trained with the Dark Forest, although she didn't want to. She serves as a spy for the three. He is the grandfather of Hollyleaf, Lionblaze and Jayfeather's forbidden kits) and Alderheart, Sparkpelt, Juniperkit and Dandelionkit (Squirrelflight and Bramblestar's kits). He is also the great-grandfather of Lionblazes Kits, Hollytuft, Sorrelstripe and Fernsong. In The Last Hope, Spottedleaf tells Jayfeather that the fourth cat in the prophecy The End of the Novel, Firestar loses his last life after defeating the spirit of TigerStar after suffering many injuries in battle. Bluestar Bluestar is a large, lithe, pale blue-grey cat with bright, ice blue eyes and a silver-tinted muzzle and a silver-tinted muzzle and a tail. She was the leader of ThunderClan when Firestar (then known as Firepaw) first entered the forest, which was during most of the original series. She is responsible for bringing Firestar into ThunderClan, a decision triggered by the alarmingly small number of apprentices in her clan and the prophecy fire alone can save our clan. Bluestar was mentored by the older warriors[1] and eventually named him her deputy after Tigerstar's exile (after betraying them). She is known as a strong, wise and calm leader. Bluestar fell in love with Oakheart, a RiverClan warrior and brother of Crookedstar, during her time as a warrior (when she was called Bluefur, as seen in The Rise of Scourge and Bluestar's Prophecy). During this time, another warrior of ThunderClan (Thrushpelt, as seen in Bluestar's prophecy) began to show interest in her. She wore three of Oakheart's kits, but the clan believed Thrushpelt was the father, and Thrushpelt kind enough to pretend for the violent Thistleclaw, but knowing that the clan would never have a gueen care kits for a She secretly gave her kits to Oakheart to be raised in RiverClan. Only Mistykit and Stonekit made it to RiverClan; Mosskit did not survive the trip because of the cold. After she gave it up and returned to the camp, she scratched a hole at the back of the nursery wall, went back to her nest and then screamed My kits are gone!, so the rest of the clan would think their kits were stolen from a starving fox or badger. Bluestar is able to suppress her feelings about her decision until Firestar, who is trying to uncover the truth about Tigerclaw's deception, revives the subject. Her regret, coupled with the shock of discovering her trusted deputy's plan to kill her, sinks Bluestar into a manic depression. It remains in this state during the events of Rising Storm and A Dangerous Path, which worsen when the wildfire destroys the ThunderClan that she has doomed her clan by saying that StarClan said fire would save the clan, and instead the fire destroyed it. Her faith is restored in the final moments of A Dangerous Path, when she crashes into the leader of a pack of dogs in a dramatic scene, causing her to fall over the edge of the gorge and into the river. She dies shortly after confiding to Fireheart that he was really the fire that saved the clan. Before she dies, her kits forgive her for handing them over to RiverClan. Bluestar retains a pivotal role in StarClan during the events of The New Prophecy and Power of Three. She chose the chosen one from ThunderClan (Brambleclaw). She also reluctantly told Firestar about SkyClan in Firestar's Quest. Bluestar has two kits, Mistystar and Stonefur, in RiverClan, and is mentioned in Secrets of the Clans as a third, Mosskit, who died young during the trip to RiverClan with her littermates due to the extreme cold. Currently, Mistystar is the leader of RiverClan, while Stonefur, the former MP, was killed in The Darkest Hour by Blackfoot and on the orders of Tigerstar because he was a halfclan. She also has a sister named Snowfur. Whitestorm is Snowfur's son and makes him the nephew of Bluestar. Her maternal uncle was goose feather, the medical cat before Featherwhisker. Goosefeather gave Bluestar its own prophecy: Like fire you will blaze through the forest, but beware, even the strongest flames can be destroyed by water. The prophecy meant that Bluestar's life would be destroyed by the pain of giving up her half-RiverClan kits, and it can means that she would die because she would die because she would have drowned in the river. Although Bluestar initially thought Goosefeather's prophecy that she was defeated by fire and water was nonsense, Bluestar was actually killed by water. Bluestar was initially looked after by Stonepelt, but after being forced to Due to an injury he had sustained in the fight against WindClan, Sunfall took over her training. After Yellowfang's capture, she looks after Firestar. She has also supervised Runningwind and Frostfur. Her sister was called Snowfur, her mother moonflower and her father stormtail. Graystripe Graystripe is a long-haired grey Tom with a dark grey stripe on the back and yellow eyes. He was also mentioned with the eyes the color amber and green. He is Firestar's first and best friend in ThunderClan. He meets Rusty in the woods near Rusty's kitten house and attacks him as if he were another intruder. When Rusty joins ThunderClan as Firepaw, the two become great friends and train and eat together. Graypaw's mentor was Lionheart, who was killed in Into the Wild. He becomes a warrior shortly after the battle with ShadowClan to save ThunderClan kits with Firepaw at the end of Into the Wild. Shortly after he was promoted to a full warrior (he was called Graystripe because a grey stripe runs on his back, which is darker than the rest of his gray fur), Graystripe falls in love with a RiverClan cat, Silverstream, after she saves him from drowning, and begins to sneak out of the camp to meet her. His friendship with Fireheart is tense because Fireheart has to cover for him while he is away, including the mentoring of Graystrip's apprentice Brackenpaw in his place, and for a short time the two argue with Fireheart, and their friendship continues. Graystripe eventually leaves ThunderClan to live in RiverClan after Silverstream dies, but returns as Bluestar leads dogs that Tiger Star has placed on the clan in front of the gorge. [12] At the end of the original series, he becomes ThunderClan's deputy, due to Whitestorm's death, [10] he was replaced by Brambleclaw when he was captured in Dawn. [13] Graystripe is a friendly, hearty character who to a certain extent serves as a comic relief character. He often makes quips or jokes to relieve a tense situation, but is able to concentrate in fights and focus on the target at issue. He has no qualms about killing hated enemies of the clan, and is responsible for the death of Darkstripe and also for the accidental death of Whiteclaw, who fell from a ravine because Graystripe was unable to save him. Graystripe has lived in more places than any other cat in the series. When Silverstream died, he wore his kits, Feathertail and Stormfur, and Graystripe lived with them in RiverClan for a while. [12] He returned to ThunderClan in A Dangerous Path when Leopardstar tried to firestar Graystripe attacked her and rescued him, and Leopardstar banished him from RiverClan. [9] In Dawn of The New Prophecy, Graystripe was captured by humans, or Twolegs, and lived for a time as a kitten, kitten, is described in more detail in the manga series The Lost Warrior. While living as a kitten, Graystripe met Millie, another kitten who helped him escape. After a long journey, the two finally returned to the clans that lived by the lake. He returned to ThunderClan in The Sight of the Power of Three series, along with Millie as his new buddy. He is currently a regular warrior, as Firestar has Brambleclaw retained his position as deputy. Gravstripe will sometimes be a replacement when Brambleclaw is traveling. He had two kits with Silverstream, Feathertail and Stormfur living in RiverClan. They temporarily fled to ThunderClan. They temporarily fled to ThunderClan. His father is Patchpelt and his mother Willowpelt. Feathertail was killed at Moonrise. Graystrip's buddy Millie gave birth to three kits of her own, Briarlight, Bumblestripe and Blossomfall in Eclipse. Graystripe has two grand kits, Pine that Clings to Rock and Lark that Sings at Dawn from Stormfur and his buddy Brook Where Small Fish Swim. Graystripe is currently an elder. Sandstorm Sandstorm is a pale ginger cat with green eyes. Sandpaw was an apprentice when Firestar first joined the clan, and didn't like Firepaw because he used to be a kitten. [1] Eventually, she warms up to Fireheart, a process initiated by Fireheart that prevented her from falling over a cliff during a battle on fire and ice to save her life. [8] When Fireheart is forced to take Sandpaw on a patrol mission, she begins to warm up for him, and is unexpectedly friendly and cheerful towards him. Over the course of the series, it becomes clear that Sandstorm fell in love with Fireheart (revealed in Rising Storm by her cousin Cinderpelt),[14] and through The Darkest Hour the two have become partners. [10] Sandstorm is known for having a wild personality and being easy to annoy, but is also able to be gentle, as her interactions with Firestar, her children, Squirrelflight and Leafpool and their grandchildren Lionblaze, Hollyleaf and Jayfeather show. She is considered the best hunter and one of the fastest runners in ThunderClan and is also an excellent fighter, which means that she is present in many big battles. She was also one of the cats Firestar's ongoing relationship with her aunt Spottedleaf, his first love, are shown in Firestar's quest, in which she again plays a major role and in the Firestar confirms that he faces Sandstorm loves and will come for all moons. Also in Cats of The Clans, Rock says sandstorm knows Firestar better than he recognizes, and even better than Spottedleaf, for all the dreams they've shared. She has two two Leafpool and Squirrelflight as well as three grandchildren, Jayfeather, Hollyleaf and Lionblaze. She is the great-grandmother of Lionblaze and Cinderhearts Kits, Hollytuft, Sorrelstripe and Fernsong. They are the kits of Leafpool and Crowfeather, as confirmed in The Power of Three. She was looked after by Whitestorm and supervised Sorreltail and Honeyfern. At the end of Bramblestar's storm, she retreats to become an elder.

She dies of an infected wound in The Apprentice's Quest. Redtail is her father and Brindleface is her mother. Ashfur and Fuzzypelt and Robinwing (Brindleface's parents). She is niece of Frostfur, Dustpelt and Ravenpaw (Brindleface's siblings) and Leopardfoot, Spottedleaf, Willowpelt (Redtail's siblings). She is cousin of Tigerstar, Mistkit and Nightkit (Leopardfoot Kits), Gravstripe and Longtail (Patchpelt's Sons), Sorreltail, Sootfur, Rainwhisker (Willowpelt Kits) and Cinderpelt. Brackenfur, Thornclaw and Brightheart (Frostfur Kits). Tiger star Tigerstar, a huge, muscular dark brown tabby tom with amber eyes and unusually long front claws, is the main antagonist of the original series and pursues many cat dreams in the series The New Prophecy and Power of Three. He also plays an important role in the Omen of the Stars series, leads the Dark Forest to train clan cats and lead them into a battle against StarClan and the four clans, and he was a senior warrior in the ranks of ThunderClan when Firepaw was brought into the forest. The two never fully understand each other, and Tigerclaw's hostility to Fireheart grows even greater when Fireheart discovers his plan to take over the clan. Tigerclaw is a master of deception and manipulation and is able to go through with the death of his uncle Redtail (an act he himself committed) as the work of Oakheart from RiverClan. He wants to become a surrogate, but Bluestar appoints Lionheart, who is older and more experienced, as her deputy instead. However, when Lionheart later dies of wounds sustained in a ShadowClan attack in Into the Wild, Tigerclaw becomes a proxy, securing his ultimate place as leader. When he finally becomes a deputy, he secretly plans with Brokentail and his gang of roque outlaws to kill Bluestar, while making the entire scene look like an attack he couldn't defend himself against, killing a villain Bluestar. The plan is almost successful, but Fireheart stops it at the last moment, and as a result Tigerclaw is banished from the clan. As a villain, Tigerclaw gathers a of allies (including the ShadowClan warriors Nightwhisper and Blackfoot) and kills Mousefur's brother Runningwind. Tigerclaw then persuades ShadowClan to accept him their leader and becomes Tigerstar, the rank he has worked so hard. [14] From his new position of authority, he can hide his true nature from the other clans and secretly lures a pack of wild dogs into ThunderClan's territory to take revenge on his former clan mate while saving only his kits, Bramblekit and Tawnykit. He only plans to save his kits, but not his buddy of Redtail, whom he also killed, to give the dogs a taste for cat blood when they enter the Thunderclan camp. [9] When this plan is thwarted by Firestar and the others, Tigerstar hatches a plan to rule the entire forest while using the services of the ruthless BloodClan to intimidate the other clans into submission. Just as he has betrayed all his other former allies, he intends to betray BloodClan once he has united all the clans under his rule. Tigerstar, however, underestimates the power of Scourge, the undersized black Tom who leads BloodClan. When Scosel refuses to obey Tigerstar's order to fight the clans, TigerStar attacks him furiously, but Scourge easily kills him by giving him up from chin to tail with his claws reinforced with dog teeth. This devastating blow deprives all nine lives of Tiger Star at once, causing him to die nine times, one life at a time. In the series New Prophecy, Tigerstar visits his sons Brambleclaw and Hawkfrost in their dreams and prepares them to take over the clans for him. It is revealed that he was denied access to StarClan because of his evil deeds and was banished with Darkstripe to a dark, shady forest known as The Dark Forest (also known as the Place of Stars). [15] He visits his two sons Brambleclaw is reluctant to be influenced by his father, Hawkfrost welcomes his advice and plans to take control of the clans, much like his father. Brambleclaw killed Hawkfrost at sunset. [13] Tigerstar also stars in the Power of Three series as a combat mentor for Lionblaze, along with his dead son Hawkfrost. The consequences of his actions do not appear to harm the clans; Lionblaze becomes a masterful fighter among Tigerstars influence and is characterized by combat skills that go far beyond any other apprentice. Whether Lionblaze is part of another plan that Tiger Star has said that he should not do so. [Quote Required] Lionblaze revolts against Tiger star on Sunrise after learning that Tigerstar always knew Squirrelflight wasn't Jayfeather, Hollyleaf and Lionblaze's mother. Lionblaze is able to defeat him, but to kill him and Tigerstar stays in the Dark Forest. In The Last Hope, Tigerstar leads the other Dark Forest cats in an attack against the clans, and when Hawkfrost, Darkstripe and Brokenstar are killed for the second time, he steps forward and explains that the fight has only just begun. [16] After a long duel, Tigerstar is killed by his longtime rival Firestar and fades permanently. Tigerclaw was mentored by Thistleclaw, an ambitious and aggressive cat (this only magnified Tigerstar's own aggressive personality). [4] Tigerclaw takes Ravenpaw as an apprentice for a short time before Firepaw and Greypaw send him to Barley. [1] He has five direct kits: Tawnypelt and Brambleclaw from Goldenflower and Mothwing, Hawkfrost and Tadpole by Sasha. Tadpole is not shown in history because he drowned as a kit. [17] Firestar's Quest reveals that Tigerstar is a direct descendant of the kits of Birdflight, a SkyClan leader, and she hid in ThunderClan during the SkyClan exile, with her two kits Spottedpelt and Gorseclaw, who were too young to make the trip at the time. This makes him part-SkyClan, along with his aunt Spottedleaf. [11] It is also revealed in Code of the Clans and then Bluestar, the old ThunderClan leader who left his clan to be a kitten while he was his last life. His mother was Leopardfoot, who was Patchpelt's, Willowpelt's, Spottedleaf's and Redtail's sister, and his siblings were Nightkit and Mistkit, both of them kits, who died shortly after birth. He was the last born and weakest of his litter. [4] He is also a cousin of Sorreltail, Sootfur and Rainwhisker (Willowpelt's kits), Longtail and Graystripe (Patchpelt's kits) and Sandstorm (Redtail's kit). Grandcousin to Poppyfrost, Cinderheart, Molepaw, Honeyfern, Seedkit and Lilykit (Sorreltail Kits), Stormfur, Feathertail, Briarlight, Bumblestripe and Blossomfall (Greystripe Kits) and Squirrelflight and Leafpool (Sandstorms Kits). Great-grandfather of Jayfeather, Hollyleaf and Lionblaze (Leafpool's Kits) Cherrykit and Molekit (Poppyfrosts Kits) and Lark That Sings At Dawn (Lark) and Pine That Clings To Rock (Pine) (Stormfurs Kits). His grandchildren are Flametail and Tigerheart, and his grandchildren are Flame much of the series The New Prophecy. Originally trained as a warrior under Fireheart's mentoring, but she is seriously injured and crippled by a monster when she falls into a trap the Tigerclaw has laid for Bluestar, she is permanently injured in the leg and can not become a warrior. [8] Soon after the beginning of their training for the Cat Apprentice under Yellowfang she gets the title of a full-fledged medical cat in Forest of Secrets (although she is still called Cinderpaw until the series and remains his trusted advisor whenever he needs spiritual guidance. Initially overexcited and bouncy, she often overwhelms Firestar as an apprentice and often falls on her own. After she has started training as a medical cat, her personality matures strongly and she never stopped loving him, although Firestar himself never recognizes this and Cinderpelt never tells him. Although she has always wanted to be a warrior, she accepts her new destiny and dedicates her life to the legendary medical cat. Cinderpelt tried to save Silverstream while she gave birth to Graystrip's kits. She loses Silverstream, but if not for her, the kits (Stormkit and Featherkit, later Stormfur and Feathertail) would have died. Cinderpelt, however, blames himself for Silverstream's death. Cinderpelt is killed in Twilight of The New Prophecy Series while defending Sorreltail and her newborn kits in the nursery from a marauding badger. StarClan had originally designated Cinderpelt as a warrior, and they had no precinct for her to be caught in Tigerstar's trap on the Thunder Trail. As a test of her loyalty, StarClan told Cinderpelt of her impending death in Twilight before it happened, a secret that Cinderpelt kept secret, even when her apprentice Leafpool promised to leave the clan. As a reward, Cinderpelt was reinstated after her death in one of the kits she defended, Cinderheart in the Power of Three series. Cinderheart herself is unaware of this, but she occasionally shows knowledge that she cannot explain from her previous life, as well as Cinderpelt's true fate, came true when Jayfeather revealed it to her in a dream. Shortly before the battle in The Last Hope, Cinderheart decides to be a warrior and Lionblaze's buddy, and Cinderpelt leaves Cinderheart's body and whispers, thank you. Cinderpelt leaves Cinderheart's body and looked after her cousin Sandstorm's daughter, Leafpool, as her successor. Her mother is Frostfur, which makes Thornclaw and Brightheart her siblings. Her brother Brackenfur is the father of Cinderheart, a situation that is somewhat confusing given Cinderpelt's reincarnation. So that would mean that Cinderpelt's reincarnation. So that would mean that Cinderpelt's reincarnation that is somewhat confusing given Cinderheart is related to Bluestar since Sorreltail's father was Whitestorm, who was Bluestar's nephew. Spottedleaf Spottedleaf is a dark tortoise, with amber eves, a white muzzle, white paws, a white breast, a black-pointed tail and a black striped tail. Despite her early death in Into the Wild, she played some smaller and slightly important roles in series, after which she appeared in Firestar's Dreams. Originally Spottedleaf ThunderClan's medical cat was at the beginning of Into the Wild and prophesied the original series prophecy Fire alone can save our Clan. Firestar, when he is first introduced to the camp, immediately takes away her fondness and is said to be beginning to return his feelings. Unfortunately, she is killed by ShadowClan raid at the end of Into the Wild. [1] Spottedleaf is perhaps the most prominent member of StarClan and often serves as a spiritual guide to the main characters of each series, especially Firestar, whom she falls in love with during his adventures in the original series. She is often seen as a source of comfort and presents cryptic warnings and messages to cats informing her of future events. Since she is dead, she cannot play a more prominent role in the life of the cats she watches over, which often frustrates her about Firestar's burgeoning relationship with her niece Sandstorm. It is revealed that she accepts her position and acknowledges Sandstorm in a dream of her own to reassure the living cat of Firestar's loyalty. [11] After not finding an apprentice at the time of her death, Yellowfang is the new medical cat when she joins thunderClan. [1] Firestar's Quest reveals that Spottedleaf is a direct descendant of the kits of Birdflight, a SkyClan cat that remained with ThunderClan during SkyClan's exile. Therefore, it is part-SkyClan and allowed to go in the sky of SkyClan's warrior ancestor of the Tigerstar line, so Spottedleaf was related to Tigerstar, Brambleclaw, Mothwing, Hawkfrost, Tadpole, Tawnypelt and Tawnypelts Kits Flametail, Dawnpelt and Tigerheart. [11] Spottedleaf was cared for by Featherwhisker, the medical cat in front of her. [4] She goes into the dreams of Firestar, Leafpool and Jayfeather. After Spottedleaf died, Yellowfang became the medical cat and took Cinderpelt as an apprentice after her accident. Her parents were Adderfang and Swiftbreeze, which made her To Patchpelt, Leopardfoot, Willowpelt and Redtail. She is also an aunt of Mistkit, Nightkit and (Leopardfoot kits), Sorreltail, Rainwhisker and Sootfur (Willowpelt kits) and Sandstorm (Redtail's daughter) and great-aunt of Brambleclaw, Tawnypelt, Hawkfrost, Mothwing and Tadpole (Tigerstar Kits), Poppyfrost, Cinderheart, Honeyfern and Molepaw (Sorreltails Kits) and She is a great-great aunt of Tigerheart, Flametail and Dawnpelts (Leafpools Kits) and Cherryfall and Mohislewker In The Last Hope, she and StarClan fight alongside the old, Midnight of the badger and living clans. During the fighting, she saves Sandstorm from Mapleshade, but is killed herself. As a StarClan cat, this caused her mind to fade permanently. But she knew this had to happen, her last gift to her beloved Fire Star. Cloudtail Cloudtail, a long-sighted snow-white Tom with round blue eyes, is a ThunderClan warrior that was first introduced as a kit, cloud kit, in fire and ice. He is the son of Princess, Firestar's Kittypet sister, and Oliver, and is Firestar's nephew. He has four Littermates, Zack, Taylor, Nami and Livy. When she learned that her kits were to be given away by her two-leg owners, Princess Firestar gave her oldest kit because she wanted him to be a hero. as Firestar is. Initially. Cloudkit was rejected by many members of ThunderClan, including Bluestar itself, because the clan was unwilling to add another Kittypet to its ranks. Cloudtail grew up as a disrespectful, annoying, noisy apprentice who often refuses to listen to his mentor Firestar. He understands the warrior code slowly and often takes selfish actions that benefit him and not the clan. His loyalty to the clan is finally established when, after sneaking away to ask for food from Twolegs, he is captured and taken to a suburb on the other side of WindClan Territory near Barley's Farm. Firestar and Sandstorm save him with Ravenpaw's help. After his return to ThunderClan, he is asked guestions and describes his time with the Twolegs as a capture and greatly exaggerates his story. This event is used to solidify Cloudtail's place in the clan, and he then behaves much more maturely towards his clan. Although he has become a loyal warrior, Cloudtail has maintained much of his attitude and is one of the most aggressive cats in the clan; He is known for his sharp tongue and is often one of the first cats to jump on the prospect of a fight. Cloudtail didn't believe in StarClan in the first series, which made him one of two clan cats in the series, the other mothwing, the RiverClan medicine cat). However, when dealing with his buddy Brightheart, he shows a clear Page. Cloudtail is primarily responsible for training Brightheart to help them His personality aside, Cloudtail is friendly to most cats (assuming they are not from another clan). He has a daughter with Brightheart, Whitewing. Later in The Last Hope, he and Brightheart have another daughter, Amberkit, and two sons, Dewkit and Snowbush's Kits, Honeypaw, Leafpaw and Larkpaw. As the nephew of Firestar, he also shares related lines of Firestar, including Leafpool, Squirrelflight and Jayfeather, Hollyleaf and Lionblaze. In the second half of The New Prophecy, he shows interest in Daisy, a horse cat. He is unaware that Daisy is in love with him, but as soon as he realizes that he is hurting his buddy Brightheart, he decides to stay with Brightheart and rekindles his relationship with her. [13] Cloudtail oversaw Cinderheart, Rainwhisker and Toadstep, as well as the temporary training of Flamepaw of ShadowClan in Long Shadows. He is the grandfather of Dovewing and Ivypool. Brightheart, a white cat with ginger patches on its back, a ginger tail, a missing eye and a disfigured ear, is a ThunderClan warrior featured in Forest of Secrets. Brightpaw, remained apprentices for an unusually long time, as Bluestar had betrayed Tigerclaw. [12] Brightpaw develops a close friendship with Cloudpaw and is the first apprentice to congratulate him after his promotion to warrior status, while the other apprentices are jealous and angry that they were not promoted. In A Dangerous Path, Brightpaw joins an unauthorized expedition led by Swiftpaw into the lair of a pack of dogs to prove worthy to become a warrior. However, the mission is a failure: Swiftpaw is killed, and Brightpaw is seriously injured by the pack of dogs. Half of Brightheart's face is disfigured due to her injuries, including a missing eye and a scarred ear that prompted Bluestar to give her the warrior name Lostface. Firestar will change this to Brightheart later when he becomes leader. Although Brightheart was initially deterred by her injuries, she will soon be able to use Cloudtail to develop a combat system that leverages her one-sided vision and makes her as effective in combat as any other warrior. [9] She shies away from the sight of her own face and sometimes flies when other cats are face be frightened. Brightheart, however, is warm and friendly to many warriors in the clan. She takes over the duties of an unofficial medical cat in the second half of the series The New Prophecy and becomes the object of Leafpool's Leafpoo grudge about Daisy, who often flirts and spends time with her pal Cloudtail. [18] However, after Leafpool Cloudtail points out that he is hurting Brightheart. Brightheart was cared for by Whitestorm, who also cared for her cousin Sandstorm, and had since taken Sandstorm's grandson Jayfeather as an apprentice, although this was only temporary because Jayfeather later took on the role of the medical cat. She seems to have been hurt by this, probably because she was desperate to prove to herself and the clan that she can still function as well as a normal warrior. Despite Jaypaw's prickly attitude towards her during his apprenticeship, he is able to feel her feelings and is sympathetically warmer to her when he becomes a medical cat. [19] Her mother is Frostfur, which makes her the sibling of Thornclaw, Cinderpelt and Brackenfur. She and her pal Cloudtail currently have two daughters and two sons. Whitewing is her eldest daughter, who was born much earlier than her siblings. Later, Brightheart and Cloudtail have another daughter, Amberkit, and two sons, Snowkit and Dewkit, during the course of The Last Hope. She is also the aunt of Poppyfrost, Honeyfern, Cinderheart and Molepaw (Brackenfur's Kits) grandson of Cherrykit and Molekit (Poppyfrost Kits), and grandmother of Dovewing, Ivypool (Whitewings Kits), Leafpaw, Larkpaw and Honeypaw (Snowbush and Lilyheart Kits). Brackenfur, a muscular golden-brown tabby tom, is a ThunderClan warrior first introduced in Fire and Ice as an apprentice, Brackenfur, a muscular golden-brown tabby tom, is a ThunderClan warrior first introduced in Fire and Ice as an apprentice, Brackenfur, a muscular golden-brown tabby tom, is a Thornclaw, and he trained as an apprentice under Firestar and Graystripe. [8] Firestar, who was fireheart at the time, often took over his training when Graystripe left the camp to meet Silverstream, although the encounter with cats outside his own clan was against the warrior code when he became a warrior in the Forest of Secrets. [12] He is considered by Firestar to be ThunderClan's deputy in Sunset, but is not selected after Leafpool has received a character from StarClan that interprets it as a hint to select Brambleclaw instead. [13] In the New Prophecy Series, Brackenfur takes Sorreltail as a partner and has six kits with him: Molepaw (who dies of illness between the new prophecy and the power of the threesome series),[19] Poppyfrost, Honeyfern, Cinderheart (later as reincarnation of Cinderpelt, his sister) and Lilykit and Seedkit, who were born in omen. He is the grandfather of Cherrypaw and Molepaw (Poppyfrosts Brackenfur mentored Tawnypelt (before she left ThunderClan to join ShadowClan), Whitewing and Hollyleaf. He also trained Tigerpaw for a while, when Tawnypelt and their kits left ShadowClan for ThunderClan in Long Shadows. [21] Ravenpaw, a slender, almost all-black (except for the tip of his tail and a small line on the chest that is white) tom with green eyes, is a current loner who was first introduced as a ThunderClan apprentice in Into the Wild. After Firepaw is admitted to the forest, he trains with Graypaw and Firepaw and the three become good friends. Ravenpaw is nervous and shy about his clan mates, especially because his mentor, Tigerclaw, treats him harshly and often insults him in front of the other warriors. Part of this is because Ravenpaw Tigerclaw saw murder Redtail, the ThunderClan deputy. Finally, Tigerclaw decides that Ravenpaw's narrative skills are too dangerous, and plans to kill him to protect his secret. Firepaw discovers this and, together with Graypaw Ravenpaw, points across the WindClan border to hide in Barley's barn while telling the rest of the clan that he is dead. [1] Firepaw brings Ravenpaw to the barn, and he seems to enjoy his life with Barley. He loses his old nervousness and becomes much more confident and open-minded, while reserving a faithful gratitude to his former clan mates. His situation is present throughout the series: while some outsiders seem to have been born in a clan like kittens, there are also cats born in the clan whose fates lie elsewhere. Ravenpaw returns at various times during the series to provide help or protection to cats traveling through its territory, especially to feed and host all forest clans as they move to Dawn. [22] Ravenpaw also assists Firestar and Greystripe in retrieving Graystrip's kits from RiverClan during Tigerstar's cruel clan leadership in The Darkest Hour. He then returns to the clan with BloodClan. [10] While protecting the forest cats in Dawn, Firestar asks Ravenpaw to join ThunderClan and travel with them to the lake. Ravenpaw says no and says he's happier to be a loner than he would ever be in a clan. His parents were Robinwing and Fuzzypelt, which made him the brother of Frostfur, Brindleface and Dustpelt, uncle of Brackenfur, Brightheart, Cinderpelt and Thornclaw (Frostfur's kits), sandstorm, Ashfur and Ferncloud (Brindlefaces Kits) Spiderleg, Shrewpaw, Birchfall, Hollykit, Larchkit, Icecloud and Foxleap (Dustpelts Kits), Great Uncles of Squirrelflight and Leafpool (Sandstorms Daughters), Spiderleg, Shrewpaw, Birchfall, Hollykit, Larchkit, Icecloud and Foxleap (Dustpelts Kits), Great Uncles of Squirrelflight and Molepaw (Brackenfur Kits), Rosepetal and Toadstep (Spiderlegs Kits) and Dovewing and Ivypool (Birchfalls Daughters). Currently has a manga series about him and his encounter with some old BloodClan cats. [23] In the Ultimate Guide, Ravenpaw is one of the members of Starclan, which gives Bramblestar his nine lives. Dustpelt Dustpelt, a dark brown tabby tom with amber eyes, is a ThunderClan warrior who was introduced as an apprentice in Into the Wild. He had recently been made an apprentice, Dustpaw, when Firepaw first joined the clan. He was cared for by Redtail and after Redtail's death by Darkstripe. He was one of the cats that didn't like Firepaw, like Sandpaw; However, this will become less important if the story continues. [1] He becomes a warrior, Dustpelt, in fire and ice. [8] Originally an ally and strong supporter of Tigerclaw, Dustpelt was horrified when he discovered that Tigerclaw murdered his mentor Redtail and rejected him in front of the clan when Tigerclaw was exiled. [12] Although Dustpelt's loyalty to his clan (and his Kittypet leader) is usually portrayed as a reluctant ally of Firestar, he is therefore significant and a valued warrior. Dustpelt is an experienced fighter and is present in most attack parties. He is also a warm-hearted and committed father who has experienced the death of three of his kits, and ensures that he maintains a strong presence in both the life of his kits and the life of his buddy Ferncloud. Dustpelt's kits, both alive and dead, include Hollykit, Larchkit, Shrewpaw, Foxleap, Icecloud, Birchfall and Spiderleg, one of which, Birchfall, is still alive. His grandchildren, Toadstep and Rosepetal, are the kits of Spiderleg and his buddy daisy, and Dovewing and Ivypool, who are the kits of Birchfall and Whitewing. Over the course of the series, Dustpelt has supervised sorreltail for a short time. Darkstripe Darkstripe, a slender black-grey tabby Tom, is an antagonist and warrior in ThunderClan for most of the original series. He is a rude, nasty and unpleasant person who has a very negative opinion of Firestar throughout the series. He is the closest friend and biggest supporter of Tigerstar's ambitions. Darkstripe regularly speaks out at clan meetings, refuses to trust Firestar because he is kitten-like, and openly mocks any cat who thinks differently. When Tigerstar didn't include him in his plan to kill Bluestar (he didn't seem to have a problem with Tigerstar's plan himself, but that he wasn't allowed to be a part of it). [12] Darkstrip's lonely path of a devoted follower his popularity in the clan continues, and in A Dangerous Path he secretly begins to plan with Tigerstar's children Bramblekit and Tawnykit from the resulting chaos, but not Tigerstar's buddy Goldenflower. [9] After failing, he tries to kill his half-sister Sorrelkit (later Sorrelkit) with death berries when she discovers his encounters with Blackfoot, Tigerstar's deputy, and he is expelled from the clan. Darkstripe immediately runs tigerstar aside and kills one of Bluestar's children, Stonefur, but when Tigerstar is killed by scourge, Darkstripe is left completely alone. His resulting madness culminates in the battle with BloodClan during the darkest hour; he renounces any loyalty to his clan and tries to assassinate Firestar's death. He is stopped and killed by his half-brother Graystripe during the battle. [10] Darkstripe oversaw Longtail, Dustpelt and Ferncloud, although his mentorship for Ferncloud was revoked when he was expelled from the clan. He was cared for by Tigerclaw. His mother was Willowpelt and his father was Tawnyspots, and it can be insinuated by his personality that hardly any cat liked him very much. He is shown during the prologue of Sunset to hike the Dark Forest/Place of No Stars like Tiger Star, Brokentail and finally Hawkfrost and all the other clan cats that are considered traitors and evils. [13] In Code of the Clans, he hunts with longtail. When Longtail catches a plump squirrel, Darkstripe encourages them to eat it because prey is scarce. After eating and returning to the camp with a smaller catch, Poppydawn, who needs food, dies from a case of Greencough. While Longtail feels guilty, Darkstripe doesn't care. Longtail Longtail, a pale yellow tabby tom with black stripes and a very long tail, is a recurring ThunderClan warrior introduced in Into the Wild. He is the first to challenge Firestar for his kitten origin and fights him when he first arrives in the clan. This causes Firestar's collar to be torn off, which is then taken as a sign that it will be added to the clan. Longtail's ear is torn, resulting in a scar. Longtail has a grudge against Firestar for much of the series, not only because an apprentice beat him and gave him his scar, but also because he, Longtail, was a strong supporter of Tigerclaw, Firestar's main rival. [1] Longtail's attitude matures slowly throughout the series, and he develops a possible respect for Firestar as a result of his repeatedly proven courage, something that Longtail lacks. He rescinds his allegiance to Tigerclaw after he was exiled for treason, and prepares to become a respected warrior within the clan. His loyalty is Proven if he is voluntarily bait for tiger stars malignant dog pack. While still annoying Firestar to some extent, he recognizes that his clan's safety is much more important and warns him of his cousin Tigerstar's dark plans from the other side of the as well as the false loyalty of his cousin Darkstripe during Rising Storm and A Dangerous Path. [9] Longtail finally fights BloodClan alongside Firestar during the events of The Darkest Hour, after finally finding his true place in the clan and Firestar's Quest. [11] He remains in the clan as an elder in the series The New Prophecy and Power of Three, although he is only slightly older than Firestar. He was mentored by Darkstripe and mentored Swiftpaw, his niece Ferncloud and his cousin Sootfur (before he was killed by a falling tree in Fading Echoes while trying to get a piece of freshproduce for Mousefur. Longtail was the oldest cat in ThunderClan. His parents were Patchpelt and Robinwing. Longtail is also the half-brother of Greystripe. In Code of the Clans, he hunts with Darkstripe. When he catches a plump squirrel, Darkstripe encourages them to eat it because prey is scarce. After eating and returning to the camp, Poppydawn, who needs food, dies from a case of Greencough. Longtail feels guilty, Darkstripe doesn't. Mousefur, a small dark brown cat, is a ThunderClan warrior introduced in Into the Wild. [1] She is a respected warrior in the clan and is known for her strong personality, similar to Cloudtail and Speckletail. Mousefur was one of the cats who volunteered as bait for the dog pack. [9] Mousefur is usually friendly to Firestar, but it is known that she changes her attitude towards him depending on the situation. Mousefur often belongs to any group of cats who express a counter-opinion to an important decision and force the clan to look at a topic from an opposite perspective. However, despite her many arguments and aggressive pride, she usually agrees to the right choice in a certain situation. Mousefur's age prompts her to join the elders in Starlight in the series The New Prophecy, where she is still alive. [3] Since then, she has fallen ill several times, and more recently she caught Greencough and prompted Jaypaw to experience his first medical epidemic as a medical cat in The Sight. [19] Mousefur and Longtail have become unlikely friends because they share the elders' cave, and often playfully bicker back and forth, much like Yellowfang and Cinderpelt. Although she sometimes refuses to take herbs or prey because of her stubbornness (or thoughtfulness), she insists that the younger cats need her more. She even volunteers to help Cats in Long Shadows because she thinks her life as an elder is less valuable than the younger cats. She asked Brambleclaw this, even though Firestar had already rejected her application, only to brambleclaw. [25] Mousefur was killed by a Dark Forest warrior in The Last Hope. Mousefur was a mentor to Thornclaw and Spiderleg. Mousefur's parents are halftail and one-eye, and her brother is running wind. Thornclaw Thornclaw, a golden-brown tabby tom, first appears in Forest of Secrets as young ThunderClan apprentice Thornpaw. [12] He is an apprentice for much of the original series, along with Brightpaw, Cloudpaw and Swiftpaw, mainly due to bluestar's descent into paranoia during the final half of the original series and she refused to trust any of her warriors. When she died, the newly appointed Firestar performed his first naming ceremony on Thornclaw and eventually made the voung Tom a warrior. [10] Thornclaw's personality begins to show itself during the New Prophecy and Power of the Three, where he presents himself as a warrior of war, very similar to Brackenfur in manner and attitude. He is an excellent fighter and is often chosen to help with battle parties and long-range patrols. Thornclaw, like Brackenfur, gets a little concerned about the growing number of non-clan cats that are present in ThunderClan during the Power of Three series, as well as at Firestar because they accept them. This is primarily due to the increasing hostility of the other three clans, which are beginning to make claims that ThunderClan is becoming watered down and weak. Despite these feelings, Thornclaw is always portrayed as a kind, caring and patient cat and has never proved unfaithful. When Hollyleaf returns in The Forgotten Warrior, he is one of the cats who distrustherhers her. Thornclaw's mother is Frostfur and his father Is Lionheart. His siblings are Brightheart, Brackenfur and Cinderpelt. As a result, Thornclaw is uncle at both Brightheart's and Brackenfur' kits, including Whitewing, Cinderheart, Honeyfern, Poppyfrost, Lilyheart, Seedpaw, Cherrypaw and Molepaw, and great-uncles of Dovewing and Ivypool (Whitewings Kits) and Cherrykit and Molekit (Poppyfrosts Kits). He was supervised by Mousefur and supervised Sootfur, Shrewpaw, Poppyfrost and Briarlight. Thornclaw is also nephew of Brindleface (Frostfur's parents), cousin of Sandstorm, Ashfur and Ferncloud (Brindleface kits), second cousin of Spiderleg, Shrewpaw, Birchfall, Hollykit, Larchkit, Foxleap and Icecloud (Fernclouds Kits) and third cousin of Toadstep and Rosepetal Whitestorm, a tall white Tom with yellow eyes, was a senior ThunderClan warrior in the original series. He was one of the few cats that always treated Firestar with kindness when he was first brought to ThunderClan often gave him advice when he felt that he was worried. [1] Whitestorm was a gallant fighter, but was always more reserved than bloodthirsty and carries a thoughtful demeanor. Although it is one of the Experienced older warriors in the clan, Whitestorm has no ambition to become a clan leader and as such offers his wisdom to younger cats entirely out of good will. He supported Firestar's Depression clan deputy, and occasionally takes over for him when Firestar's nephew, because her sister Snowfur was his mother, Whitestorm was one of the warriors closest to her, often staying by her side to comfort her and preserve her medical care when she succumbed to paranoia through the later books. Eventually, Firestar appointed Whitestorm as his deputy in recognition of all his advice, a promotion he unexpectedly rejoiced at (a trait that Firestar admires given the ambitions of previous cats he had encountered). Whitestorm was killed by Bone during the battle with BloodClan in The Darkest Hour, his last wish was for Firestar to appoint Graystripe as his new deputy, which is granted. [10] Whitestorm's buddy was Willowpelt. With Willowpelt he fathered Sorreltail, Sootfur and Rainwhisker. As such, he was the grandfather of Sorreltails Kits, Cinderheart, Molekit, Honeyfern, Poppyfrost, Seedpaw and Lilyheart. And is the great-grandfather of Molepaw and Cherrypaw (Poppyfrosts Kits). Snowfur's parents were Bluestar (Snowfur's sister), Sweetpaw and Rosetail, because her brother Thistleclaw was his father, who made Poppydawn and Windflight, their parents, his paternal grandparents. [4] He was mentored by Patchpelt and later mentored By patchpelt's niece Sandstorm and later Sandstorm and later sector (Poppydawn's brother) and great-great-grandson of Sweetbriar (Pinestar's mother). Yellowfang Yellowfang, a dark grey cat with bright orange eves and a flat, wide face with two scars on the muzzle. She is ThunderClan's medical cat of ShadowClan and formed a forbidden relationship with ShadowClan's leader Raggedstar (because medical cats are not supposed to have mates), which led to her giving birth to three kits. Two of these kits died, and the third, Brokentail, eventually lived and forced his way to the leader of ShadowClan by killing his father Raggedstar. Yellowfang believed that the consequences of her actions were not that her other two kits died, but that Brokenstar survived to take over ShadowClan. Yellowfang was banished from the camp when Brokenstar, who never knew who his real mother was, blamed her for the death of two kits, which he forced to train too early Yellowfang succeeded her as ThunderClan's new medical cat. After. Yellowfang feeds Brokenstar with death berries after being captured and killed by ThunderClan. [1] Yellowfang shows most cats she encounters, especially Cinderpelt and Fireheart, a rough and irritable personality. She speaks the blunt truth quite often and refuses to soften her words, because she feels that it would dilute the truth of the matter. Yellowfang has a close friendship with Firepaw beyond the first meeting, in which the two attack each other. She is impressed by Firepaw's potential and acts as a surrogate mother throughout his training. When Cinderpelt is injured and her chances of becoming belligerent are squandered, Yellowfang trains her as a medical cat. [8] Her personality collides with that of Cinderpelt, and the two often playfully argue back and forth; Yellowfang dies from smoke inhalation in the large fire that destroyed much of the ThunderClan camp during the events of Rising Storm. Her last words are Fireheart, who tell him that he was the son she had always wanted. [14] Yellowfang cared for Runningnose as a medical cat in ShadowClan, who, despite her exile, paid her great respect. She then supervised Cinderpelt in ThunderClan. Yellowfang's mentor is Sagewhisker. In the Power of Three series, Yellowfang is one of the first StarClan cats to recognize Jaypaw's ability to overcome dreams. She also argues with Bluestar and other members of StarClan about the prophecy about Jaypaw and his siblings and says that the cats of StarClan deliberately deceive the three for an as yet unknown reason, but most likely refers to the fact that Leafpool is their mother. She appears in The Forgotten Warrior to tell Jayfeather that Cinderheart needs to know who she really is. In The Last Hope, Yellowfang kills the spirit of Brokenstar, fades forever. The New Prophecy Series The New Prophecy Series time in the original series, but had smaller or insignificant roles. In addition, as with the original series, most of the characters listed here also play a minor or significant role in the following series, Power of Three. The series revolves around tigerstars and Firestar's children as the clans find a new home thanks to the two legs that destroy it Ashfur. A muscular light grey Tom with darker spots and dark blue eyes, was a ThunderClan warrior who was introduced unnamed in the original series but was later called Ashpaw. During the original series, he and Fernpaw willingly served as bait for the ThunderClan's camp threatened and run ahead of them to lead them off course because they lost their mother Brindleface to Tigerstar. [9] In Into the Wild, there is a ShadowClan elder named Ashfur. [1] He died in Rising Storm, but since ThunderClan's Ashfur was ashpaw at the time, there was no name collision. [14] Ashfur is deeply committed to the Warrior Code and, like other warriors such as his brother-in-law Dustpelt and his cousin Thornclaw, has concerns about the increasing number of half-clan and roque cats allowed to join ThunderClan. During the events of The New Prophecy, he falls in love with Squirrelflight finally tells him that she was in love with Brambleclaw and not with him. [13] Ashfur's resentment of Brambleclaw is also unconsciously motivated; He was never able to forgive Brambleclaw for the actions of his father Tigerstar, especially his killing of his mother Brindleface. In the series Power of Three, Ashfur shows his displeasure at Squirrelflight's decision to start a family with Brambleclaw. During a sparring game between him and his apprentice, Lionpaw, Brambleclaw's son, for example, he becomes bitterly hostile. In Long Shadows, however, it is revealed that he was never angry with Brambleclaw, only Squirrelflight. It was he who helped Hawkfrost kill Firestar in Sunset because he wanted Squirrelflight to suffer the pain of losing her father in retaliation for choosing Brambleclaw over him. He tries to do this again by trying to kill Lionblaze, Jayfeather and Hollyleaf in the forest fire in Long Shadows, but he releases them when Squirrelflight reveals they are not their kits. He vows to tell all the cats at the upcoming gathering, which he claims will destroy Squirrelflight by losing Lionblaze, Jayfeather and Hollyleaf, Brambleclaw will have nothing to do with her, and no cat in any clan would respect her. At the end of Long Shadows, before he gets the chance, he is mysteriously killed and his body is found floating in the stream of WindClan Territory. Most of ThunderClan's cats suspect it was a WindClan patrol, but it seemed to imply that Squirrelflight killed him. [25] The fact that Firestar did not mention Ashfur's death at the meeting may have been significant. Many people felt that Squirrelflight did not kill Ashfur, and the authors instead tried to surprise readers. Another suspected killer among the fans was Sol (although he didn't seem to have a motive). In Sunrise, his killer was exposed as Hollyleaf, not A Squirrelflight. [26] Ashfur's mentor was Dustpelt. Lionblaze and his nephew Birchfall. His mother is Brindleface. Brindl He is also the foster brother of Cloudtail, as his mother Brindleface served as the surrogate mother of Cloudtail in the clan. His aunt was Frostfur and made him his cousin to Brackenfur, Brightheart, Cinderpelt and Thornclaw. Omen of the Stars reveals that he was allowed to join StarClan instead of being sent to the Dark Forest because his only mistake was to love Squirrelflight too much. He is said to have forgiven Hollyleaf for killing him when she entered the ranks of StarClan. Ashfur probably fought the Dark Forest, although this was not confirmed. Bramblestar Bramblestar, first introduced as Bramblekit and later known as Brambleclaw, is a huge, muscular dark brown tabby tom with amber eyes. In A Dangerous Path, he becomes Firestar's apprentice and is known as Bramblepaw for the rest of the original series. [9] He gets his warrior name Brambleclaw at the beginning of Firestar's Quest. [11] Bramblestar is the current ThunderClan leader, but he is often asked about his loyalties because of his murderous dead father Tigerstar. He receives a message from the dead Bluestar, where she tells him to travel with his sister Tawnypelt, Crowfeather, Feathertail and her brother Stormfur and Firestar's daughter Squirrelflight. The cats travel to the Sunshine Square to find the Badger Midnight, who tells them that the clans need to find a new home. Brambleclaw seems to be taking a leading role on her journey. [27] Brambleclaw and the others help the clans find a new home around the lake. Brambleclaw and Brambleclaw's half-brother Hawkfrost, both Tiger Stars' relatives. Tigerstar's goal was to make his two sons ambitious for power, he believes Brambleclaw is too weak to take power himself, so he and his evil son Hawkfrost plan to create a trap for Firestar. Hawkfrost shares his plot with Ashfur, who agrees to help because she wants to cause terrible pain for Squirrelflight because she chose Brambleclaw instead of him. Under the false assumption that Blackstar was waiting at the border, Firestar falls victim to a fox trap. Hawkfrost reveals that he was the one who led Firestar there, hoping Bramblestar would kill Firestar, and planned to kill Brambleclaw if he refused. Brambleclaw kills and frees Firestar. Brambleclaw is later appointed ThunderClan's deputy after Leafpool has a vision of thorn-sharp Brambleclaw kills and frees Firestar. Brambleclaw is later appointed ThunderClan's deputy after Leafpool has a vision of thorn-sharp Brambleclaw kills and frees Firestar. other and become mates, which annoys Ashfur. [13] They apparently have three kits, Jayfeather, Hollyleaf and Lionblaze – but in Long Shadows Squirrelflight admits that Brambleclaw is not the father of her kits, and she didn't have them at all. [25] Brambleclaw himself, according to Squirrelflight, is unaware of this until the end of Sunrise. He gets angry at Squirrelflight for lying to him. [26] The Fourth Apprentice reveals that they are no longer pals for this reason. [28] In The Last Hope, Brambleclaw succeeds Firestar as the leader of ThunderClan and appoints Squirrelflight as his deputy after finally forgiving her for her deception. [16] Brambleclaw supervised Berrynose. Brambleclaw's siblings include Tawnypelt and four half-siblings: Hawkfrost, Mothwing, Tadpole and Swiftpaw. He is the uncle of Tawnypelt's kits, including Tigerheart, Dawnpelt and Flametail. Brambleclaw's parents are Goldenflower and Tiger star, and the Code of the Clans reveals that Brambleclaw's grandparents are Pinestar and Leopardfoot. He is the great-grandson of Sweetbriar (Pinestar's mother), Adderfang and Swiftbreeze (Leopardfoot's parents); His two great-grandmothers are SkyClan. He is also a nephew of Mistkit and Nightkit (Tigerstar's sisters), Lionheart and Snowkit (Goldenflower's brothers) and great-nephew of Patchpelt, Willowpelt, Redtail and Spottedleaf (Leopardfoot's siblings). Squirrel-like tail, is the daughter of Firestar and Sandstorm, as well as the littermate of Leafpool. She and Leafpool have a special telepathic connection where you can always know what the other person thinks or feels. [27] You and Leafkit, in the epilogue of Firestar's Quest. [11] In The New Prophecy, Squirrelflight joins the prophesied cats to find midnight in the sundrenched place, with the prophesied cats Crowpaw, Feathertail, Brambleclaw and his sister Tawnypelt. Stormfur also meets so he can be with Feathertail, his sister. [27] Squirrelflight shows itself to be arrogant with a temperament as an apprentice, but gradually matures during the New Prophecy Series. At first she mocked and annoyed Brambleclaw, but later fell in love with him during her trip, similar to her parents Firestar and Sandstorm. But as Brambleclaw warms up for his half-brother and RiverClan warrior Hawkfrost, Squirrelflight begins to lose faith in him, believing Hawkfrost is as murderously ambitious as his Tiger star and that Brambleclaw will follow in his footsteps. During this time, Squirrelflight began closer to During the rooftop attack at the ThunderClan camp that kills Cinderpelt, Squirrelflight leaves Ashfur to be with Brambleclaw. She tries to stay friends with Ashfur, but he rejects their friendship and feels betrayed. [13] At the end of the New Prophecy Series, Squirrelflight and Brambleclaw apparently have three kits; Jayfeather, Hollyleaf and Lionblaze. Ashfur admits that he was the one who helped Hawkfrost kill Firestar in Sunset to emotionally injure Squirrelflight. Then he tries to kill her three kits in a forest fire, but Squirrelflight reveals that they don't belong to her, so it wouldn't hurt her that much. At the end of Long Shadows, Ashfur is mysteriously found murdered by WindClan Territory, with Squirrelflight being a prime suspect, but it is revealed in Sunrise that Hollyleaf actually killed Ashfur and tried to keep him quiet as he planned to tell the secret that Squirrelflight lied to him about Lionblaze, Hollyleaf and Jayfeather, and in Omen of the Stars they are no longer pals. At the end of The Last Hope, he finally forgives her. When her father dies and Bramblestar's storm, it is revealed that she is not infertile, as yellowfang had already indicated, as she expects Bramblestar's kits. In The Apprentice's Quest she has kits Alderpaw and Sparkpaw.

Alderpaw looks like his father Bramblestar and Sparkpaw looks like her grandfather Firestar. Squirrelflight was supervised by Dustpelt and has overseen Foxleap and Rosepetal. Leafpool, a slender light brown, tabby cat with white paws and amber eyes, is the medical cat of ThunderClan. She is the daughter of Firestar and Sandstorm and the sister of Squirrelflight, with which she shares a unique telepathic connection in which everyone can always know what the other person is feeling. [27] She is mentioned as Kit, Leafkit, named after Leafstar and Spottedleaf, in the epilogue of Firestar's Quest[11] and later as a medical cat, Leafpaw, mentioned in Midnight, supervised by cinderpelt, cousin of her mother (Sandstorm). [27] She makes the Great Journey with the four clans in Dawn[22] and discovers the Moonpool in Starlight, the moonstone equivalent in her newly bedded area. That's why Cinderpelt gives Leafpaw her full medical cat name, Leafpool also receives a frightening prophecy from StarClan: Before there is peace, and the lake will run red. [3] This prophecy meant that Brambleclaw killed Hawkfrost to save Firestar, Leafpool's father. When Leafpool's father. When Leafpool's father. When Leafpool's father. traitor, but when she sees that the blood on his pads was not her father's, but hawkfrosts, she finally understood the prophecy. Brambleclaw had killed his half-brother to save Firestar. She was right about Hawkfrost - he was too ambitious, too much like his father Tiger star - but she never thought Brambleclaw would be the cat to stop him. [13] Leafpool begins to develop feelings for Crowfeather, although they come from different clans, and Leafpool is not allowed to take a partner as he is a medical cat. After Cinderpelt learns that she has met Crowfeather, they try to run away to be in Twilight together. But at midnight, the badger comes to warn the clans of a badger attack, Crowfeather and Leafpool realize how much their clans mean to them, and they decide to return. Unfortunately, Leafpool comes too late to save Cinderpelt when the horde of badgers attack the ThunderClan camp, and constantly expresses guilt for the death of their mentor during the rest of the series. [18] She and Crowfeather agree never to see each other again, although they are both strangely tense for the rest of the books when they meet occasionally. Leafpool becomes the new deputy in Greystrip's absence and that he and Squirrelflight are destined to be mates, as well as the fact that their mentor, Cinderpelt, has been reincarnated as one of Sorreltails Kits, Cinderheart. [13] Spottedleaf also reveals that Mothwing, the RiverClan medical cat and Leafpool's friend, does not believe in StarClan, a result of Hawkfrost, her brother, who led Mudfur to take her as his apprentice and then openly share with her what really happened. Leafpool also appears to tell Crowfeather something, but then denies it after Crowfeather admits he has included a new buddy, Nightcloud, in WindClan. [30] Later, in The Sight, she takes Hollypaw as her apprentice, who later decides to guit and instead become a warrior, and confessed that she would give her. Then Jaypaw, Hollypaw's brother, receives a message from StarClan telling him he needs to be a medical cat, and becomes Leafpool's new apprentice. [19] Leafpool gives him his full Medical Cat Name in Long Shadows. [25] Sunrise reveals that Leafpool is Jayfeather, Jayfeather, Jayfeather, and Hollyleaf means nothing to him. Leafpool apologizes to the clan for their deception and deliberately resigns as a medical cat. Hollyleaf what would be worse: if she stayed alive, denied by Crowfeather, lived without the love of her own kits, and was no longer a medical cat, or died; Hollyleaf stops forcing her and Leafpool walks out of the medical cat. [26] In Omen of the Stars, she became a warrior code through kits. Jayfeather and Hollyleaf, however, seem to regard her as incompetent as a warrior and are still angry at her deception. Lionblaze, however, seems to have forgiven her and respects her and loves her as his mother. After the events of The Last Hope, she becomes a medical cat again and shares the role with Jayfeather. She is also niece of Princess (Firestar's sister), half-niece of Scourge, Ruby and Socks (Firestar's half-siblings), Ashfur and Ferncloud (Sandstorm's half-brother and half-sister), cousin of Cloudtail (princess son), granddaughter of Redtail and Brindleface (Sandstorm's parents), Jake and Muscat (Firestar's parents), Spottedleaf, Patchpelt and Leopardfoot (Redtail's brother and sisters), Dustpelt, Longtail, Ravenpaw and Frostfur (Brindleface's brothers and sister) and greatgranddaughter of Adderfang and Swiftbreeze (Redtail's parents) and Fuzzypelt and Robinwing (Brindleface's parents). Daisy Daisy is a beautiful cream-colored longfur cat with dazzling ice blue eyes who lived with two other cats called Smoky and Floss at the horse's place. She was afraid that the two legs (or Nofurs, as she initially called them) at the horse court would take away her kits from Smoky (originally Berry, Mouse and Hazel) because they had taken Floss's litter away, so she took them to ThunderClan to keep them safe. Cloudtail volunteers to teach her combat movements, and over time she develops feelings for him. She doesn't like training and often complains about the safety of her kits. [3] She decides to go back to the horse field after the badger attack in Twilight, fearing that clan life was too dangerous for her kits, but is persuaded by her kits Berrykit, Mousekit and Hazelkit, along with Brambleclaw and Cloudtail, to return to ThunderClan. It is also revealed that another reason she has left is because she realizes that Cloudtail will never return her feelings for him after seeing him love Brightheart, his buddy. [13] Their kits were trained as ThunderClan warriors and were given their warrior names Berrynose, Mousewhisker and Hazeltail in Outcast. [31] Daisy's first litter was fathered by Smoky, but her Buddy is Spiderleg, with whom she has two kits; Rosekit and Toadkit. In Long Shadows it is that Spiderleg and Daisy are no longer pals and that Spiderleg never really wanted kits. [25] Daisy is a permanent member of ThunderClan, but she is not a warrior; She stays in kindergarten throughout the series to help the queens. In Fading Echoes she becomes grandmother of Cherrykit and Molekit (Berrynose and Poppyfrosts Kits). Ferncloud Ferncloud is a pale grey cat with darker spots and pale green eyes. She is mentored by Darkstripe (and Longtail, after Darkstripe was banished from ThunderClan) as an apprentice, Fernpaw, during the original series. In A Dangerous Path, she helps lure the pack of dogs out of the ThunderClan camp with her brother Ashpaw to avenge the death of her mother Brindleface. [9] She is the partner of Dustpelt and Birchfall; Third litter: Foxleap and Icecloud. Unfortunately, Hollykit and Larchkit die of hunger, while Shrewpaw dies when he is run over by a monster while chasing a pheasant in Dawn. [22] Ferncloud is depicted as a gentle, maternal cat who stays in the nursery where it is best suited. She helps to take care of new kits with Daisy. Like Daisy and Goldenflower, she usually doesn't leave kindergarten, but takes care of kits. Ferncloud is also a niece of Frostfur, Dustpelt and Ravenpaw, granddaughter of Robinwing and Fuzzypelt (Brindleface's parents), cousin of Cinderpelt, Brackenfur, Thornclaw and Brightheart (Frostfur Kits), Grandpa to Whitewing (Brighthearts Daughter), Honeyfern, Molepaw, Poppyfrost and Cinderheart (Brackenfur Kits), Great Grandpa of Cherrypaw and Molepaw (Poppyfrost Kits) Dovewing and Ivypool (Whitewings Daughters), recently Grandmother of Rosepetal and Toadstep , Half-Aunt of Squirrel , Hollyleaf and Lionblaze (Leafpools Kits). Ferncloud is killed during the Great Battle of Brokenstar and eventually reunited with Dustpelt in StarClan. [Quote Required] Rainwhisker A dark grey Tom with blue eyes, Rainwhisker is a ThunderClan warrior who was first introduced in The Darkest Hour as Kit, Rainkit. He is the brother of Sorreltail and soot fur and the son of Willowpelt and Whitestorm. [10] Later, he is an apprentice, Rainpaw, supervised by Cloudtail, in Firestar's Quest. As an apprentice, he was often sent to support Cinderpelt. [11] At some point, he becomes a warrior between Firestar's Quest and Midnight. It is revealed that he was killed by a falling tree branch during a storm between sunset and The Sight. He is the uncle of Sorreltails kits, including Poppyfrost, Honeyfern (deceased) Cinderheart and Molepaw (deceased). is also nephew of Patchpelt, Leopardfoot, Spottedleaf and Redtail Grandson son of Swiftbreeze and Adderfang (Willowpelt's parents) and Snowfur and Thistleclaw (Whitestorm's parents), great-nephew of Rosetail, Sweetpaw (Thistleclaw's siblings) and Bluestar (Snowfur's sister), great-grandchildren of Windflight and Poppydawn (Thistleclaw's parents) and Moonflower and Stormtail (Snowfur's parents), great-grandnephew of Goosefeather (Moonflower's brother) and Pinestar (Poppydawn's brother), great-grandson of Sweetbriar Mistkit and Nightkit (Leopardfoot Kits), Sandstorm (Redtail's Daughter) and Longtail and Greystripe (Patchpelt Kits), Squirrelflight and Leafpool (Sandstorms Kits) and Feathertail, Stormfur, Briarlight, Bumblestripe and Blossomfall (Greystripe's Kits) and Original Grandcousin to Dawnpelt, Tigerheart and Flametail (Tawnypelt's Kits), Jayfeather, Lionblaze and Hollyleaf (Leafpools Kits) Lark That Sings At Dawn (Lark) and Pine That Clings To Rock (Pine), Reedwhisker, Primrosepaw, Pikepaw and Perchkit Spiderleg is a long-legged black Tom with brown underbelly and amber eyes, briefly seen in Firestar's Quest as A Kit, Spiderkit. He is the son of Ferncloud and Dustpelt, and his siblings include Birchfall, Icecloud, Foxleap, Hollykit, Larchkit and Shrewpaw. His mentor was Cloudtail, and he temporarily oversaw Dawnpaw of ShadowClan when Tawnypelt and her kits left ShadowClan for ThunderClan in Long Shadows. Spiderleg's former pal was Daisy and they had two kits, Rosekit and Toadkit. In Long Shadows it is revealed that Spiderleg no longer loves Daisy and that he never really wanted kits. [25] Spiderleg is a loyal warrior overall, but shares the belief with Dustpelt, Thornclaw and Ashfur that there are too many non-Clanborn cats in ThunderClan. He is one of the few completely forest-blooded cats left behind in ThunderClan. He is not one of the main characters and often flickers in and out of the scenes in the books since his first real introduction as An Apprentice, Spiderpaw, in Midnight. Spiderleg's nephew also Ashfur (Ferncloud's brother), grandson of Brindleface (Ferncloud's mother), great-grandson of Fuzzypelt and Robinwing (Brindleface's sister), Longtail, Dustpelt and Ravenpaw (Brindlefaces brothers), uncle of Dovewing and Ivypool (Birchfall's daughters) and kinship to Cinderpelt, Thornclaw, Brightheart, Brackenfur (Frostfur kits), Whitewing (Brighthearts daughter), Poppyfrost, Honeyfern, Cinderheart Molepaw (Brackenfur s kits) Soot fur, a light grey Tom with amber eyes, is a ThunderClan warrior first featured in The Darkest Hour, the brother of Sorreltail and Rainwhisker and the son of Willowpelt and Whitestorm. [10] He was seen as an apprentice, Sootpaw, in Firestar's Quest. During the events of the book, his mother Willowpelt dies to save him from a badger. [11] Sootpaw is made a warrior, soot fur, sometime between the events of Firestar's Quest and midnight. Soot fur seems hot-headed and sometimes says some rude things, like noting that Squirrelflight and Brambleclaw may have made the right decision to get out of the woods when they did, and when he notices that Daisy is too fat and lazy to run fast enough to catch mice. In the fifth book in The New Prophecy, Twilight, soot fury is killed during the attack by the badgers who invade the ThunderClan camp. [13] Sootfur's mentor was originally a longtail, but after Longtail was blinded by a rabbit in Firestar's Quest, his mentor was changed to Thornclaw. [11] He is the uncle of Sorreltails kits, including Poppyfrost, Honeyfern, (deceased) Cinderheart and Molepaw (deceased). Sootfur is also the nephew of Patchpelt, Lepardfoot, Spottedleaf and Redtail (Willowpelt's siblings), great-nephew of Rosetail, Sweetpaw (Thistleclaw's siblings) and Bluestar (Snowfur's sister), great-grandchildren of Windflight and Poppydawn (Thistleclaw's parents) and Moonflower and Stormtail (Snowfur's parents), great-nephew of Goosefeather (Moonflower's brother), cousin of Tigerstar, Mistkit and Nightkit (Leopardfoots Kits), Sandstorm (Redtail's daughter), Grand Cousin of Brambleclaw, Tawnypelt, Tadpole, Mothwing and Hawkfrost (Tigerstars Kits) and kinship to Mistyfoot, Stonefur Mosskit (Bluestars Kits) and Reedwhisker (Mistyfoot s Kit). Sorreltail, a turtle and white cat with amber eyes, is a ThunderClan warrior, the only daughter of Sootfur and Rainwhisker. Introduced in The Darkest Hour as Sorrelkit, an adventurous young kit, she followed her half-brother Darkstripe and caught him talking to Blackfoot, the ShadowClan MP, on ThunderClan territory during the book's events. She was seen by Darkstripe, who then led her to eat death berries to keep her quiet about his betrayal. After recovering, she told Firestar what Darkstripe had done to her and brought his exile from ThunderClan. [10] She is a trainee, Sorrelpaw, in Firestar's Quest, supervised by her cousin Sandstorm, although due to Sandstorm's journey from ThunderClan on the trip to SkyClan during the events of the book is temporarily supervised by Dustpelt. [11] Between Firestar's Quest and Midnight, Sorrelpaw is injury to her shoulder. Sorrelpaw eventually recovers under Cinderpelt's care, but has to train longer than an ordinary apprentice. In Midnight, Sorreltail falls in love love set friends with her. [27] When the four clans reach their new lake house, Sorreltail falls in love with Brackenfur and became friends. Sorreltail gives birth to her kits. In the end, she gives birth to four kits, Molepaw (dead), Poppyfrost, Honeyfern (dead) and Cinderheart, named after Cinderpelt, which is ironic because Cinderheart is the reborn form of Cinderpelt - even if Cinderheart doesn't know. [13] Later in The Forgotten Warrior, Sorreltail gives birth to two kits she calls Seedkit and Lilykit. According to The Last Hope, Sorreltail dies from her wounds. Sorreltail is also niece of Patchpelt, Leopardfoot, Spottedleaf and Redtail (Willowpelt's siblings), great-granddaughter of Swiftbreeze and Adderfang (Willowpelt's parents), great-granddaughter of Rosetail, Sweetpaw (Thistleclaw's siblings) and Bluestar (Snowfur's sister), great-granddaughter of Swiftbreeze and Adderfang (Willowpelt's parents), great-granddaughter of Swiftbreeze and Adderfang (Willowpelt's siblings) and Bluestar (Snowfur's sister), great-granddaughter of Swiftbreeze and Adderfang (Willowpelt's parents) and Snowfur's sister), great-granddaughter of Swiftbreeze and Adderfang (Willowpelt's siblings) and Bluestar (Snowfur's sister), great-granddaughter of Swiftbreeze and Adderfang (Willowpelt's sister), great-granddaughter of Swiftbreeze and Swiftbreeze and Swiftbreeze and Swiftbreeze and S Windflight and Poppydawn (Thistleclaw's parents) and Moonflower and Stormtail (Snowfur's parents), Urururnto zu Goosefeather (Moonflower's brother), cousin of Tigerstar, Mistkit and Nightkit , Longtail (Patchpelt's son) and Sandstorm (Redtail's daughter), second cousin of Brambleclaw, Tawnypelt, Tadpole, Mothwing and Hawkfrost (tiger stars kits), Squirrelflight and Leafpool (Sandstorm's daughters) and kinship of Mistyfoot, Stonefur, Mosskit (Bluestar Kits), Mallownose and Sneezepaw (Greymist's kits) and Jay She is half-sister of Greystripe and turns her aunt into Stormfur, Feathertail, Briarlight, Blossomfall and Bumblestripe. Power of Three Series The Power of Three series covers events in the history from The Sight to Sunrise. The series focuses on the apparent children Brambleclaw and Squirrelflight, Lionblaze, Hollyleaf and Jayfeather and the prophecy made about them. Berrynose is a cream Tom, the son of Daisy and Smoky, the litter companion of Mousewhisker and Hazeltail and the half-brother of Rosepetal and Toadstep. It is first introduced as a young kit called Berry in Twilight. His mother, Daisy, takes him and his littermates away from the horse field where they were born, so the twolegs who inhabit it would not take them After a ThunderClan patrol finds them, they join ThunderClan and Berry gets the clan name Berrykit. [18] He is the most adventurous of his littermates, and he accidentally ventures into a fox trap as he sneaks out of the camp to explore Sunset and loses half of his tail. [13] This event leads to him being paranoid about his warrior name, fearing That Firestar would give him a ridiculous name, like Berrystumpytail. He is first introduced as An Apprentice, Berrypaw, in The Sight, supervised by Brambleclaw. [19] He is portrayed as an arrogant and disrespectful cat similar to Darkstripe, especially after he was made a warrior in Outcast. [31] He criticizes even the smallest mistakes of the apprentices and refuses to hear any criticism of him. It is revealed that Honeyfern has a damper against him. On Sunrise, the two are seen understanding each other well and are probably in love considering that they would suggest they would have kits together. He is sad when she dies of a snake bite. In the Omen of the Stars series, Berrynose is the father of Cherryfall and Molewhisker of Poppyfrost, Honeyfern's sister. Poppyfrost is very concerned because she thinks Berrynose loves her just as much, even more so, and is just anxious to keep her safe. Blossomfall Blossomfall is the daughter of Greystripe and Millie and the litter companion of Bumblestripe and Briarlight as well as the half-sister of Feathertail and Stormfur. She was first introduced in Eclipse, along with her littermates. [32] She joined the Dark Forest to become a better warrior, but later learned that the Dark Forest would kill Toadstep. Her mentor is Hazeltail. It also develops a crushon toadstep. In Sign of the Moon, Ivypool discovers that Blossomfall is trained in the Dark Forest. She gets very jealous of Briarlight because Millie pretends briarlight is her only kit. She also has Thornclaw as her buddy. Birchfall A light brown tabby Tom, Birchfall is Birchkit and Birchpaw in the New Prophecy series and is first seen as a warrior in The Sight. [19] Birchfall is the son of Ferncloud and Dustpelt and the brother of Spiderleg, Shrewpaw, Icecloud, Foxleap, Hollykit and Larchkit, the two of whom later become his Littermates. During the destruction of the forest in The New Prophecy, his littermates Hollykit and Larchkit die of hunger, while his brother Shrewpaw dies when a tree cutter runs over him. As Birchkit, he makes the great journey across the mountains with the clans to their new home and becomes the first apprentice, Birchfall to see his warrior name with him. Birchfall is also to Ashfur (Ferncloud's brother) and Sandstorm (Ferncloud's half-sister), great-nephew to Frostfur (Brindleface's sister) and kinship to Cinderpelt, Thornclaw, Brightheart, Brackenfur (Frostfur Kits), Whitewing (Brighthearts Daughter), Poppyfrost, Honeyfern, Cinderheart and Molepaw (Brackenfur Kits). Birchfall was seen by his daughter Ivypool training in the Dark Forest. Briarlight A dark brown cat, Briarlight is the daughter of Greystripe and Millie and the littermate of Bumblestripe and Blossomfall, as well as the half-sister of Feathertail and Stormfur. She is introduced for the first time in Eclipse, along with her littermates. [32] She fell ill with Greencough when her mother Millie fell ill, but was in decent health on Sunrise. She is almost bitten by a snake in Sunrise, but is rescued by her cousin Honeyfern, who died. [26] In The Fourth Apprentice, she is mentored by Thornclaw. [28] She becomes a warrior in Fading Echoes after being injured by a tree that fell on her hind legs and permanently paralyzed her. [24] She feels very guilty because she is unable to hunt or patrol for her clan (due to her broken backbone). As a result, she won't eat anything Millie brings her. Jayfeather's solution is that Briarlight helps him in his cave (cleaning up herbs, making moss for pieces of wood, dirt and thorns). In The Forgotten Warrior, she also finds a small shred of Hollyleaf's fur. Bumblestripe A light grey Tom with dark black stripes, Bumblestripe is the son of Greystripe and Millie and the litter companion of Blossomfall and Briarlight, as well as the half-brother of Feathertail and Stormfur. It is considered to be the largest kit in his litter and was named after the stripes on his back, which made him look like a bumblebee. He was introduced for the first time in Eclipse, along with his throwing mates. [32] In The Fourth Apprentice, he is mentored by Mousewhisker. [28] Blossomfall suggests that Bumblestripe is in love with Sign of the book he confesses to Dovewing that he wants to be more than friends. After The Last Hope, Dovewing begins a relationship with Bumblestripe, but in Bramblestar's storm, their relationship ends. Cinderheart, a grey, tabby cat with blue eyes, is a ThunderClan warrior first mentioned at the end of Twilight[18] and officially featured in The Sight. [19] It is first considered a reincarnation of Cinderpelt, the former ThunderClan medical cat, This fact becomes clear to Leafpool in Sunset when Spottedleaf tells her where to find Cinderpelt and show her cinderkit. Cinderheart is unaware of their situation and very much her own character, although her personality resembles that of Cinderpelt before she was injured; [13] Jayfeather's attempts to change in their dreams lead to the personality of the original Cinderpet being revealed in the forest, implying that Cinderpet's mind actually resides in Cinderheart's subconscious. Leafpool and Jayfeather are the only cats who are aware of Cinderheart's true identity; While Leafpool wants to keep it secret from Cinderheart indefinitely, Jayfeather wants to reveal the truth to her and thus add warmth to the already obvious indecency of these two cats (as with Night Whispers, Jayfeather Cinderheart or anyone else has not revealed the truth). She and Lionblaze seemed to be clattering between Fading Echoes and Night Whispers. She and Lionblaze seemed deeply in love, but Cinderheart breaks the relationship when Lionblaze tells her he is part of the prophecy. She tells him they can't be mates, and as a result she breaks Lionblaze's heart. In The Forgotten Warrior, Jayfeather convinces her that she and Lionblaze can become mates. Cinderheart is StarClan's answer to Cinderpelt's dreams of becoming a warrior. Along with Jayfeather, Lionblaze and Hollyleaf, her best friend, and others, she becomes an apprentice under Cloudtail. In an ironic twist of fate, however, she falls from a tree branch in Dark River and injures her leg, in fact the same leg that hurt Cinderpelt. [34] She can partially recover, but hurts her again during her assessment in Eclipse and is thrown into a state of depression (Cinderpaw's desire to become a warrior is as strong as Cinderpelt's, although it is not known whether Cinderpelt himself influenced this personality). Jayfeather teaches her to swim to stretch and build the muscles without straining them, and at the end of Eclipse, Cinderpaw is able to run and run normally and gets her warrior name. [32] Cinderpelt's original fate is fulfilled, it is not known whether Or not Cinderheart's reincarnation will contribute to future events. At the end of Eclipse, when she gets her warrior name, Firestar calls her Cinderheart ... in honor of the warriors who have left before. [32] It is unclear whether Firestar refers to Cinderpelt or not. Although Cinderheart is a reincarnation of Cinderpelt, in this new life she is the daughter of Sorreltail and Brackenfur and the sister of Molepaw, who died of a disease that did not respond to Leafpool's herbs. Poppyfrost and Honeyfern are also her siblings. Brackenfur and Cinderpelt are siblings, so That Cinderpelt and her are actually related, since Cinderheart is sad. She tells Hollyleaf she shouldn't have said anything at the meeting. In Omen of the Stars, Cinderheart ivypaws is Ivypaws Cinderheart and Cinderpelt both fell in love with similar cat cats, as Lionblaze Is A Kinship, which could also be part of Cinderheart's fate. In The Last Hope, she still can't decide whether she remains belligerent or is a medical cat like in her previous life. Lionblaze confronts her and tells her that she has a destiny, but she can choose. When she decides to be a warrior and decides to be Lionblaze's buddy, Cinderpelt's mind comes out of her body and flows thanks to Lionblaze: Hollykit, Fernkit and Sorrelkit, later Hollytuft, Fernsong and Sorrelstripe. Foxleap A reddish tabby tom, Foxleap was first introduced as Kit, Foxkit, in The Sight. He is the son of Ferncloud and Dustpelt and the litter companion of Icecloud as well as the brother of Shrewpaw, in outcast, and is mentored by his cousin Squirrelflight, but due to Squirrelflight's temporary departure to the trunk of the rushing water during the book, he is cared for for a while by Sandstorm's cousin Sorreltail. [31] His aunt Sandstorm also takes over his mentor for Squirrelflight when she falls ill in Long Shadows. [25] It is said that he wants his warrior name to be Foxcatcher. Foxleap is the nephew of Ashfur (Ferncloud's brother) grandson of Brindleface (Ferncloud's mother), kinship to Cinderpelt, Thornclaw, Brackenfur, Brightheart (Frostfur kits), Honeyfern, Poppyfrost, Molepaw, Cinderheart (Brackenfur kits), Honeyfern, Poppyfrost, Molepaw, Cinderheart (Br Foxleap is said to have died of his wounds shortly after the great battle. This is confirmed in Dovewing's Silence. Hazeltail is a small grey and white cat, the daughter of Daisy and Smoky, the litter companion of Berrynose and Mousewhisker and the half-sister of Rosepetal and Toadstep. She was first introduced as a kit called Hazel in Twilight when her mother Daisy took her and her littermates away from the horse's place where they were born so that the twolegs there wouldn't take them away. After a ThunderClan patrol found them, they joined ThunderClan and Hazel was given the clan name Hazelkit. [18] In Sunset, Spottedleaf visits the nursery and shows her and Mousewhisker (then Mousekit) a butterfly that they can catch, leading Leafpool to discover the truth about the RiverClan medicine cat Mothwing. [13] She was introduced as an apprentice, Hazelpaw, in The Sight, supervised by Dustpelt, [19] and continued this apprenticeship until she and her throwing companions, in Outcast. In Sunrise she learns her father Smoky and Floss for the first time. Smoky seems proud of her and Floss is worried She mentions that Berrynose lost half his tail in a fox trap. [26] She was the mentor of Blossomfall. She is said to have been killed by Greencough in Bramblestar's storm. Hollyleaf, a slender black cat with green eyes, is a ThunderClan kit, apprentice and warrior featured in The Sight. She is one of the protagonists of the Power of Three series with her ThunderClan brothers Jayfeather and Lionblaze and can be seen on the cover of Sunrise. First, Hollyleaf decides to become a medical cat because she sees other cats giving Leafpool, the current medicine cat, and wants to be seen as extremely important to her clan. She gives up this choice after a short time, because she can not remember herbs well and easily indigates herself in dealing with wounds and injuries. She develops an affinity for combat training and realizes that she would best serve her clan as a warrior, and begins training under Brackenfur. Hollyleaf learned under her mentor to be incredibly loyal and dedicated to the Warrior Code. [19] As a result, Hollyleaf is considered is considered the smartest and tied to the warrior code of the three siblings, prone to carefully devising strategies rather than blindly swirling in. She is not one of the three in the prophecy, even if her two brothers are. As a result, it has no power. She devotes herself to the Code of War and sees it as the foundation of clan life and is afraid to think of a clan that works without it. She has ambitions to become a clan leader, a function she believes would best serve her clan. Her ideologies differ in this respect from her brothers in that she always tries to think about what would benefit all cats and not just themselves. Hollyleaf seems to be deeply burdened by responsibility when she learns of the prophecy about herself and her siblings. In Long Shadows it was revealed that Squirrelflight is not her mother. Her real parents are Leafpool and Crowfeather. In Long Shadows, Hollyleaf becomes so obsessed with the code that she scares Jayfeather at one point. At the end of the book, she kills Ashfur to stop him from telling the clans that Squirrelflight is not her mother. [25] In Sunrise, she goes mad after she was the daughter of a medical cat and a WindClan warrior, breaking the warrior code. Eventually, in a gathering, she reveals to every cat that Squirrelflight and Brambleclaw were not the parents of her and Lionblaze and Jayfeather. Then she runs into a tunnel that collapses on her, which most cats believed and control to every cat that Squirrelflight and Brambleclaw were not the parents of her and Lionblaze and Jayfeather. she Dead. She also tries to kill Leafpool by forcing her to eat death berries, but lets her go when Leafpool points out that it would be more painful for her to live on than to die. Hollyleaf's extreme devotion to the Code eventually led to her fall. While most thought Hollyleaf was part of the three, she really wasn't. Instead, the three refer to Jayfeather, Lionblaze and Dovewing. She is proven alive in The Forgotten Warrior and returns to ThunderClan. She is killed by Dark Forest warrior Hawkfrost with Ivypool, who brought Hollyleaf back to ThunderClan in The Last Hope and is seen going out with the rest of the ghosts of StarClan when they bring Firestar to Go to StarClan. She is the great-granddaughter of Jake and Nutmeg (Firestar's parents), and Redtail and Brindleface (Sandstorm's parents), she is half-sister of Breezepelt (Nightclouds and Crowfeather's son), granddaughter of Firestar and Sandstorm (Leafpool's parents) and Ashfoot, the WindClan deputy (and Crowfeather's mother), niece of Eaglekit (Crowfeather's brother) and Squirrelflight (Leafpool's sister), great-niece to princess (Firestar's half-siblings) and kinship to Cloudtail (Firestar's nephew), Whitewing (Cloudtail's daughter), Dovepaw and Ivypaw (Whitewing's daughters) As her father, Crowfeather, is a direct descendant of Windstar and Gorsestar (WindClan's first and second leaders), Hollyleaf is also her descendant. She is half-windClan, a quarter ThunderClan, a quarter Kittypet and partly SkyClan because Spottedleaf is Sandstorm's aunt. As Spottedleaf is directly related to Birdflights (Cloudstar's buddy) kits, and Sandstorm is Hollyleaf's grandmother. Honeyfern Honeyfern is a light brown, tabby cat with blue eyes and the daughter of Cinderheart, Poppyfrost and Molepaw. She was first introduced as Kit, Honeykit, at the end of Twilight, and as An Apprentice, [13] Honeypaw in The Sight. She was cared for by Sandstorm, who also cared for her mother Sorreltail. [19] She continues her teaching for the rest of the series until she has a crush on Berrynose. In Sunrise Berrynose, the affection begins to return. Shortly afterwards, however, she dies of a snake bite while saving Briarkit. [26] In The Fourth Apprentice, Honeyfern saves Jayfeather from Breezepelt attacks the ThunderClan medical cat in Moonpool. [28] Icecloud Icecloud is a white cat with bright blue eyes, first introduced as a kit, Icekit, in The Sight. She is the daughter of Ferncloud and Dustpelt and the littermate of Foxleap as well as the younger sister of Spiderleg, Shrewpaw, Birchfall, Hollykit (who died before the Great Journey) and Larchkit. Icepaw and Foxpaw shared caves with Lionblaze, Jayfeather and Hollyleaf before the three later became apprentices. became apprentice in outcast, supervised by Whitewing. [31] It is said that she wants her warrior name warrior name lce storm. Icecloud is a niece of Ashfur (Ferncloud's brother), great-niece of Frostfur (Brindleface's parents), great-niece of Frostfur (Brindleface's sister), kinship to Cinderpelt, Thornclaw, Brackenfur, Brightheart (Frostfur Kits), Honeyfern, Poppyfrost, Molepaw, Cinderheart (Brackenfur Kits) and Whitewing (Brightheart's Daughter). She is also the aunt of Dovepaw, Ivypaw (Birchfall's daughters), Rosepetal and Toadstep (Spiderlegs Kits). She is said to have been killed by Greencough in Bramblestar's storm. Jayfeather Jayfeather is a grey tabby Tom with blue eyes, and he is blind. He is the brother of Hollyleaf and Lionblaze as well as the half-brother of Breezepelt and one of the protagonists of the series Power of Three with his siblings. Jayfeather is currently a fully medical cat in ThunderClan. Originally, Jayfeather wanted to be a warrior because he wanted to be just as important as his littermates to the clan and felt that the duties of a medical cat were insignificant compared to the glories a warrior training with his cousin Brightheart, but soon tired of it. He didn't get much training and barely explored ThunderClan's territory. In a rebellious act, Jayfeather decides to explore himself. This led to him walking over a cliff in the middle of WindClan's area and falling into the lake. Luckily, a WindClan patrol consisting of Crowfeather, Heatherpaw, Breezepaw and Whitetail was nearby, but that's why Jayfeather is afraid of water after his father Crowfeather pulls him out. Later, Spottedleaf persuaded him to become a medical cat. Jayfeather is very aware of his condition and stubbornly refuses to be treated differently because he hates the thought of being pityed. [19] Despite his inability to see, Jayfeather's other senses are greatly enlarged and he is often able to navigate just as well as any other cat. His superior sense of smell allows him to diagnose medical ailments immediately and from a long distance, a trait that is obviously ideal for a medical cat. Jayfeather is able to hear and smell cats approaching from a great distance, far ahead of any other cat nearby. In addition to his raised senses, Jayfeather was born with a form of extrasensory perception that allows him to read the spirit of other cats, enter other cats' dreams, and hear their conversations with members of StarClan. It is shown in Outcast that this ability extends to cats that do not fall under the jurisdiction of StarClan, such as cats of the tribe of rushing water. [31] However, mind-reading skills can be blocked if the intended goal is aware of its intent; Leafpool is aware of her son's abilities and consciously dampens her thoughts whenever she doesn't want to in her head. Jayfeather is also unable to read the spirit of Sol because his thoughts are so fast and many that he cannot concentrate on him. [25] Jayfeather's personality is somewhat on par with Yellowfang, as he is typically grumpy and slightly upset. Jayfeather is the first to learn about the prophecy about himself and his siblings, and takes his meaning to imply that they are more important than any other cat and as such do not have to follow their rules. He came across a seemingly insignificant stick that inexplicably emanates the thoughts and feelings of past members of the old clans who lived by the lake a long time ago. [32] Many fans claimed that he had a relationship with her[35] until he intentionally broke her on The Fourth Apprentice after finding out that Rock had lied to him. [28] Jayfeather feels on the verge of a great discovery, the implications of which are more important than StarClan. He is also aware of the reincarnation of Cinderheart. Despite these pieces of knowledge, Jayfeather seems to take care of his clan mates and performs quite well as a medical cat. Jayfeather has skills that other medical cats don't have, such as. B. walking in other cats' dreams. One of the first times he did this was when he followed Leafpool to Moonpool and heard her dream. Over the course of the series, he has become more tolerant of his clan colleagues and less irritable, mainly because of his liberal approach to thinking and the ability to sympathize with their thoughts. In Long Shadows it was revealed that Squirrelflight is not his mother. [25] Before the release of Sunrise, it was rumoured that Leafpool and Crowfeather were his parents because of their attitude and colouring. This is true, leading to Hollyleat's so-called death, and during his naming ceremony, Leafpool felt a sense of love for him, and in the New Prophecy series, Leafpool and Crowfeather were alone at one point as they ran away. He saves Firestar after being attacked by a fox in The Fourth Apprentice, although it was too late and he lost another life. He follows Poppyfrost (heavily pregnant with Berrynoses Kits, Cherrypaw and Molepaw) to Moonpool when she wants to see Honeyfern again, and is attacked by Breezepelt, but Honeyfern expels him and another cat from the Dark Forest (Brokenstar). He is the first of the three to learn more about the battle between StarClan and the Dark Forest. [28] Jayfeather is a reincarnation of Jay's Wing, an old cat. In Long Shadows, he meets the cat he loves, Half Moon, which later becomes the first plate of the Pointed Stones. Half Moon reappears in The Forgotten Warrior that she is waiting for him forever. He is the great-grandson of Jake and Nutmeg, Firestar's parents. He is also related to the leader of BloodClan, Scourge, because Fire Star and Scourge are half brothers. Lionblaze A muscular golden-brown tabby tom with amber eyes and thick fur around his neck, is the protagonist of the Power of Three series with his siblings Jayfeather and Hollyleaf and is the half-brother of Breezepelt, a WindClan warrior. He is secretly taught by the ghosts of Tigerstar and Hawkfrost about various combat movements in Dark River. A young WindClan apprentice named Heatherpaw convinces him to found a game clan called DarkClan in the underground tunnels, with the leader Heatherpaw and the deputy Lionblaze, under the assumed names Heatherstar and Lionclaw. Lionblaze unknowingly falls in love with her, and she falls in love with her hates her annoyance. He enjoys the secret night meetings immensely, but falls behind in his training. One night Lionblaze Heatherpaw teaches some of Tigerstar's movements and Hawkfrost gets angry and later rebukes him for teaching the enemy fighting techniques. He tells Lionblaze that Heatherpaw will probably use her against him in the fight. Lionblaze is devastated and tells Heatherpaw he won't see her again. She is deeply hurt, but Lionblaze remains true to his word. [34] Soon his fighting and hunting skills improve again and his mentor Ashfur is happy. No one is aware of his haunted visits to his apparent grandfather and uncle, and Hollyleaf notices that his martial arts exceed the level of normal apprentices, and Brambleclaw recognizes his father's fighting movements. They and the other apprentices are horrified when Ashfur and Lionblaze begin a dangerous kind of game-fighting in which they pretend the other is an enemy. Hollyleaf notes that Ashfur looked as if he hated Lionblaze with all his heart during the fight, but after that he praised him and acted proudly. [19] [31] [32] [34] His power is the ability to remain intact during the struggle. [31] At the end of Eclipse, Lionblaze has an argument with Tigerstar and Hawkfrost. [32] This could be due to Tigerstar's teaching method and his constant bullying if Lionblaze doesn't train the way Tigerstar wants him to, or if Lionblaze tries to talk to Tigerstar and Hawkfrost about the prophecy. He is chosen as the mentor Dovepaw, the last of the three in The Fourth Apprentice. He is selected to find out what causes the water, not to flow along with Dovepaw, Tigerheart and Toadfoot of ShadowClan, Petalfur and Rippletail of RiverClan, and Sedgewhisker and Whitetail of WindClan. [28] Since the beginning of the Omen of the Stars series, Lionblaze has grown closer to Cinderheart if they're going to be more than friends and she agrees that they're going to Later, however, she learns that Lionblaze is part of the prophecy, claiming that StarClan, since StarClan chose him as someone with a greater destiny, will not be his She is further removed when her life as Cinderpelt's reincarnation is revealed. In The Last Hope, however, he confronts Cinderpelt's reincarnation is revealed. In The Last Hope, however, he confronts Cinderpelt's reincarnation is revealed. Before the release of Sunrise, it was speculated that Leafpool and Crowfeather were his parents. Also in the latest Warriors New Email, she mentioned the pedigree of a certain trio of ThunderClan cats, as well as the shocking rumors about who might really be her mother, suggesting that the rumour might be true. In Long Shadows it was revealed that Squirrelflight is not his mother, and in Sunrise that Leafpool and Crowfeather are his true parents. Lionblaze is also the half-brother of Breezepelt (Crowfeather's mother), nephew of Eaglekit (Crowfeather's brother) and Squirrelflight (Leafpool's sister), great-nephew of Princess (Firestar's half-siblings) and Ashfur and Ferncloud (Sandstorm's half-siblings), Whitewing (Cloudtail's daughter), Dovewing and lvypool (Whitewing's daughters). He is also a relative of Tigerstar, Nightkit and Mistkit (Sandstorm's cousin). He is the father of Hollytuft, Sorrelstripe and Fernsong (Cinderhearts Kits). As his father, is a direct descendant of Wind and Gorsestar (WindClan's first and second leaders), Lionblaze is also their descendant. It is half WindClan, a quarter ThunderClan, a quarter Kittypet and part SkyClan because Sandstorm's aunt is Spottedleaf. He is the reincarnation of Lion's Roar, an old regular cat. Mousewhisker is a grey and white Tom, the son of Daisy and Smoky, the brother of Berrynose and Hazeltail and the half-brother of Rosepetal and Toadstep. He was first introduced as a kit called Mouse in Twilight when his mother Daisy took him and his littermates away from the horse's place where they were born so that the twolegs there wouldn't take them away. After a ThunderClan patrol found them, they joined ThunderClan and Mouse was given the clan name Mousekit. [18] In Sunset, Spottedleaf visits the nursery and shows him and Hazelkit a butterfly they can hunt, leading Leafpool to discover the truth about the RiverClan medical cat Mothwing. [13] He is later an apprentice, Mousepaw, in The Sight, supervised by Spiderleg, [19] and becomes a warrior, Mousewhisker, in outcast. [31] In the Battle of Eclipse, he injures his eye, so Hollypaw leads him out of the fight. [32] He was bumblestripe's mentor. He also trains in the dark Millie Millie is a silver tabby cat, a former kitten. She is officially published in The Sight (first book in the Power of series) when she and her buddy Greystripe appear on the island, which the clan cats use for gatherings. Although all the cats in each clan were happy to see Greystripe alive, they were worried about his kitten buddy. [19] Later she has three kits: Bumblestripe, Briarlight and Blossomfall. In Long Shadows, Millie is infected with Greencough. Silverstream watches over them, because Greystripe didn't deserve to have his heart broken again because Greystripe went into a cycle of grief after Silverstream died with his kits. [25] In Sunrise, Honeyfern died when he saved Briarlight, Blossomfall, and Bumblestripe. [24] In Apprentice's Quest, she is an elder. Poppyfrost is a turtle and white cat and the daughter of Brackenfur and Sorreltail. She is the sister of Cinderheart, Honeyfern and Molepaw. She was first introduced as Kit, Poppykit, at the end of Twilight, [13] and as An Apprentice, Poppypaw, in The Sight, supervised by her uncle Thornclaw. In The Sight, Poppypaw comes close to dying due to an extreme case of Greencough, but Jayfeather heals her by entering her away from StarClan, and she recovers. [19] She continues her teaching until Eclipse, when she and her sister Honeyfern are given the war name Poppyfrost. [32] At the end of The Fourth Apprentice, she gave birth to two unnamed kits, with Berrynose as her father. [28] Later in Fading Echoes, they are called Cherrykit and Molekit (in honor of their late brother Molepaw). [24] In The Fourth Apprentice, she tells Jayfeather that she has always loved Berrynose, even when Honeyfern was still alive. She is niece of Rainwhisker, Sootfur (Sorreltails brothers), Brightheart, Thornclaw and Cinderpelt (Brackenfur's mother), great-niece of Spottedleaf, Redtail, Patchpelt, Leopardfoot (Willowpelt's siblings) and Frostfur (Brackenfur's mother), great-niece of Rainwhisker, Sootfur (Sorreltails brothers), Brightheart, Thornclaw and Frostfur (Brackenfur's mother), great-niece of Spottedleaf, Redtail, Patchpelt, Leopardfoot (Willowpelt's siblings) and Brindleface, Dustpelt and Ravenpaw (Frostfur's siblings), great-granddaughter of Snowfur and Thistleclaw (Whitestorm's parents), great-granddaughter of Sweetpaw , Rosetail (Thistleclaw's sisters) and Bluestar (Snowfur's sister), great-granddaughter of Sweetpaw , Rosetail (Thistleclaw's sisters) and Bluestar (Snowfur's sister), great-granddaughter of Sweetpaw , great-granddaughter of Windflight and Poppydawn (Thistleclaw's parents), Stormtail and Moonflower (Snowfur's parents), great-gre Birchfall, Foxleap, Ice Cloud (Ferncloud Kits), Toadstep, Rosepetal Kits), Tigerstar, Mistkit, Nightkit (Leopardfoot Kits), Tigerheart, Dawnpelt, Flametail (Tawnypelt Kits), Stonefur, Mistyfoot, Mosskit (Bluestar Kits), Toppyfrost's has also been related to SkyClan by Swiftbreeze, a direct descendant of Spottedpelt, Cloudstar and Birdflight's daughter and sister of Gorseclaw, whose immediate descendant is Sweetbriar, mother of Pinestar, former leader of ThunderClan. Whitewing is a white cat with green eyes. It is first introduced as Kit, Whitekit, in the epilogue of Firestars Quest, although she is almost an apprentice, [11] and as an apprentice, Whitepaw, during the new prophecy series. She is one of two daughters of Cloudtail and Brightheart. Between Sunset and The Sight, she becomes a warrior Whitewing. She was appointed much later than she could have been, because she wanted to stay behind herself so that Birchpaw would not be the only apprentice. This is later confirmed when Birchfall complains that she has received an apprentice, and Sandstorm reminds him that Whitewing has asked to remain an apprentice. [19] She was cared for by her uncle Brackenfur and received her first apprentice Icepaw in outcast. [31] It is confirmed at the end of Long Shadows that she wears Birchfalls kits, so her status is now a gueen. [25] In Sunrise, she gave birth to two kits, Dovewing and Ivypool, of which Dovewing and Ivypool, of which Dovewing will become the last cat in the prophecy of the Power of the Three, but as revealed in The Last Hope, Dovewing is indeed the third cat, with Firestar being the last and the fourth. [28] Whitewings also granddaughter of Princess (Cloudtail's mother), and Frostfur (Brightheart's mother), great-niece of Firestar (Princess's brother), great-granddaughter of Fuzzypelt and Robinwing (Frostfur's parents), half-sized niece of Scourge, Ruby and Socks (Princess's half-siblings), niece to Cinderpelt, Thornclaw and Brackenfur (Brightheart's siblings), cousin of Honeyfern, Molepaw, Poppyfrost and Cinderheart (Brackfurs), Squirrelflight (Firestars Daughters), Jayfeather, Lionblaze, Hollyleaf (Leafpool Kits), Sandstorm, Ferncloud and Ashfur (Brindleface Kits), Spiderleg, Shrewpaw, Hollykit, Larchkit, Birchfall, Icecloud and Foxleap (Fernclouds Kits) and Toadstep and Rosepetal (Spiderlegs). Rosepetal Rosepetal is a dark cream that she has a crush on a ThunderClan tom, Foxleap. She is the daughter of Daisy and Spiderleg, the littermate of Toadstep and the half-sister of Mousewhisker, Berrynose and Hazeltail. She and Toadstep become warriors in The Fourth Apprentice. Warrior name is Rosepetal, her mentor was Squirrelflight. Rosepetal, her mentor was Squirrelflight. Rosepetal is also a niece of Shrewpaw, Hollykit, Birchfall, Icecloud and Foxleap (Spiderleg's siblings), cousin to Ivypool and Dovewing (Birchfall's daughters), granddaughter to Ferncloud and Dustpelt (Spiderleg's parents), great-granddaughter to Robinwing and Fuzzypelt (Brindleface's parents), great-granddaughter to Robinwing and Fuzzypelt (Brindleface's parents), great-granddaughter to Brindleface's parents), great-granddaughter to Robinwing and Fuzzypelt (Brindleface's parents), great-granddaughter to Robinwing and Fuzzype Brightheart, Brackenfur (Frostfur's kits), Honeyfern, Molepaw, Poppyfrost, Cinderheart, Lilyheart, and Seedpaw (Brackenfur's kits). Also related to Firestar, Jayfeather, Lionblaze and Hollyleaf. Toadstep Toadstep is a black and white Tom who was first introduced in outcast, along with his sister Rosepetal. He is the son of Daisy and Spiderleg and the half-brother of Mousewhisker, Berrynose and Hazeltail. In The Fourth Apprentice, Toadstep got his warrior name. [28] He was looked after by Cloudtail. Toadstep is also nephew of Shrewpaw, Larchkit, Hollykit, Birchfall, Icecloud and Foxleap (Spiderleg's parents), great-gr great-Frostfur (Brindleface's sister) and kinship to Cinderpelt Thornclaw, Hellherz, Brackenfur (Frostfur Kits), Honeyfern, Molepaw , Poppy Frost, Cinderheart, Lilykit, Seedkit (Brackenfur Kits), Cherrypaw and Molepaw (Poppyfrost Kits) and Whitewing (Brightheart's Daughter). He is said to have died of Greencough in Bramblestar's storm. Omen of the Stars Series Omen of the Stars is the fourth series in Warriors. The titles of all six books have been revealed: The Fourth book, Sign of the Moon, was published in April 2011. The fifth book is called The Forgotten Warrior. The last book in the series is titled The Last Hope. The fourth series focuses on two sisters, Dovewing and Ivypool, and which of them is the third cat in the prophecy. Dovewing is a fluffy light grey cat whose eye color has been described as green, blue and golden. She is the daughter of Whitewing and Birchfall and sister of Ivypool. She was born at the end of Sunrise and it is mentioned that she or her sister is the third cat of prophecy, since Hollyleaf was not really part of the prophecy. Her mentor was Lionblaze. The Fourth Apprentice shows that their power is to hear and see things that very far away. Dovepaw is later found to be the third cat of prophecy. Although Dovepaw is happy to be the third cat in the prophecy, she hates hiding the secret from her clan mates. [28] In Night Whispers, Dovepaw tells Ivypaw why she has such good senses; Ivypaw forgives her for not telling her for so long. When she asks Jayfeather why she has to keep the secret from every cat, he asks her if she wants to be anything special at all. She says yes, even if she doesn't. During her warrior assessment, when she decides to turn off her powers because other cats can hunt without special powers, she admits in her mind that lyppool deserves more than she deserves to be a warrior because she spies every night for Thunderclan in the Dark Forest. It is also rumoured that Dovepaw could have a crush on Tigerheart of ShadowClan. This is confirmed in Night Whispers, when the two admitted their feelings for each other. They began to meet at night at the ShadowClan. This is confirmed in Night Whispers, when the two admitted their feelings for each other. They began to meet at night at the ShadowClan. This is confirmed in Night Whispers, when the two admitted their feelings for each other. Tigerheart mentioned that ThunderClan had a catnip, a herb that Could heal ShadowClan's sick medicine cat Littlecloud, but which was captured and exchanged for the catnip. [36] In the books after that, Tigerheart doesvewing seems to want to stay away from not talking to her, although he does not believe that Jayfeather killed his brother Flametail, unlike her throwing companion Dawnpelt. In the sign of the moon, Dovepaw deserves her warrior name: Dovewing. In The Forgotten Warrior, she falls in love with her clan colleague Bumblestripe. Dovewing is also the granddaughter of Cloudtail and Brightheart (Whitewing's parents) and Dustpelt and Ferncloud (Birchfall's parents), great-granddaughter of Princess (Cloudtail's mother), Brindleface (Farncloud's mother), Brindleface (Farncloud's mother), and relatives of Leafpool, Squirrelflight (Firestar's daughters), Jayfeather, Hollyleaf, Lionblaze, Sorreltail, Honeyfern, Molepaw, Cinderheart and Poppy. During her warrior assessment, Icecloud falls through the tunnels that are said to have buried Hollyleaf. Dovewing then saves them. Jayfeather and Lionblaze later examine the tunnel for themselves and conclude that their sister Hollyleaf could not be dead as previously thought. Ivypool, a silver, tabby and white cat with dark blue eyes, is the daughter of Whitewing and Birchfall and sister of Dovewing. She was born at the end of Sunrise and it is mentioned that she or her sister is the third cat of prophecy, since Hollyleaf was not really part of the prophecy. [26] When Vicky Holmes revealed that The fourth apprentice, she also explained that lyppaw will not be happy about her sister's new finds. lyppaw's mentor is Cinderheart. In The Fourth Apprentice, lyppaw Jealous of Dovepaw because she can go on the journey upstream to find the source of the problem of the drying lake (which later turns out to be a beaver). At the end of the book, when Lionblaze and Dovepaw return, she seems to survive her jealousy. [28] But in Fading Echoes, Ivypaw becomes jealous of her sister again (this is after Firestar discovers that Jayfeather, Lionblaze and Dovepaw are the three). Later, she begins to be trained by Hawkfrost in her dreams because she thinks he is a StarClan warrior. Ivypaw then begins to feel special, because Dovepaw has never been visited by a StarClan warrior, she would have told me. At first, Ivypaw seems to be able to tell her sister that she was visited by a StarClan cat in her dreams, but later decides against it out of jealousy. She does so because she also wants to have a secret. [24] In Night Whispers, she is kidnapped by ShadowClan and traded for Catmint because Littlecloud has Greencough. She continues to visit the Dark Forest in Night Whispers, but recognizes her evil intentions towards the end of the book and decides to go further into the Dark Forest to spy on them for Dovepaw, Jayfeather and Lionblaze. There, Brokenstar tells her to kill the already dead flametail to stop him from helping ShadowClan. She agrees to gain Brokenstar's trust, but is stopped by Tigerheart. When ThunderClan discovered this, Mapleshade and her kits were exiled as traitors. On the run from ThunderClan to RiverClan With her three kits to be with her buddy, Mapleshade for the kits' death, and she found unwelcome in RiverClan. Heartbreaking and angry, Mapleshade vowed eternal revenge on the clans. She murdered Ravenwing, the ThunderClan medical cat who had revealed her secret, and then Frecklewish, the daughter of the ThunderClan medical cat who had revealed her secret, and then Frecklewish, the daughter of the ThunderClan medical cat who had revealed her secret, and then Frecklewish, the daughter of the ThunderClan medical cat who had revealed her secret, and then Secret her secret, and then Secret her secret, and then Secret her secret Mapleshade forever, she murdered Appledusk. At this point, however, Appledusk's new buddy was already expecting kits. Mapleshade knew Appledusk would live on in these kits, vowing to the offspring of her former pal. Because of the murders she committed, Mapledon's spirit was denied access to StarClan and instead sent to the Dark Forest. Mapleshade visits Crookedkit (later Crookedkit (later Crookedstar) of RiverClan in dreams and visions that begin before his apprenticeship, and trains him in exchange for his promise that he would put loyalty to his clan above all other concerns. First, Crookedkit believes that Mapleshade is one of StarClan. His attachment to individual clan mates confuses him. He obeys her when a dog attacks the RiverClan camp, chases the dog, and protects the clan, instead of holding on to the deadly injury to his mother Rainflower. Crookedstar suspects that Mapleshade is responsible for sending the crooked squirrel sign that convinces Hailstar to make Crookedjaw his deputy after

Shellheart retreats into the elders' cave. When Hailstar is injured in his last life, she beats Crookedjaw with his head as he tries to save Hailstar's life. Finally, Mapleshade Crookedstar admits that she is not from StarClan, but from the Dark Forest, and explains her evil actions and deception before explaining her tragic past. Finally, Mapleshade reveals that Shellheart, Crookedstar's father, was the grandson of her former pal and that she believes her own offspring should have reached the size that Is Crookedstar's destiny. [13] Her siblings were Leopardfoot, Patchpelt, Redtail and Spottedleaf. WindClan cats are known for their speed and stamina, an ability that is essential for hunting their main prey, rabbits. [5]:176 WindClan were expelled by ShadowClan when Firepaw entered the forest, but was soon returned with the help of Fireheart and Graystripe. [8] WindClan are forced to deal with ShadowClan and RiverClan, a recurring relationship that has further implications in later series. WindClan, along with the other clans, undergoes a dramatic shift in territory during the time crowpaw and the others are on their journey, much of the WindClan Territory is destroyed as the Two Legs continue their deforestation of the area [2] Finally, WindClan and the other clans are able to move to the sea area, whose WindClan camp is an area very similar to their ancient territory: wide-open hills and moors. Their territory is between ThunderClan's and RiverClan. A Twoleg horse court (horse ranch) is nearby, and occasionally dogs living there are set off and hunt the WindClan cats. The open hills offer the greatest views of the surrounding area, and a WindClan cat is typically located as a viewing field on one of them, capable of detecting threats much faster than in the forests. WindClan goes through a rather stressful time in the leadership, when Tallstar, her wise leader, dies at the age and his successor changes from Mudclaw to Onewhisker at the last minute. [3] At the time of the Power of Three series, WindClan decided to become more hostile to ThunderClan's dolls. Onestar, once a warm and thoughtful friend of Firestar, has completely withdrawn its previous relationship with the ThunderClan leader. WindClan cats often hunt prey nearby and across ThunderClan's borders, arguing that ThunderClan's camp to begin the biggest battle ever conceived in the series' history. [40]:336 Heatherstar Heatherstar is a pink-grey cat with blue eyes. She was the leader when WindClan attacked and accused ThunderClan of their unjust act. She chose Tallstar. [4]:544 Towards the end of Tallstar's revenge, she dies of Greencough, a Infection. Hawkheart Hawkheart is a spotted dark brown Tom with yellow eyes. He was once a fierce WindClan warrior who had little patience for kits, but StarClan later chose him to become a medical cat. He murdered Moonflower, Bluestar's mother, when Moonflower tried to destroy WindClan herbs and threatened Bluepaw when she was in the camp. [4]:544 Warriors (Original Series) The original series covers events in the history from Into the Wild to The Darkest Hour. Many of the characters mentioned here were introduced in the original series, but also play smaller or significant roles in the New Prophecy and Power of Three. Onestar, a small, spotted brown tabby tom with amber eyes, is the leader of WindClan for the last two books of the second series, the totality of the third and fourth series and the first three books of the fifth series. When Fireheart and kept that friendship, even when WindClan was furious with ThunderClan to protect Brokentail. [8] In The Darkest Hour, in the battle with BloodClan, Onewhisker was almost killed by the BloodClan leader, if not for Firestar, who saved him. [10] Later, In Starlight, Tallstar appointed Onewhisker as deputy on the verge of death, which meant that Onestar was now the leader of WindClan, although Tallstar did not use the right words to appoint a deputy. [3] At first, Onestar is very shy about his new position, but after receiving his nine lives and his name from StarClan, he becomes more confident and concludes that there can be no friendship between WindClan and ThunderClan, and WindClan must prove to be able to take care of itself without the help of others. Then he adopts a more leadership stance and abandons his friendship with Firestar. Rock says in Cats of the Clans that brings power and that he really misses Firestar. [41] Throughout the narrative arc Power of the Three, Onestar becomes increasingly hostile to Firestar and ThunderClan, occasionally ordering its warriors to hunt both nearby and beyond their borders. He claims ThunderClan thinks it's better than the other clans and ignores the warrior code by picking up non-clan-born cats. In the book Eclipse, he decides to teach Firestar a lesson and launches an attack with the whole WindClan on ThunderClan and RiverClan and River accusing her of planning an invasion against WindClan in The Forgotten Warrior, although, as it turns out, he has no evidence of his false accusation. In the last book, The Last Hope, he joins forces with the other clans to defeat the Cats of the Dark Forest. In the super issue of Bramblestar's Storm, however, Onesta recaptures its hostile attitude toward ThunderClan, now led by Bramblestar. During the flood, he orders his warriors to move the boundary between WindClan can have the water in the creek all to themselves, as it is their only source. However, Bramblestar and his warriors later return to their original surroundings after chasing away the crossing WindClan warriors and displacing the overturned tree trunk with which they crossed the creek. At the end of the super issue, Onestar agrees with Bramblestar's proposal to reluctantly add a new law to the Warriors Code. At the time of the fourth series, A Vision of Shadows, Onestar is now very old and has a grey muzzle. In the second book Thunder and Shadow, Onestar loses a life to the villaincat Darktail. This incident makes him guite mad and punishes his clan mates for breaking the warrior code in the slightest. He blames ShadowClan for the villains because they did not execute them earlier and refuses to give them a special herb that can cure the disease that spreads through their clan. After several failed attempts to found Onestar, ShadowClan holds Twigpaw, a ThunderClan apprentice, hostage in return for ThunderClan giving them the herb. Onestar, however, recognizes what Jayfeather and Alderpaw are trying to do and refuses to give ThunderClan the herb. Kestrelflight and Harespring are forced to go behind his back to bring the herb to ShadowClan, which outrages Onestar. However, many cats, including some from his own clan, consider him accusing when Rowanstar blames Onestar. Nevertheless, Onestar refuses to accept his mistake and calls ShadowClan a bunch of villains. In the next book, Shattered Sky, it is revealed that Darktail is actually Onestar's biological son. Onestar reveals that when he was still known as Onewhisker, he fell in love with a kitten called Smoke. He refused to let her join WindClan when she revealed that she was expecting his kits, partly because it wasn't life for her and partly because he was afraid of what would happen to him if his clan found out he was mating with a kitten. This rejection prompted Smoke to raise Darktail to hate his father, the clans and their way of life. Because he made many mistakes that led to terrible consequences Onestar is afraid that he will be sent to the Dark Forest when he dies. Kestrelflight points out that the Dark Forest is for cats that are pure evil, and assures Onestar that he has never been evil. Onestar admits that his fears, where selfish and apologizes for his actions (according to the this includes his hostility to Firestar, about which he has secretly always felt bad). Onestar right blaws his injustice when confronted Darktail, and engages him in a fight that leads to both cats drowning each other. Tallstar Tallstar, a black and white Tom with amber eyes and a very long tail, was the leader of WindClan before Onestar. Tallstar and his clan were driven from their territory by ShadowClan under Brokenstar's rule until Fireheart and Grevstripe brought them back. WindClan began a friendship with ThunderClan as a result of this. although it faltered when Tallstar became angry with ThunderClan to protect Brokenstail, the cat that drove her out of her territory. When Bluestar WindClan is suspected of being preved on. Fireheart seeks Tallstar to talk to Bluestar in peace. In The Darkest Hour, when Tigerstar announces that it will combine all four clans and territories into a single alliance, Tallstar and Firestar reject his offer. After BloodClan attacks, Tallstar and Firestar agree to fight them with the other clans in a temporary alliance called LionClan. [10] Tallstar loses his last life in Starlight with Onewhisker and Firestar by his side, making him the only cat to have served as a clan leader throughout the original series. He changed the MP from Mudclaw to Onewhisker on his deathbed, fearing that Mudclaw was not the right cat to lead WindClan after his death, because he wanted to keep the friendship with ThunderClan in the end. He feared that Mudclaw would harm ThunderClan because he had shown signs of blood thirst. [3] He oversees Morningflower and Deadfoot. His warrior name was Talltail. He was born Tallkit, but another kit, a Tom called Shrewkit, calls him Wormkit because of his expected determination of the trench of tunnels. Both his mother and father (Palebird and Sandgorse) want him to be a tunnelr, but Tallkit's days, recognizes his eagerness to run and turns him into a bog runner. Sandgorse is particularly dissatisfied, and he despises Tallkit when he reveals his true desires. When Sandgorse dies in a tunnel collapse, apparently due to the actions of a loner named Sparrow, Palebird pairs up with another tunneler called Woolytail and gives birth to his half-siblings. Tallpaw insults that his own mother isn't grieving for Sandgorse and is instead paired with another cat and says her kits are another excuse to stay in kindergarten since Palebird was born in the nursery and when his litter companion Finchkit died immediately after his birth. Tallpaw swears revenge on Sparrow. After completing his training. he leaves the clan to pursue Sparrow, and after days of travel, he finds where Sparrow and his travelling friends camp. Talltail plans to Sparrow, the loner reveals that Sandgorse actually sacrificed himself so he could escape. Talltail has mixed feelings that night, and the next day he decides to return to WindClan in peace. When Talltail returns, Heatherstar reveals that a cat would have to travel far to realize where his true fate had lied and that belligerent leader cat he was not a kitten. Deadfoot Deadfoot, a black cat with a crooked front paw, was the former deputy of WindClan under Tallstar and was a deputy when ShadowClan drove her out of its territory. Like Onewhisker, Deadfoot befriended Fireheart when he and Graystripe brought WindClan home. Deadfoot was not seen alive after The Darkest Hour. He appears in StarClan as the cat crowpaw (his son) (later Crowfeather) chooses to go on the journey to the sun-kissed place. Victoria Holmes confirmed he died fighting with BloodClan. He was Ashfoot's buddy and father to Crowfeather and Eaglekit. He was originally a kit of Meadowslip called Hopkit, but he twisted his paw and when he was trained, Heatherstar called him Deadpaw. Meadowslip is horrified and says Heatherstar can't change Hopkit's name because he looks like that, but Deadpaw says it's okay. The New Prophecy Series Covers events in the history from Midnight to Sunset. Many characters were mentioned here for the first time in the original series, but had smaller or insignificant roles. In addition, as with the original series, most of the characters listed here also play a minor or significant role in the following series, Power of Three. Crowfeather is a muscular, smoky grey Tom with blue eyes, [38] first introduced in Midnight as An Apprentice, Crowpaw. He was elected as a WindClan representative on the journey. Amazingly, he came to understand Feathertail best, and both loved each other throughout the journey. [27] However, she died when she killed the mountain lions (Puma, Cougar, etc.) Sharptooth killed to save his life and the trunk of the rushing water. [2] This only increased his warrior name based on their memory. Shortly after they reached their new home, he fell in love with Leafpaw (later Leafpool), who He revealed his affection in Starlight as he saved Leafpaw from falling to his death. [3] It was revealed that his relationship with Leafpaw was the real thing. She returned his feelings the two decided to meet at the border between their clans, where a stream passes through. Eventually, Leafpool's mentor finds out Cinderpelt, and the two leave their clans to be together. However, they were not long away before they returned and severed their connections, as Midnight had told them of a plot their relatives had made to destroy the clans. Crowfeather goes on to mate with a cat called Nightcloud and has a son, Breezepelt. He is the father of Jayfeather, Lionblaze and Hollyleaf, with Leafpool being the mother. Crowfeather shows little affection for Nightcloud and even less paternal love for his son, fearing he would lose him. Nightcloud loved Crowfeather, but he never gave her love back, which made her a terrible couple. But in The Sight, a cave collapses on Breezepelt and Lionblaze, and Crowfeather worries about his son's life. [42] Crowfeather mean nothing to him on Sunrise. [26] When his son Lionblaze is killed by Breezepelt, Crowfeather is just countering Breezepelt's attack. He says he has no regrets about having kits with Leafpool. When he sees Hollyleaf's body lying on the ground, he avoids Breezeand and says that Lionblaze, Jayfeather and his son joined the Cats from the Sun-Drown-Place journey to help the tribe of rushing water defend against intruders. [43] Crowfeather is the son of Deadfoot and Ashfoot and the brother of Eaglekit (as revealed in Secrets of the Clans). [5] He supervised Heathertail and was mentored by Mudclaw. He has fathered 6 kits: Breezepelt, (WindClan) two unnamed kits, [44] Hollyleaf, Lionblaze and Jayfeather (ThunderClan). Secrets of the Clans reveals that Crowfeather is the first two leaders of WindClan, Windstar and Gorsestar. [5] Mudclaw Mudclaw, a spotted dark brown Tom, is a WindClan beries[8] and who is a WindClan deputy from Firestars Quest[11] to Starlight. [3] Typically, it is hostile and easy to upset. He regularly attacks cats he finds on WindClan territory without first asking for explanations. Mudclaw is the leader of the patrol that prevents Bluestar from reaching Highstones in Rising Storm, [45] which leads them to abandon faith in StarClan and declare war on StarClan. Mudclaw, who is very loyal to WindClan and very aggressive towards all other cats, was appointed deputy to WindClan after Deadfoot's death. As the New Prophecy series continues, More and more sick and Mudclaw takes over many of his duties and often acts as a secondary leader. It also implied that he even occasionally steals loot from the other clans without his leader's knowledge. When Tallstar is on the verge of death, he suddenly replaces Mudclaw with Onewhisker as deputy, deputy, Mudclaw right to become leader. His reasons for this are Mudclaw is outraged by this and conspires with Hawkfrost of RiverClan to overthrow Onewhisker and reclaim the position he rightly considers his. Before his plan can succeed, however, Brambleclaw and a number of ThunderClan cats get involved, causing Mudclaw to be crushed by a falling tree. The tree now serves as a bridge to an island where the clans now have meetings. Mudclaw doesn't reside in the Dark Forest/Place of The No Stars with TigerStar, Darkstripe and Hawkfrost as a result of his revolt, as he really felt he was doing the right thing. Power of Three Series covers events in the history from The Sight to Sunrise. Heathertail A pretty, well-manned light brown, tabby WindClan cat with stunning pagan eyes, Heathertail develops a close friendship with Lionblaze during The Sight and Dark River. [46] [42] Heathertail discovers a series of secret tunnels connecting WindClan's territories and ThunderClan and shares this knowledge with Lionblaze. The two then begin to meet in the tunnels at night and pretend to be members of the fictional DarkClan s., whose leader is Heathertail and Lionblaze's deputy. These meetings eventually take a toll on the daily lives of both cats, and Heathertail is hurt when Lionblaze decides that their relationship can no longer continue. Heathertail's relationship with Lionblaze is further strained in Eclipse, as Lionblaze, in a bloodlust caused by the clan-wide battle started by WindClan, where he accuses her of revealing the secret of the tunnels to her clan mates. [40] Heathertail denies this, but Lionblaze doesn't believe her and vows to be her enemy forever, destroying her friendship. Lionblaze may have realized what he was doing, but when he tried to talk to Heathertail and perhaps say he was sorry, she pretended she didn't want to be near him. In a Wands and World chat, she reveals that she doesn't feel affection for Breezepelt and still loves Lionblaze. In Long Shadows of the Power of Three series Lionblaze takes Catmint from WindClan Territory to deal with a major outbreak of Greencough. Heathertail confronts him and reminds him not to become a bully like his relative Tigerstar. Breezepelt A black Tom with amber eyes, Breezepelt, the son of Crowfeather and Nightcloud, is an idiosyncratic WindClan warrior who first as an apprentice, Breezepaw, in The presented. [42] He often makes tactless remarks and is not afraid to express his negative opinions. He has panicked in times of crisis and is quick to argue. Despite his grumpy demeanor, Breezepelt is known for working together on a number of occasions and losing his hostile attitude. Lose. fully in favour of the task at hand. In Outcast, he accompanies his father and the other clan cats on their journey to the tribe of rushing water to help them defeat a group of invaders. [31] It was revealed that much of Breezepelt's erroneous behaviour was due to a lack of support from his father Crowfeather, who has little regard for his welfare. Crowfeather's reasons for rejecting his son are most likely due to his past (and still-persistent) love interest in Leafpool. He is also half-brother of Hollyleaf, Jayfeather and Lionblaze, because they all have the same father: Crowfeather has three kits in another clan very badly. In The Fourth Apprentice, he follows Poppyfrost to Moonpool. [28] He threatens to kill them when Jayfeather shows up and declares that he hates his half-siblings and would never forgive them for what their mother did. He ignores Jayfeather's pleas and attacks the two ThunderClan cats. Poppyfrost, who is pregnant, is unable to fight him, so Jayfeather is forced to fight his half-brother himself, along with Honeyfern, who helps Jayfeather, and Brokenstar, who helps Breezepelt. It is revealed that he is trained by Dark Forest and is part of the battle between StarClan and the Crowfeather prevented him from killing Lionblaze. In Crowfeather's Trail, Breezepelt reconciles with his estranged father and Lionblaze. Nightcloud A black cat, Nightcloud is introduced in The Sight as a partner of Crowfeather and mother of her son Breezepelt. [42] Her relationship with Crowfeather seems to have no real affection for her. Nightcloud is aware of Crowfeather's previous relationship with Leafpool and is annoyed by Leafpool's continued affection for her, even though Leafpool is a medical cat from another clan and she can never love him. This implies that Crowfeather only took Nightcloud as a partner out of necessity to either continue or, as Rock notes in Cats of the Clans, to prove its loyalty to WindClan. [41] Nightcloud appreciates her son Breezepelt and is upset by Crowfeather's lack of affection for him. Later on Sunrise, she gets angry when Hollyleaf says Crowfeather's inability to love Nightcloud causes them to fall apart. However, they reconcile in Crowfeather's Trail, although they never become friends again. [1] In addition to lizards, frogs and small forest animals such as voles, ShadowClan occasionally catches rats, as they are occasionally Diseases. ShadowClan are often portrayed as the primary antagonists of the series, and as such many of its individual members are rude and hostile. However, many ShadowClan cats are entirely dedicated to their leader; Since a number of ShadowClan leaders were truly abhorrent, the actions of their followers followed as expected. Some cats say that ShadowClan cats are so mean because the cold wind in their area supposedly cools their hearts. ShadowClan, along with the other clans, undergoes a dramatic change of territory. [2] Finally, ShadowClan and the other clans are able to move to the sea area, whose ShadowClan camp is located in a dense pine forest. Although not quite the same as the swamps they inhabit, the thickness of the forest often envelops the area in darkness and darkness and darkness and be same as the swamps they inhabit, the thickness of the forest often envelops the area in darkness and darkness and be same as the swamps they inhabit the same as the swamps they inhabit the thickness of the forest often envelops the area in darkness and darkness and be same as the swamps they inhabit the same as the swamps they inhabit the thickness of the forest often envelops the area in darkness and darkness and be same as the swamps they inhabit the same as the swamps for prey, which leads to ShadowClan again inhabiting the least desirable area. Despite their bad luck, they manage to eat decently enough (a testament to the forest is a two-leg house on the northern edge of ShadowClan Territory, home to two violent kittens who often attack clan cats, get lost too close and call their twolegs to fend off patrols. ThunderClan helps to tell these two cats to leave the clan cats alone in Twilight. [18]:352 Warriors (original series) The original series covers events in the history from Into the Wild to The Darkest Hour. Many of the characters mentioned here were introduced in the original series, but can also play smaller or significant roles in the series The New Prophecy and Power of Three. Boulder, a thin silver tabby tom with a tattered ear and bright watchful eyes, is a former member of BloodClan and a member of ShadowClan. In the book Cats of the Clans, he was actually invited to join ShadowClan, inspired by the hunting patrols and battles, and he decided to leave BloodClan and join ShadowClan. [48] He was one of the few cats chased out of ThunderClan Territory by Firepaw and Yellowfang. When Tigerstar to BloodClan to meet its leader Scourge. Boulder revealed to Firestar that BloodClan attacked her clan after Tigerstar's death some ShadowClan warriors had joined them. In the end, Boulder lived as an elder in ShadowClan during the second series and died at one point between Sunset and The an Greencough Greencough Blackstar, a tall white Tom with black paws and ears and amber eyes, was ShadowClan's deputy Blackfoot when Brokenstar's followers and killed one of ThunderClan's elders, Rosetail, in an attempt to steal their kits, but was fought by Yellowfang. Blackfoot, along with Brokenstar, Clawface and Boulder, were driven out of their territory. Blackfoot lived as a villain with Brokenstar and attacked the ThunderClan camp under his command. When Tigerstar became leader of ShadowClan, Blackfoot was reappointed deputy. In TigerClan, Blackfoot Darkstripe helped kill Stonefur because he was a half-clan cat, prompting Firestar to consider him untrustworthy even if he agreed to fight LionClan on their side. After the fight with BloodClan, he announced that he was preparing for his trip to Highstones to preserve his nine lives and his new name, as he was now the leader of ShadowClan due to Tigerstar's death. He is introduced as a leader in Firestar begins to lose some hostility to ThunderClan warriors were found in ShadowClan Territory. [43] However, Blackstar begins to lose faith in StarClan in Eclipse after a strange cat named Sol lives with ShadowClan and questions StarClan's existence and power, this changes to Long Shadows, when Hollyleaf, Lionblaze, Jayfeather, and three ShadowClan apprentices fake a star clan sign to restore Blackstar's faith in his warrior ancestors. [25] Real StarClan warriors (Raggedstar and Runningnose) seem to complete the mark, and Blackstar and ShadowClan begin to believe in StarClan again, driving Sol out of the clan later. Blackstar has looked after Tallpoppy. During the Battle of The Last Hope, Blackstar kills Redwillow for training in the Dark Forest and later loses a life in an attack on the ShadowClan camp, but guickly recovers and thanks Firestar for his help with back-up warriors. In Bramblestar's storm, he dies as a result of a flood and makes Rowanclaw the leader. Clawface Clawface is a warrior. In Into the Wild, he steals ThunderClan kits and kills Spottedleaf. In Fire and Ice, Clawface is seriously injured by Fireheart and killed by Graystripe. Clawface, however, inexplicably lives in the novel Tigerclaw's Fury, which took place after being taken by Graystripe Was. Clawface is hinted at being in the Dark Forest. Brokenstar is a huge, longswirled, dark brown tabby tom with bright amber eyes, torn ears, a broad, flat face, a battle-hardened muzzle and a tail bent like a broken branch in the middle. He was the former leader of ShadowClan before Nightstar Nightstar is portrayed a little as the primary antagonist of Into the Wild. [1] He was a cruel cat who turned Three Moons into apprentices too soon, which in turn led to her death. He was the son of Raggedstar and Yellowfang, but did not know that the latter was given to an ambitious gueen named Lizardstripe, who was to be cared for instead. Lizardstripe wouldn't accept Brokentail in her cave if he was a kit just because he had a crooked tail. [48] Brokentail grew into a great warrior and eventually became a surrogate, but he murdered his own father Raggedstar so that he could become a leader and banished Yellowfang from ShadowClan by falsely accusing them of murdering two apprentices whom he killed himself by forcing them to train as warriors too early. This banishment led to Yellowfang's inclusion in ThunderClan. In Into The Wild, when Brokenstar is first introduced, Yellowfang and Firepaw drove Brokenstar is first introduced. Yellowfang's inclusion in ThunderClan camp to kill Fireheart, but was blinded by Yellowfang. [8] He was then captured and stripped of his leadership status and renamed Brokentail. He planned with his rogue allies, although the attack failed. [12] When the villains were expelled and Tigerclaw was exiled, Yellowfang decided to end Brokentail's life by feeding him death berries and also revealing to him that she was really his mother. Later, in Sunset, he is hinted at being in the Dark Forest/place of No Stars with TigerStar, Hawkfrost and Darkstripe, after the latter smells him. [13] Brokenstar looked after Mosspaw and Volepaw (both of whom died before becoming warriors), even though they were only three moons old. Brokentail could have appeared in The Rise of Scourge when Scourge smells a forest cat and thinks he is a tiger star. [6] Instead, a Tom with a curved tail and two rogue friends are found, calling him Boss. After one is killed, Tom with the bent tail says: I have had my filling from this place. It's time to return to the forest... where we belong. He also has an appearance on The Fourth Apprentice, where he attacks Jayfeather as a ghost cat along with Breezepelt. [28] Both were expelled by Honeyfern before they could kill him or Poppyfrost. Along with Tigerstar and Hawkfrost, he greedily guards Poppyfrost's kits at the end of the book. He also makes lyppool attempt to kill Flametail before Tigerheart stops her and Tiger star agrees with Tigerheart He reappears in The Last Hope, where he and the other Dark Forest cats invade the ThunderClan camp. During the battle, he killed Ferncloud, who guarded the kindergarten before being killed a second time by Yellowfang, which to die and fade forever. Nightstar Nightstar, a slender but frail black Tom with amber eyes and a long tail, was the leader of ShadowClan in Into the Wild, Nightpelt, one of the clan's most senior warriors, offered to take over the leadership of

ShadowClan and appointed Cinderfur as his deputy. [1] In Rising Storm, however, he fell ill due to the illness from Carrionplace, which was raging through the ShadowClan camp at the time, and died, although he apparently had to save nine lives. [45] Runningnose, ShadowClan camp at the time, and died, although the ShadowClan camp at the time, and died, although he apparently had to save nine lives. really got his nine lives when he first traveled to the Moonstone, perhaps because Brokentail, ex-leader of ShadowClan, was still alive and remained leader in the eyes of StarClan ShadowClan. After Brokentail's death, Nightstar was too weak to travel back to the Moonstone and eventually died in the Rising Storm, allowing Tigerclaw to take control of ShadowClan. Nightpelt has overseen Dawncloud. [45] Tiger star Tigerstar (born Tigerkit) is a giant dark brown tabby tom with amber eyes and unusually long front claws. He was born in ThunderClan, the son of Pinestar and Leopardfoot, but is exiled for the attempted murder of Bluestar, the former leader of ThunderClan. He is looked after by Thistleclaw, and because his father Pinestar left the clan to become a kitten, and he tries to prove that he will not leave ThunderClan, as his father did, but Tigerclaw was angry that his own clan did not trust him. Before being exiled, he accuses his apprentice Ravenpaw of treason and promises with Goldenflower, a ThunderClan cat. They have two kits, Tawnykit (later Tawnypelt) and Bramblekit (later Bramblestar). Then he retreats to ThunderClan with a sworn vengeance. He appears in ShadowClan as a tiger star. At this time Shadowclan needs a strong leader; they are in chaos because of the sudden death of Nightstar, the leader who never gets the traditional nine lives of StarClan. Tigerstar is more than ready to lead them. He brings villains into the clan, and when his cats question his life planning against Fireheart, and one of his plans involves leading wild dogs directly into the ThunderClan camp. Bluestar is killed while Firestar is rescued. Being a surrogate before she dies, he becomes Firestar, leader of ThunderClan, he becomes friends with a loner named Sasha. They have three kits, Tadpole, Hawk (later Hawkkit, then Hawkfrost) and Moth (later Mothkit, then Mothwing). Tadpole dies, drowns in a flood of cellars. Instead of going to StarClan, Tigerstar is sent to the Place of the Stars or the Dark Forest. There he still plans Revenge on Firestar. In the end, in The Last Hope, his mind is finally and permanently destroyed by Firestar. Tall Shadow Appears in the Dawn of the Clans series, Tall Shadow is a night-black cat with dark green eyes. Her only known family is her brother Moon Shadow. Born in the mountains, she leaves with a fraction of the tribe to find a new home. After the group's leader, Shaded Moss, dies, she takes the lead. It sets up the camp in the moor. [49] She eventually resigns and becomes co-leader of Gray Wing after the death of Moon Shadow. [50] Eventually, she leaves the moor and sets up a new camp in the swamp. She appoints Sun Shadow Deputy and Pebble Heart Medicine Cat. [51] Later she received her nine lives and was renamed Shadowstar. She is the first leader to lose her nine lives. [5] The New Prophecy Series The New Prophecy Series covers events in the history from Midnight to Sunset. Many characters were mentioned here for the first time in the original series, but had smaller or insignificant roles. In addition, as with the original series, most of the characters listed here also play a minor or significant role in the following series, Power of Three. Tawnypelt, a slender, mottled, calico she-cat with green eyes and well muscled shoulders (although listed as a gold tabby as AKit), Tawnypelt is the daughter of Goldenflower and Tigerstar, as well as the littermates of Brambleclaw and half-sister of Hawkfrost, Mothwing, Tadpole and Swiftpaw. When she lived in ThunderClan as apprentice Tawnypaw, most of her clan colleagues didn't trust her because her father was a Tiger star, so she left ThunderClan to join ShadowClan, then part of an alliance under Tigerstar's rule tigerClan. [10] She became a loyal ShadowClan warrior, although some of her clan colleagues still doubt her loyalties because she was born in ThunderClan. Your full warrior name is revealed in Firestar's Quest. [11] In Midnight, she is selected as shadow clan representative in search of a new home for the clans. [27] By chance, her brother Brambleclaw was also elected ThunderClan. representative. Tigerstar offered her the same plan of power that he offered her brothers Hawkfrost and Brambleclaw to make her leader of ShadowClan, but she rejected him and said that if she ever became a leader, it would be through honesty and loyalty. In the Power of Three series, she collaborates with Rowanclaw to have three kits: Dawnkit, Tigerkit and Flamekit. She walks with her brother Brambleclaw, Squirrelflight, Stormfur, Brook, Crowfeather and his son Breezepaw, Hollypaw, Jaypaw and in outcast to help the trunk of rushing water with a group of rogues who have invaded their territory. [31] In Long Shadows, Tawnypelt and her kits temporarily leave ShadowClan and go to after Blackstar loses faith in StarClan and denounces it. [25] Power of Three The Power of Three series covers events in the history from The Sight to Sunrise. Tigerheart The son of Tawnypelt and Rowanclaw and the brother of Dawnpelt and Flametail, Tigerheart is a pretty, slender dark brown tabby tom with amber eyes and straight, thick whiskers. He is the grandson of Tigerstar, after whom he is named. Although it resembles the latter, it is very cheerful and friendly. It is first presented as Kit, Tigerkit, in Dark River and later as An Apprentice in Long Shadows. He is the best hunter of his siblings. In Long Shadows, Tigerheart and his siblings and Tawnypelt leave ShadowClan temporarily for ThunderClan after ShadowClan loses its faith in StarClan. He also helps Lionblaze, Hollyleaf and Jayfeather convince Blackstar to believe that StarClan is still watching over them by creating a fake StarClan sign. Tigerheart had the same mentors as his mother Tawnypelt, both when she was in ThunderClan and ShadowClan. He was temporarily cared for by Brackenfur while remaining in ThunderClan and being cared for by Oakfur when he returned to ShadowClan. In The Fourth Apprentice, there is evidence that he crushed Dovepaw, Lionblaze's Apprentice. This is confirmed in Night Whispers, when the two admitted their feelings for each other. In Sign of the Moon and The Forgotten Warrior, Tigerheart's relationship with Dovewing is damaged after Dovewing is Dawnpelt and Tigerheart, Flametail has a bright ginger fur like his father and faded light green eyes, thick fur, a bushy tail and short, pudgy legs. He dreams of becoming a medical cat under Littlecloud instead of a warrior, probably based on his attachment to Jayfeather and curiosity. He was first introduced as a kit, flamekit, in outcast[31] and as an apprentice in Long Shadows. [25] In Long Shadows, he leaves ShadowClan for ThunderClan, with his siblings and Tawnypelt after ShadowClan loses faith in StarClan, and also helps create the fake StarClan character. [25] During a stay in ThunderClan, he was temporarily cared for by Cloudtail and is trained by Littlecloud to become a medical cat in Sunrise. Flametail died when he drowned in the frozen lake at Night Whispers. [36] His sister Dawnpelt believes that Jayfeather is unable to save Flametail. Dawnpelt only daughter of Tawnypelt and Rowanclaw and the sister of Flametail and Tigerheart, Dawnpelt has a creamy coat and a fiery personality similar to her mother, and seems closer to Hollyleaf than her other apparent cousins, Lionblaze and Jayfeather, and is the best fighter from her It was first presented as Kit, Dawnkit, in Outcast[31] and as an Apprentice in Long Shadows. [25] She left ShadowClan for ThunderClan with her mother and fellow litter after losing faith in StarClan and helped create the fake StarClan sign. She was temporarily cared for by Spiderleg when she stayed in ThunderClan. Her mentor was revealed as Ivytail in Sunrise. In The Forgotten Warrior, she blames Jayfeather for Flametail's death. [26] In Thunder and Shadow, the second book of A Vision of Shadows, Dawnpelt is one of the many ShadowClan cats that leave Rowanstar and join Darktail's villains. She does not want to leave her or her home. In the next book, Shattered Sky, Dawnpelt grows together with most deserters to regret her decision after seeing how cruel and dishonorable Darktail and its villains really are. She decides to go with her sons Strikestone and Juniperclaw, but not her daughter Sleekwhisker, who is said to have a crush on Darktail. But just as Dawnpelt leaves, she is caught by Darktail and disappears after an argument with him. It is not known exactly what happened to her, but it is strongly suggested that Darktail took her to the lake and drowned her, along with some other former ShadowClan cats who died during Darktail's reign. It is shown that she deeply regrets her decision to leave the clans and that she has given up her life to get it right. Later she gives her brother Tigerstar, one of his nine lives. A Vision of Shadows Needletail A silver-grey cat with white chest and strong green eyes, Needletail is the daughter of Berryheart and Sparrowtail. In The Apprentice's Quest and Thunder and Shadow, she is a rebellious and disrespectful apprentice who, along with many others, feels that ShadowClan must be feared again. She is furious when Rowanstar dismissed Darktail's villains. Needlepaw openly criticized Rowanstar, and she was punished for speaking out against her leader. Her words later sparked controversy within ShadowClan. When Darktail again asks to join ShadowClan, Rowanstar denies it, and Needlepaw leads an Apprentice rebellion against Rowanstar, claiming that she and the other apprentices don't want to live like clan cats and join the villains. Needlepaw, Juniperpaw and Sleekpaw go, and Needlepaw takes the young Violetkit with him. Although her classmates Yarrowpaw, Beepaw and decide to stay in ShadowClan, follow Cloverfoot and Berryheart, When she joins the villains, Needlepaw gives herself her warrior name Needlepaw gives herself her of Violetpaw's sister. In the and Shadow Barnes & amp; Noble exclusive chapters, Needletail, then Needlepaw, is shown training with Tawnypelt. An owl takes her and no patrols are sent out to look for her. She meets a villain named Tree, and he brings her back to ShadowClan. Needlepaw is deeply hurt and disappointed when she learned that her clan colleagues thought she was dead and sent her on the path of rebellion. In Shattered Sky, Needletail is demonstrably one of Darktail's most loyal followers and is perfectly satisfied when Darktail puts them in the kin and leaves the weaker cats to their own devices. Needletail becomes Violetpaw's only friend during the reign and believes that Darktail is the real leader ShadowClan needs. But along with the majority of former ShadowClan cats, she grows to regret her betrayal after realizing that Darktail is a brutal tyrant who wants nothing more than to harm other cats. She becomes part of the plot to get rid of him, but that fire fires when Sleekwhisker notices that Violetpaw poppy is in Darktail's loot. Darktail decides to punish Violetpaw by killing the one she has left, Needletail. Needletail. Needletail sacrifices itself to let Violetpaw, and Needletail's parents, Berryheart and Sparrowtail, miss their daughter very much and are distraught to know that she was one of Darktail's most loyal followers at the time. Darkest Night reveals that, along with all other cats drowned by Darktail, Needletail was not granted entry to StarClan or the location of the stars. Instead, she was sent to an unnamed residence, where she connects with Tree, to whom she admits she had wrongly trusted Darktail, and later her childhood friend Alderheart, who gives him a prophecy not to scatter the incoming shadows. In this way, Needletail and the other cats are allowed to join StarClan. In River of Fire, Needletail, although she has previously admitted her mistakes, continues to blame Rowanstar for ShadowClan's fall because he was a weak leader. Shadowstar rebukes her statement, saying it's more than that, and Needletail, but she couldn't understand why she was so crabby. Smaller ShadowClan characters The following are ShadowClan characters that have been introduced or appear in the Warriors novel series, with small, less significant and/or individual instances in the story. SkyClan is the fifth clan of the original forest areas, a fact that all cats except Firestar, Sandstorm, Graystripe, Cinderpelt, Squirrelflight, Alderheart, the new SkyClan and StarClan was unknown. Their camp was located where the Twolegplace, where Barley's farm is now and they have the unique ability to jump very high, a technique passed on to some kittens and villains in the rocky gorge. SkyClan's camp also spread where Firestar's friend Smudge lives. They were expelled when their part of the forest was excavated to create Twolegplace. Homeless and starving, SkyClan called the other clans for help, but none of them wanted to redistribute their territory and as such SkyClan was forced to leave the forest. They drove north along the river before eventually settling into a rocky gorge. But soon an intelligent and vicious horde of rats attacked most of the clan and killed them, forcing the remains to scatter across the nearby forest and twolegplaces. [53] The modern SkyClan was able to defeat the rat pack and live in peace so that Moons could come under the leadership of Leafstar. SkyClan is still trying to make their clan bigger because it is very small at the moment. SkyClan have warriors, but the warriors in the clan sometimes call them kitty warriors. They are eventually driven out by The Kin, who claim the gorge for themselves. During her exile, SkyClan is discovered by a ThunderClan apprentice named Twigpaw (later Twigbranch), who soon turns out to be Hawkwing's daughter. Twigpaw brings her kinship back to the Lake Territories, where she introduces Hawkwing to her sister Violetpaw (later Violetshine). With all five clans together, Darktail and its rouges are defeated. The current SkyClan. After joining, Firestar gave her the warrior name Leafdapple, and she looked after Sparrowpelt. StarClan later chose Leafdapple to take the lead because of her thoughtful personality and understanding of the warrior code. Firestar doesn't feel comfortable at first that she's the leader, but he realizes how empathetic she is when she tells him that she knows his first loyalty is home to his own clan. During their leadership ceremony, the old leaders of the four clans come together to give her four of their nine lives as an excuse to SkyClan for executing them. Leafstar is also in love with Billystorm, a daylight warrior, and they became friends. You have Firekit (named after Stormkit (named after Stormkit (named after Stormkit)) and Harrykit (named after Sol's house cat name Harry). Sharpclaw A dark ginger tabby tom with broad shoulders and green eyes, Sharpclaw. He was a mentor for and is currently SkyClan's deputy. He tends to have a quick temper and sharp tongue. In the SkyClan manga it is revealed that he has a crush on Cherrytail. He was killed by Rouge leader Darktail. Hawkwing, his son, succeeds him. Echosong Echosong Kas a former kitten named Echo, but got the role of SkyClan medical cat after she had started to have dreams of the old SkyClan and StarClan. At first, she wasn't sure how to interpret dreams of her warrior ancestors, but later grew into her role as a medical cat. Later, Fawnstep, SkyClan's medical cat at the time of her exile, said she would share dreams with her, implying that Fawnstep would be Echosong's mentor, just as Leafpool was Willowshine's mentor when Mothwing couldn't teach her about StarClan. [11] She gets the vision that makes Leafstar the leader. Skywatcher A scarred, very old, dark grey Tom with matted fur and light blue eyes, Skywatcher was also known as Moony. Skywatcher was an old cat that was the last true warrior of SkyClan, called Sky, until Firestar and Sandstorm rebuilt SkyClan. He was the one who showed them around SkyClan territory. He died in his sleep, but Firestar believes he wanted to live to rebuild SkyClan. He returns to give Leafstar one of their nine lives, and he is also the cat that informs Firestar of the strength of the Three Prophecy: there will be three, kinship of your kinship, holding the power of the stars in their paws. [11] [54] Cherrytail A small turtle and white cat, Cherrytail A small turtle and white cat, Cherrytail was a former kitten named Cherry, and teased Skywatcher for his strange behaviors, but later learns that she is a SkyClan cat and becomes Cherrypaw, who is cared for by Sharpclaw. At the end of Firestar's quest, she gets her warrior name and mentors Rockshade. She is the sister of Sparrowpelt. She is very brave, excitable and alive. She is also with Sharpclaw, where she gives birth to Hawkkit, Cloudkit and Blossomkit. The names of the three cats are Hawkwing, Cloudmist and Blossomheart. Petalnose A pale grey cat with blue eyes, Petalnose was a former kitten named Petal who was rescued from an insulting twoleg by Firestar, Sandstorm and SkyClan. Her buddy is Rainfur, who died fighting with the rats, and her two kits are Mintfur and Sagenose. After being rescued, she decided to stay with her buddy in the SkyClan and serve as a warrior as soon as her kits were ready to be trained. [11] Patchfoot A black and white Tom with Eyes, Patchfoot used to be a villain called Patch. A rat attack injured his shoulder. As he recovered, thanks to Spottedleaf, which showed Sandstorm and Firestar how to treat rat bites with burdock root, Patchfoot joined the fight against the rats. At the end of Firestar's quest, he oversees Bouncepaw, who later In SkyClan's Destiny, Clovertail awaits his kits. [55] Sparrowpelt used to be a kitten named Boris. He and his sister Cherrytail teased skywatchers for his strange behavior. Later, however, he learns that he is a SkyClan's cat and that Sparrowpaw is being looked after by Leafdapple. In the end, he gets his warrior name and mentorS Tinycloud. [11] Rainfur A light grey spots, Rainfur used to be a villain. At first he did not want to go to SkyClan, but was later forced to ask the clan for help to save his buddy Petal (later Petalnose) from their cruel Twoleg owner. In the end, he decided to join SkyClan, but was killed fighting the rats. He appeared in Leafstar's leadership ceremony to reassure Firestar that his death was not his fault. He is also the father of Mintfur and Sagenose. [11] Clovertail A light brown cat with white belly and legs and green eyes, Clovertail used to be a loner named Clover. She first met Firestar and Sandstorm while defending her kits against a fox. She then joins SkyClan, but initially only for protection. In the end, her loyalty to SkyClan is proven when she fought the rats. Apparently she is partly descended from RiverClan because she is an avid swimmer and the fact that Firestar saw that Birchstar and Heavystep looked very similar to Clovertail at Leafstar's Leader ceremony. She is the mother of Rockshade, Bouncefire and Tinycloud. She had three kits with Patchfoot: Birdpaw, Honeypaw and Sandypaw. [11] Rockshade A black Tom with a ripped ear, Rockshade is one of the three kits of Clovertail's litter, formerly a loner called Rock. His mentor is Cherrytail. His warrior name is revealed as Rockshade in SkyClan's Destiny. [55] Tinycloud is one of the three kits of Clovertail's litter, formerly a loner named Tiny. Her mentor is Sparrowpelt. Their warrior name Tinycloud is revealed in SkyClan's Destiny. [55] When she gets her warrior name, she disapproves of him. She says she is no longer tiny and should be named differently. Later, she changes her mind, knowing full well that it is part of the warrior name ritual. Bouncefire A ginger tom, Bouncefire is one of the three kits of Clovertails litter, formerly a loner called Bounce, he is later called Bouncefire by Leafstar. Is a littermate to Tinycloud and Rockshade. Sagenose is a pale grey Tom named after the sage in the garden of his formerly a kitten named Sage. His sister is Mintfur. [11] She is described as a spotted grey cat with amber eyes. Tangle Tangle is a bad-tempered villain who occasionally enters SkyClan territory in SkyClan's Destiny. [55] He refused to hear Firestar's offer to join SkyClan as an elder. He is described as a large tabby tom with shredded skins and amber eyes. Egg Egg is a long-legged, slender, cream-colored Tom with blue eyes and a shredded ear. He joined SkyClan after Sharpclaw told him that the fox that had invaded his house remained there forever. His mentor was Sharpclaw. Waspwhisker is a grey and white Tom with a scar that wraps around his belly up to his tail. It used to be a lost kitten until SkyClan found him. His buddy is Fallowfern and his kits are Nettlesplash, Plumwillow, Rabbitleap and Creekfeather. In the loyalties of SkyClan's Destiny, he is mistakenly called Hunchfoot because his name was changed at the last moment. Shrewtooth A thin black Tom, Shrewtooth is from the same twoleg house as Petalnose and her kits. He didn't tell anyone where he came from and was very often nervous. Later, the clan attacked its former Twoleg owner. At the end of SkyClan's Destiny, Leafstar said shrewtooth had gone from being extremely nervous to one of her best warriors. [55] Ebonyclaw is a striking black cat. She puts a cotton wool moss between her neck and her kitten collar to keep it from noises during the hunt. She is a daylight warrior. She was also Frecklepw's original mentor. Ebonyclaw also oversaw Hawkwing, Cherrytails Kit. As SkyClan distances itself to find the rest of the clans, she makes the decision to stick with her Twolegs, which is no longer a warrior of SkyClan. Billystorm Billystorm is a ginger and white Tom with green eyes, and he is a daylight warrior. He is in love with Leafstar and eventually becomes her buddy. He comes back a much better warrior, along with Macgyver. In an exclusive SkyClan manga he hunts two dogs with Macgyver loyal loyalty. Macgyver is a black and white Tom and a daylight warrior. It is said that he never took a warrior name. Frecklewish is a spotted legs and a daylight warrior. She was originally an Ebonyclaw apprentice, but was later switched to the teaching of Echosong for an education as a medical cat. She was not initially admitted as a medical cat apprentice because she was a daylight warrior and was not there half the time. In a manga at the end of SkyClan's Destiny, it shows off her full medical cat name Frecklewish. [55] Fallowfern Fallowfern is a light brown cat with blue eyes. She is the mother of Waspwhiskers Kits: Rabbitkit, Creekkit, Nettlekit and Plumkit. In a manga at the end of SkyClan's Destiny, it jumps ahead and shows the kits that get their warrior names: Nettlesplash, Creekfeather, Plumwillow and Rabbitleap. [55] Birdwing is a black cat with green eyes. She is bright and cheerful. She is Clovertails and Patchfoot's daughter and the sister of Honeytail and Sandynose. She was part of a group of young warriors and apprentices who used domestic cat food, and man put her then-injured eye into medicine to help her heal, which she did. She was revealed to have kits from Hawkwing's Journey. Honeytail Honeytail is a pale cat. She is the sister of Birdwing and Sandynose and the daughter of Clovertail and Patchfoot. Sandynose is a grey cat with darker gray legs and ears, her gender is unknown, but suspected by most fans as Tom. This will later be confirmed that this is true on Hawkwing's journey. He is the sibling of Birdwing and Honeytail and the child of Clovertail and Patchfoot. His buddy is Plumwillow, who wears him Reedclaw, Finleap and Dewspring. [57] Former SkyClan members of Cats, who were once part of SkyClan, left him. Shortwhisker was nervous about other cats, much like Ravenpaw in ThunderClan. He overcame his fear and fought the rats. After the battle, he realizes that clan life is not suitable for him, a decision that Firestar and Leafstar respect, and returns to Hutch. Hutch also promised to spread the word to other cats via SkyClan. [11] Snookthorn is a black and white Tom and a former daylight warrior. He left to be a domestic cat after seeing the look of hatred in people's eyes as SkyClan tried to help a child, saying that people were not his enemy. He went after getting his warrior name. Also a SkyClan descendant. Snookthorn always admired Bouncefire, who died of darktail betrayal. Stick A brown Tom with vellow eves and a torn ear, Stick joined SkyClan, but when it was time for his warrior names, he decided to keep his name. He stayed in his city the fight with Dodge. Father to red and former buddy of Velvet. Stick is Leafstar a little hostile because she refused to kill Dodge in Skyclan's fate. Shorty Brown tom with a stub for a tail and amber eves. Shorty joined SkyClan, but when it was time for his warrior names, he decided to keep his name, similar to what Stick did. He remained in his town after the battle with Dodge. Coal Black tom with amber eves and a long coat. Coal joined SkyClan, but when it was time for his warrior names, he decided to keep his name. He remained in his town after the battle with Dodge. Cora Black she cat with a ripped ear, Cora joined SkyClan, but when it was time for her warrior names, she kept her own name. She remained in town after the battle with Dodge. She took a buddy with Shorty, as shown in Hawkwing's journey. Curlypaw Pale Gray Her Cat. Curlypaw trained under Hawkwing before leaving SkyClan to become a Kittypet. Old SkyClan cats Not much is known about the old SkyClan cats that were driven out of the forest by Twolegs because not many details were added. There are more cats, but some of their names are not mentioned in the book. Skystar, formerly a mountain cat, Skystar is the first leader of SkyClan. His parents are Quiet Rain and Dewy Leaf and his brother was Gray Wing. First called Clear Sky, he left his son ThunderClan. Cloudstar A small, light grey Tom with white spots like clouds, huge water-blue eyes, thorn-sharp claw tips and a welloomed, well-formed head, Cloudstar was the leader of SkyClan when they were driven out of the forest. Cloudstar and his clan used to leave the forest because of human developments in the area, although they asked other clans for help. Cloudstar's buddy Birdflight staved behind with ThunderClan because of her kits. Cloudstar came in firestar's dreams to ask for help and tell him he needs to rebuild SkyClan, and also visited the dreams of Firestar's old friend Smudge, whose house is above the place where the SkyClan camp was located. In the end, SkyClan was rebuilt and Cloudstar comes to give Leafstar one of her nine lives and reunites with Birdflight, as well as their kits, Spottedpelt and Gorseclaw. Due to the striking similarity of Spottedleaf and Tigerclaw to Spottedpelt and Gorseclaw, they are believed to be descended from SkyClan. [41]:91[11] The deputy of Buzzardstar Cloudstar, a ginger tom with green eyes. His warrior name was Buzzardtail. He becomes a leader after Cloudstar, according to SkyClan's fate. [55] Fawnstep SkyClan's medical cat, as a small light brown, tabby cat with white breasts and paws. It is believed that she walked into Echosong's dreams, and she taught Echosong as there was no official medical cat to train her when she Birdflight Birdflight was a beautiful, long-sighted light brown tabby cat with amber eyes. Birdflight was Cloudstar's buddy and stayed behind in ThunderClan to save their kits, Spottedpelt and Gorseclaw. Fernpelt is a dark brown, tabby cat. In one of Firestar's dreams, she catches a squirrel to show Firestar that as SkyClan descendants he should look for cats that have jumping abilities. Mousefang Mousefang was a sand-colored cat with green eyes. Nightfur Nightfur was a black Tom, his revealed warrior name is Oakstep in SkyClan's Destiny. [55] Spottedpelt Spottedpelt is a slender turtle cat. She is Gorseclaw's sister. Stayed in ThunderClan when SkyClan left the forest because they were tiny kits that couldn't make a trip. He is said to have a very strong resemblance to Spottedleaf and Tigerstar. Gorseclaw is a dark brown tabby tom with amber eves. He is Spottedpelt's brother. He staved in ThunderClan when SkyClan left the forest because they were tiny kits that couldn't make a trip. He is said to have a very strong resemblance to Tigerstar and Spottedleaf. Spiderstar Last leader of the old SkyClan, Spiderstar was a dark brown tabby tom. Honeyleaf Last deputy of the ancient SkyClan, Honeyleaf was a ginger tabby cat with green eyes. SkyClan eventually moves territory into Squirrelflight's Hope and settles there. BloodClan BloodClan is a group of ex-kittens, villains and loners (cats who are not kittens or part of a clan) live in the vast majority of human suburbs (twolegplace) outside the forest, characterized by the fact that they wear collars laden with teeth. BloodClan has no warrior code, does not believe in StarClan and does not have the organizational structure found in the other clans. As a result, BloodClan is run in the style of a dictatorship, and cats that either break the rules or want to leave are mutilated or killed. [58] Bone Bone is a huge, muscular, combative, black-and-white Tom with green eyes. He main executor of scourge, doing his dirty work. He also wears a collar around his neck similar to that of Scourge. The said collar has similar to that of Scourge. The said collar has similar dog and cat teeth. He kills Whitestorm during the final battle of The Darkest Hour before being swarmed and killed by a group of apprentices: Bramblepaw, Tawnypaw, Ashpaw, Featherpaw and Stormpaw. Scourge (Tiny at birth), a little black Tom with ice-blue eyes and a single white paw, rules BloodClan through fear and a survival mentality and refuses to care for any cat that can't support itself. It allows the pals of cat care sets to hunt their mates purely out of pragmatism, so that the clan does not stop exist when all the older cats die and there are no younger cats to replace them. Despite his small size, he is a very capable and dangerous fighter, and neither any ethical code nor merciful impulses hold him back in battle; he is brutal and ruthless (Rock says in Cats of the Clans that he lacks any sense of right or wrong). [41]:91[10] To show his ability to kill, he wears a collar with teeth and claws of dogs and cats that he and its claws were reinforced with dog teeth. The color of his skepticism about that means he doesn't have nine lives. It was confirmed by the authors that Firestar is the half-brother of scoking (Scourge and Firestar share the same father),[59] as indicated in The Rise of Scourge, when Quince wonders why the litter did not share his father's ginger color, which also makes Firestar the half-brother of socks and Ruby, Scourge is then related to Cloudtail, Leafpool, Princess, Squirrelflight, Whitewing, Whitewings Kits Dovewing and Ivypool, Lionblaze, Hollyleaf and Jayfeather. The evil nature of the scourge is explained in The Rise of Scourge. It is revealed that he was originally known as Tiny and from an early on his brother Socks and sister Ruby treated him very badly, harassed him because of his size and mocked him. His mother tells them not to pick him up, but never really defends him the way he wants. When Ruby mocks him for being drowned in the river because no one wants to adopt him, Tiny runs away alone. He wanders into woodland and is attacked by Tigerpaw, who patrols the border of ThunderClan Territory with Bluefur and his mentor Thistleclaw. Tigerpaw wants to kill him, but is stopped at the last moment by Bluefur. Tiny develops a lifelong grudge against Tigerpaw for this unfair fight. Fearing to go home and fear going into the woods and facing more abuse of cats like Tigerpaw, Tiny soon moves into the alleys of a city where he finds an old dog. One of his teeth falls out and he tries to use it to cut off his collar, but in the end he gets stuck. He finds a group of thin cats eating a small piece of chicken from human garbage. To convince them to share their food, he talks about killing a dog and tearing the teeth out of the skull as a kind of trophy. Although skeptical, the cats let him bite. The next day, however, a group of cats, led by two cats named Bone and Brick, heard his story. They ask him to kill a dog behind a delicatessen that steals their food. Fearing the dog, but recognizing that he is being exposed as a liar and expelled if he refuses to fight the dog, Tiny approaches the dog. By pure luck, the dog is frightened by Tiny's shadow, which appears about three times the size Tiny really is, and flees; Tiny is smart enough to convince the other cats, he scared the dog away. The other cats have never asked for his name, so instead of telling them that his name is Tiny, he makes up the new, more intimidating name Scourge, by default, the leader, and cats will begin to seek his advice and help. A group of villains from the forest wander in and begin to harass and abuse the native cats who turn to their leader, Scourge, for protection. Scourge can't bluff these cats as he tricked the dog, and Forest villains openly mock and threaten him. Unwilling to move back from his position of power, Scourge kills one of them cold-bloodedly, frightens the other forest villains, and solidifies his hold over the alley cats. Later, socks and Ruby migrate to his territory; they were adopted as domestic cats, but later lost and forgotten when their owners moved; as dependent pets, they never learned to hunt for their own food. They ask scourge for help, but he growls at them and asks if blood means anything to him, to which Scourge replies that it is everything to him and how the blood of his enemies penetrates into his fur. Then he says he's the leader of BloodClan, which shocks his siblings. Scourge finally lets them eat some of his food until they are full, but after they are full, but after they are finished, Scourge forms the cat into BloodClan They copy his ways and even make collars for themselves from the teeth of the dogs they killed and cats that murdered them. Scourge appoints Bone, a fearsome black-and-white cat, as his second commander. Tigerstar is led by Boulder, a former scourge follower, into the area of Scourge in the labyrinthine alleys. Tigerstar, who is the leader of ShadowClan at the time, is slightly amused by the tiny leader, but after seeing the number of his followers and their collars, he decides to ask Scourge to join him in the fight against Thunderclan and windClan and promise him part of their country. He never intends to keep his word, because he thinks that once he has united all the forest clans under his rule, he will easily be able to scourge, which he greatly underestimates because of the small size of scourges and tiger stars of his own arrogance. Tigerstar obviously doesn't remember the time when he almost murdered the little black cat as a kitten, although Scourge certainly remembers and despises him, although he deliberately says nothing about her past confrontation. When WindClan and ThunderClan still refuse to submit to Tigerstar, he shouts at BloodClan to attack, but the scourge supporters refuse to fight without scourge orders, which makes Tigerstar angry. When Scourge refuses to instruct BloodClan to attack, Tiger Star attacks Scourge, which proves to be more powerful than Tiger Star ever expected. Scourge takes his revenge by killing Tiger Star, cutting him take all his nine lives away from him. Later, during the with LionClan (all warrior clans allied), Scourge takes one of Firestar's lives, but is later killed by the ThunderClan leader. [60] It is not known where the spirit of scourge went after his death. Ice Ice (born Jumper) is one of Barley's brothers who joins BloodClan and Followers, like Snake. He almost kills his own sister Violet. Snake Snake (born Hoot) is the other of Barley's brothers who joined BloodClan. He, too, was responsible for almost killing Violet, and is the first to tell Barley about her great change. Brick Brick is a rust-colored Tom, a friend of Bone and Scourge, but also a supporter of Tiny/Scourge to fight one of the dogs in the city, which protects them from a trash can full of food. Snipe Snipe is a black Tom with green eyes and spots of orange on his coat. He is a member of BloodClan. Gremlin Gremlin is a spotty black and white turtle shell with Graystripe of ThunderClan to protect herself and her unborn kits from the battle. Scraps is a spotty black and white turtle tom. He is Gremlin's brother and is killed in a battle with ThunderClan. Fury Fury is an elongated, tabby cat with a working eye. The other has scars about it, from the time she was presumably scratched out in battle. She becomes the leader of BloodClan after Scourge dies and seeks revenge on the clan cats. StarClan After Death, most of the ghosts of Clan Cats join StarClan. StarClan is to be represented by Silverpelt (the Milky Way), and each star represents a single dead warrior. As soon as a cat dies, he or she joins StarClan in a form in which he felt most comfortable. For example, blindness and deafness would be cured unless the cat was happier to be deaf or blind. StarClan's territory is a forest that is constantly in warm, comfortable, summery conditions. There are no conflicts (usually) nor diseases. StarClan fade slowly, as mentioned in Fading Echoes. [61] StarClan warriors watch over the clans and usually watch their own clan. They give guidance to the clans, often in dreams and other signs and omens. StarClan usually visits guides and medicine cats. Often this happens in medical cats either at the moonstone revealed in Into the Wild, or later at Moonpool, which was unveiled in StarClan cannot or does not want to influence events in the real world. In Firestar's Quest, however, Spottedleaf visited both Firestar and Sandstorm and treated an injured warrior, showing that StarClan actually has some impact on the real world. [53] The fact that Cinderpelt was reincarnated as Cinderheart contradicts this that StarClan can't influence the real world, although they may have chosen to do so. The Place of No Stars/The Dark Forest The Place of No Stars, also known as The Dark Forest, is the place where the ghosts of cats that have caused great pain and suffering in the lives of others go or are banished. Be. this place, although there is no sun, moon, nor star, the whole forest is bathed in a sick glow. There are no prey and cats do not starve. Cats known to walk through the Dark Forest include Thistleclaw, Tigerstar, Hawkfrost, Brokentail, Darkstripe, Clawface, Mapleshade, Shredtail and Snowtuft. [61] Victoria Holmes revealed on the website about the fantasy authors Wands and Worlds that StarClan and The Dark Forest exist on different levels; however, there is a clear boundary between the areas, which is marked by a smoke screen. Many of them are unaware that the Dark Forest warriors are actually training them to destroy the clans, including StarClan, in their upcoming battle. Instead, they tell the Clan Cats to do this to become better warriors. In The Place of No Stars, cats that want to go are killed. The cats in training are ordered to fight with their claws unwrapped, causing wounds in the awakening world. Some of the Dark Forest warriors show what they will train by using other Dark Forest warriors as dummies. In many demonstrations, the dummies are mutilated or killed. In Omen of the Stars, Ivypool trains there, but when she realizes it's not right, Jayfeather, Lionblaze and Dovewing ask her to spy on the Dark Forest, because there is a battle between them, StarClan, and the clans that are yet to come. In the Great Battle, the ghosts of the Dark Forest attack the clans. Some cats have escaped, like Mapleshade. The Tribe of Rushing Water The Tribe of Rushing Water to a group of smaller cats that live in the northern caves of the mountains that divide much of the country between the ancient forested areas and the lake areas. Tribal cats do not believe in StarClan; instead, they have their own spiritual equivalent, the tribe of endless hunting. There is no medical cat or proxy in the tribe; the guide, [2] After birth, regular cats become their mother after the first thing they see (which, by the way, is usually not Floor/Roof/Wall of Cave or something as described by Rock in Cats of the Clans). Finally, a regular cat trains as a to-be (apprentice). They can be either a cave keeper or a prey hunter based on their physical appearance, and this future role will be determined at birth. Strong, robust cats are selected as cave guards, whose task is to defend the tribe's camp against invaders and to during hunting. Prey hunters selected for their slender, agile bodies are adept at hunting in the rocky mountainous area and can jump high enough to catch large birds. Kit mothers take care of kits. [41] Stem cats often cover themselves in mud mud to better interfere with their surroundings, they can catch larger, more exotic prey such as falcons and eagles. It also protects them from the cold mountain wind. [43]:317 The tribe usually has no enemies, leaving them unprepared for attacks by other large predators, an example is Sharptooth. Another example is the other groups of cats trying to conquer their territory. [2] [31] They have a well-rooted tradition and as such do not welcome the beliefs of other cats, a theme that involves the use of people from different cultural and traditional ways of thinking working together to achieve a common goal. It is revealed in Outcast of the Power of Three series that the tribe is one of the descendants of the old clan of cats that originally lived in the sea areas to which rock and fallen leaves belong. [31] Throughout the series, the clan cats often call the regular cats the first word in their name and not with the whole name (e.B. Lark, Pine and Brook). Stormfur A dark grey Tom with amber eyes, Stormfur used to be a RiverClan cat and lived in ThunderClan, but currently lives in the trunk of the rushing water. He was first introduced as a kit, Stormkit, in Forest of Secrets, when his mother, Silverstream, a RiverClan cat, bored him and his sister Featherkit on Sunningrocks in ThunderClan Territory and eventually bled their lives for it. Her father was Graystripe, a ThunderClan cat, and to avoid shedding blood because RiverClan and ThunderClan got over the kits, he took them to RiverClan and stayed with his sister Featherpaw, in A Dangerous Path, supervised by Stonefur. He and his buddy Brook met in their home and fell in love. He and Brook returned to the forest and helped ThunderClan rebuild from the badger attack and continue to RiverClan. He is Graystripe and Silverstream's son, Feathertail's brother, and the half-brother of Bumblestripe, Briarlight and Blossomfall. Stormfur was very close to Feathertail, but as protective as his sister was, he was not very happy with her relationship with Crowpaw and openly rejected Tom. Since then, he has decided to return to the tribe with Brook. He established his strongest relationships from the journey with Brambleclaw and Squirrelflight. In Moonrise, he felt a brief attraction to Squirrelflight, but he threw aside his affection for the good of their clans. He was unable to ignore his love for Brook so easily. He survives his slight crushing on Squirrelflight, along with Tawnypelt, playfully teases about their care for each other. In Outcast, he shows a close relationship with Brambleclaw and Squirrelflight's apparent son Lionblaze. He trusts Lionblaze his Feelings for his alleged mother, so Lionblaze ask what it would have been like to have Stormfur, Brook, Brambleclaw, Tawnypelt, Crowfeather, Breezepelt, Hollyleaf, Lionblaze and Jayfeather go with Night and Talon to help the tribe with the intruders, Stormfur and Brook decide that they want to stay in the tribe, so they say goodbye to the others in Eclipse. He is the father of Lark That Sings At Dawn (Lark), Pine That Clings To Rock (Pine), Breeze That Rustles The Leaves (Breeze) and Feather of Flying Hawk (Feather). Stormfur's grandson of Crookedstar (Silverstream's father), grandson of Oakheart, great-grandson of Rainflower and Shellheart, cousin of Stonefur (who was also his mentor), Mistystar and Mosskit (Oakhearts Kits), grandsons of Primrosepaw, Pikepaw and Perchkit, Greymist and Reedwhisker, Mallownose and Sneezecloud (Graymist). Brook Where Small Fish Swim Brook is a slender, brown, tabby cat with grey eyes[42]:215 and is a prey hunter within the tribe. It is first introduced in Moonrise when the clan cats tour group accidentally stumbles across the trunk and immediately pleases Stormfur. [2] Stormfur decides to stay with Brook in the mountains as the exodus of the four clans continues. However, after a disastrous attempt by Stormfur to collect the regular cats to drive out a group of invading cats, they are banished from the tribe, after which they travel to the new sea area of ThunderClan. Brook is saddened by Stoneteller's decision to ban Stormfur, but remains by his side. She would learn to hunt and live in the forest and is accepted as a full ThunderClan cat who often advises the vounger cats on the basis of their experiences in the mountains. During the events of Outcast, she and Stormfur return to the tribe along with a collection of clan warriors to deal with the invaders threatening the mountains. Brook has two brothers. Crag Where Eagles Nest (Crag) and Talon of Swooping Eagle (Talon). She's Stormfur's buddy. She is the mother of Lark That Sings At Dawn (Lark) and Pine That Clings To Rock (Pine). Talon by Swooping Eagle Talon is a massive, broad-shouldered dark brown tabby tom with amber eyes and a scar on the side of his face that serves as a cave guard in the trunk. He was first introduced in Moonrise as a tribal exile and banished by Stoneteller along with other cats for failing to successfully kill the mountain lion Sharptooth. [2] He is also revealed as Brook's brother, along with Crag. After the group of clan cats selected By StarClan on the journey to the Sun Square walks through the mountains and tries to solve the tribe's problem, Talon, Bird and Rock return to the tribe to help with the plan, kill. He becomes a member of the tribe again after Sharptooth was killed. Was. Returns to Outcast and travels with Night of No Stars to the clans for help if the tribe has trouble crossing cats stealing loot. [31] In the sign of the moon, he becomes the oldest. [33] Teller of the Pointed Stones Stoneteller, as it is commonly known, serves as the tribe's healer. He is an old, long-bodied dark brown tabby tom with white muzzle and a medical cat, essentially granting him both traditional and spiritual authority over his an old tribal comrades. The name given to the healer of the tribe is always the same, and as such there have been several stone plates throughout the history of the tribe. This particular stoneteller is well suited to lead his tribe, but is forced to deal with a series of crises (Sharptooth, the unnamed group of transgressing cats, etc.) that threaten their survival and unnerve their faith in the tribe of endless hunting, the spiritual equivalent of the StarClan tribe. Since there are no other cats able to advise him, Stoneteller often feels overwhelmed by his responsibilities and can be prone to rash decisions. Later he dies in the sign of the moon in old age. Crag Where Eagles Nest A dark grey Tom with amber eyes, Crag was one of the cats the clans found when they were lost on the Great Journey on the mountains. In Sign of the Moon, he becomes the new plate of the Pointed Stones after the death of his predecessor. He is a brother of Brook and Talon. Old Cats These are characters first mentioned in Dark River of the Power of Three series. [46]:322 They are still unknown to all cats except Jayfeather, whose extrasensory perception allows him to discover clues hidden in an old stick near the lake. It is indicated in Outcast that these cats have connections to the trunk of the rushing water. In Long Shadows (5th book of the third series Power of Three), Jayfeather persuades the group to travel to the mountains to live there, suggesting that they are the tribe's direct ancestors. [25]:364 Although the stick is broken by Jayfeather, he is still able to connect with Rock since his first birth is as Jay's Wing in the time of the old cats, where he realized that his brother, Lionblaze, and Dovewing are also born first in the time of the old cats as Lion's Roar and Dove's Wing Except Dove's Wing is Jay's Wing (Jayfeather) sister and Lion's Roar is not his brother at the time. Ancient Clan Conventions There are several differences between the modern clans and the old ones. These are listed below. Old clan cats are more like Group of cats living together as a clan in which leaders can withdraw whenever they want, and that there are no definitive territorial boundaries. The cats in the clan make important decisions by throwing stones, in which a line is drawn into the dirt and each cat is one stone after Side decision they choose. In modern clans, clan deputies had to remain leaders when they became leaders until they died, even when they were old. With the old clans, the leaders could elect their successors and resign from their posts whenever they wanted. Power of Three Series The ancient clan was introduced mainly in Dark River[46] and played a minor role in all subsequent novels. Fallen Leaves Fallen Leaves, a muscular shoulder ginger and white tom with green eyes and the son of Broken Shadow and Stone Song, is one of the old cats who went into the tunnels to become sharp claws (the equivalent of warriors). These tunnels run under ThunderClan and WindClan territory, where Lionpaw and Heatherpaw played at night. Three WindClan kits got lost in them as the floods rose, and Lionpaw, Jaypaw, Hollypaw, Heatherpaw and Breezepaw had to save them. It was then that Fallen Made Leaves Jaypaw, found the kits and averted a battle. Later, in Eclipse, the three kits show the tunnels to WindClan, and WindClan use them as an opportunity to raid ThunderClan. [40] Fallen leaves had penetrated the tunnels to prove that he was a sharp claw. However, he failed to mention rock that rain could fall. This proved his downfall, because when it rained, the tunnels flooded, and he drowned. Jayfeather dreamed of his journey in the tunnels, and before he died, Fallen Leaves suddenly realized that Jayfeather was walking with him. The Erins said fallen leaves still haven't accepted that he's dead, so the spirit of Fallen Leaves still goes through the tunnels. In Long Shadows, he was dismayed to hear that Jayfeather did not stay with him, and his death is a catalyst for the old clans moving from the lake to the mountains. [25] Rock Rock is a very old cat. He is described in Dark River as having a fur like a mole, the fur gone, except tufts along his spine, and his visionless eyes bulging like eggs. [46] As a ghost, he observes all clans (including SkyClan, BloodClan, and the tribe of rushing water), in addition to the villains, loners, and kittens known to the four clans, as well as an acquaintance with Midnight and Sol, and as he says in Cats of the Clans, he knows the fate and the innermost thoughts of each cat. [41] He is first introduced in the prologue of Dark River, where he greets fallen leaves before the young cat enters the tunnels. [46] Later, he meets with Jayfeather and tells him that he has to go to the mountains in Outcast. He is the narrator of Cats of the Clans. [41] In Sign of the Moon, he tells Jayfeather that he was once the narrator of the Pointed Bracken A dark ginger tabby tom with muscular shoulders and amber eyes, Furled Bracken is the leader of the old clan who lived by the lake in front of the four clans. When Stone Stone Requests for infusion of the stones, he accepts. When Jayfeather, or whoever the clan thinks he is, Jay's wing, tries to make his decision is made to leave, Furled Bracken appoints Stone Song as the leader, much to Jayfeather's surprise. Stone Song A strong dark grey tabby Tom with penetrating ice blue eyes, Stone Song is known as a sharp claw of the mountains. He seems to be quite confident and is the cat that asks Furled Bracken to throw the stones. After the decision is made to leave, Furled Bracken appoints him as leader. Stone Song later asks Jay's Wing to help him lead the tribe to their new home. He is the father of Fallen Leaves and a buddy of Broken Shadow. Broken Shadow A slender orange tabby cat with white paws and amber eyes, Broken Shadow is also known as a sharp claw of the old clan who lived by the lake in front of the four clans. In Dark River, Broken Shadow is not mentioned directly by name. [46] She sadly sees her son, Fallen Leaves, entering the tunnels for his assessment with Rock to become a sharp claw. Broken Shadow protests his departure and says the sky looks like they can rain. Fallen Leaves persists, but does not want him to put a full sharp claw more, although the same impatience was ultimately his fate. In Long Shadows, when all Jaypaws are gimpeting for making it out of the tunnels, and all the time we see Broken Shadow, she still mourns for fallen leaves. Crescent A white cat with green eyes, crescent moon is another of the old cats known as ancestors of the tribe of rushing water. She is a quiet and friendly cat, and she was in love with Jay's Wing. Half Moon helped Jaypaw (Jay's Wing) when he was confused where he was, and she shows obvious affection for Jay's wing, ready to go when he was. At the end of Sign of the Moon, she says, I'll wait forever for you, Jay's wings!. She defended him when Fish Leap bullied him, and while throwing the stones, Half Moon went to the Leave side. She also made a brief appearance during Jaypaw's naming ceremony, and it could be noted that she loves both Jayfeather and Jay's Wing as they are both the same cat. She's obviously a very good hunter who helps Jay's Wing catch prey when he found it difficult. In Sign of the moon[33] She is also mentioned in the prologue in The Sun Trail. Jay's Wing A grey tabby Tom with blue eyes, Jay's Wing is a cat training to be a sharp claw (warrior) of the old at the lake in front of the four clans. In Long Shadows, Jayfeather is taken back in time by Fallen Leaves and goes into Jay's wing paws. [25] Jay's Wing/Jayfeather asks questions that confuse most of the old. He helps the Tribe of Fallen Leaves to leave the lake by telling leader Furled Bracken about a dream, but had visited the mountains himself. After the beginning of the journey, Rock calls Jayfeather back and tells him it's time to return to ThunderClan. He reincarnated as Jayfeather, which is why Jayfeather returned to time, he becomes Jaye's wing is known as a cat training to be a sharp claw (warrior). Dove's Wing is the sister of Jay's Wing, who, unknown to her, has pushed Jayfeather into the past. When Jay's Wing asks a strange question in front of a group of softpaws, she says he must have hit his head on the rocky bottom of the tunnel. When Jayfeather returns to time and comes out when Jay's Wing comes out, he suspects that Dove's Wing could be Dovewings' counterpart. Lion's Roar A small. compact, powerful golden tabby tom, Lion's Roar is born as Shy Fawn and Dark Whiskers in Sign of the Moon. [33] When he first enters the world, he is dead. Jayfeather (Jay's Wing) licks him, and he lets out a loud lament that another cat says sounds like a lion roar, as Shy Fawn called him. Jayfeather thinks he's reinstated as Lionblaze, which gives him the idea that Dove's Wing Dovewing could be, as it would make sense for the three to have had a past life since he did. Dawn of the Clans Gray Wing is a slender, dark grey Tom with golden eyes. When Stoneteller (also known as the Crescent) gets the vision that some of her cats go to follow the sun to a better home, he throws his rock with those who want to stay. He watches with a sad heart as most of his tribe goes, although his mother remains. His brother and sister (still kits) are too young to go, so they stay too. When Jagged Peak, Grey Wing's brother, goes to follow the group to go to a better place, he bravely goes out to find him. At this point, Jagged Peak is attacked by an eagle. Grey Wing arrived just in time to save Jagged Peak, and they rush to catch up with the rest of the group. One of Grey Wing's best friends, Turtle Tail, is here, and she secretly likes grey wing. At the time, he only regarded her as a friend. Clear Sky, his really wants to go to their new home, and on arrival he moves into the forest instead of staying in the moor. He sets boundaries and demands every cat that can be crossed, much to the dismay of Grey Wing. Turtle Tail pulls to live as a domestic cat, hurts when she that Grey Wing is in love with a cat called Storm, although the latter eventually connects with Clear Sky. Lonely, he continues his role as a bog cat. When Tall Shadow, the group's leader, begins to make decisions that most cats in the group disagree with, a cat named Shattered Ice challenges its leadership. He demands to take over Grey Wing, but Grey Wing refuses and declares that every cat should give Tall Shadow the respect it deserves. Turtle Tail returns, and Shattered Ice is furious that she dares to come back. Tall Shadow accepts them, which further annoys Shattered Ice. Later, Grey Wing discovers that Turtle Tail is wearing the kits of a kitten named Tom. Turtle Tail tells him that she left people because one of her friends, a cat named Bumble, told her that once she was born, people would take away their kits. She asked if Grey Wing was her father and he hesitates at first. Later he accepts and Turtle Tail gives birth to three healthy kits: Pebble Heart, Sparrow Fur and Owl Eyes. After a fire, Tall Shadow steps back from the lead and gives it to the Grey Wing. Grey Wing involuntarily takes over the role, but is permanently weakened by too much smoke inhalation. He leads for a while, but eventually resigns and never becomes a true clan leader. His actions and wise choices, however, mean that many future generations know him as Gray Wing the Wise. Clear Sky Clear Sky is a light grey Tom with ice blue eyes who is the founder of SkyClan. He is originally part of the tribe of rushing water, but joins the group of cats who leave the tribe in search of more prey after his sister Fluttering Bird and the buddy of Bright Stream, Storm and Star Flower (at various times). He pats Thunderstar with Storm and Dew Petal, Flower Foot and Tiny Branch with Star Flower. Clear Sky is part of a group of cats who decide to follow the Sun Way in search of more prey when the tribe is facing a famine. During the journey, his first buddy, Bright Stream, dies after an eagle attacked the group. Eventually, the group finds a forest where they decide to set up their camp. Clear Sky, saddened by the deaths of Fluttering Bird and Bright Stream, vows never to let a cat die again under his supervision, and comes up with the idea of having territorial boundaries, a concept with which the regular cats in the mountains were unfamiliar. His ideas are becoming increasingly extreme, leading Clear Sky to come into conflict with his brother Gray Wing, and a fire moves to the nearby moor. Eventually, hostilities between Clear Sky and Gray Wing lead to a battle in which Clear Sky kills his old friend Rainswept Flower because he accuses him of being greedy. The fight finally ends when Gray Wing refuses to surrender and challenges Brother to kill him, which led Clear Sky to finally realize that he had gone too far. He repairs his relationship with Gray Wing before returning to his moorland precinct. The Sisters are a small group of nomadic cats from a single kitten family. As such, they retain much of the physical appearances as their ancestors; especially with long, thick and slender fur, as well as large and stronger than the average clan cat, even more so than Bramblestar, who was long considered one of the largest and strongest cats in the clans. As their name suggests, the sisters are a mainly all-female group; They banish their male kits as soon as they reach their sixth moon, because they believe that the Toms have a personal aversion to the Toms (more precisely, those who are not related to them), as Moonlight says they prefer to live without Toms, and Snow is openly biased against Toms. Aside from this questionable and sexist custom, the sisters are generally peaceful and friendly because they don't like violence (although they're willing to be aggressive and powerful when they need to be), honor nature, sing to honor the dead, and work together to breed kits. All members of the sisters and cats who are descended grey cat with wide paws and a bushy tail, Moonlight was the leader of the sisters and served as the main character in Squirrelflight's Hope. Moonlight is a complicated character; on the one hand, she can be peaceful, loyal and kind in the sense that she is willing to help others and is grateful to those who help her and devotes herself vehemently to the sisters and their customs. On the other hand, however, she can be stubborn, arrogant, and willing in the sense that she prides herself on being simply too committed to her ways, allowing her pride to influence her decisions, tends to be too sure of her interpretation of things, and sometimes ignores the unintended consequences her actions might have. Moonlight has had several pals in the past, including a yellow loner named Root, whom she left to continue her life with the sisters. From her affair with Root, she gave birth to a son named Earth and two daughters Sunrise and Ice. When the Earth reached its sixth moon, Moonlight, to leave the group according to the custom of the sisters. The earth later became a loner and named himself in tree, but had a mighty grudge against his mother because she threw him out as soon as he could hunt and did not have his fate. Many moons later, Moonlight connects with a Tom named Jack and and pregnant with his kits. She and the sisters make a camp just outside the clans territories. When Moonlight is over a moon from birth, Leafstar and squirrel flight come in search of new territory. Distrust of the clans, Moonlight and the sisters capture the two and intend to let them go only when their kits are born and weaned. But ThunderClan and SkyClan are coming soon and the sisters let them go. During the encounter Moonlight meets tree again briefly, but her excitement of seeing her son again becomes a surprise and then indifference when he angrily condemns her for leaving him as a kit. The sisters later get into a fight with a ShadowClan patrol, in which Sunrise almost dies and Strikestone's hearing is permanently damaged. As a result, the majority of clans consider the sisters to be their last enemy. Despite the rising tension, Moonlight refuses to move her group until their kits are born and weaned. Later, Tree, now the mediator of the clans, reluctantly agrees to convince Moonlight to go for the sake of peace. The attempt, however, fails due to Moonlight's stubbornness and Tree's resentment against her, which led to the two splitting in bad conditions. At some point, tensions between the sisters, but Moonlight, long overdue for their kits, goes into work and gives birth to two cats and a Tom. Once they are born, she leaves her kits and fights into the battle-hardened fight, but is seriously injured and later dies, despite the efforts of the medical cats to save them. Snow A big, broad-shouldered, slender-furred, snow-white cat with blue eyes, Snow seems to be the most aggressive of the sisters, as she is particularly suspicious of strangers and has the most outspoken prejudices against Toms, especially Bramblestar, Thornclaw and Tree, just because they are Tom's. When Leafstar and Squirrelflight are captured by the sisters, Snow is most hostile to them and even intentionally injures Leafstar when she tries to escape. But at some point she warms up to the two. Later, Snow, Hawk, Tempest and Sunrise track and corner Strikestone and Stonewing to find out why they were on their land. The two Toms try to fend them off, and in the ensuing brawl Strikestone loses one of his ears and Sunrise is seriously injured. Desperately, the sisters seek help from ThunderClan, which is torn between helping an innocent cat and fighting the other clans. Bramblestar finally and reluctantly allow the medicine cats to treat Sunrise. Snow expresses her dislike of Bramblestar as Tom because she believes he shouldn't be in a position of authority to which Leafpool and Squirrelflight declare that Bramblestar is their leader and all ThunderClan cats must follow him and respect him. Later, as Leafstar, Leafstar, and Tree comes to negotiate with Moonlight, Snow again shows her contempt for Toms by initially refusing at him and folding her nose with disgust. But eventually it gives in when they say it is in everyone's interest. When the clans attack the sisters' camp, staring at him and folding her nose with disgust. But eventually it gives in when they say it is in everyone's interest. When the clans attack the sisters' camp Snow and the other sisters stubbornly refuse to go and lose the battle. Afterwards, Snow and Tempest thank Squirrelflight for helping them and doubts that the clans will find peace, with Snow again showing their bias against Toms by saying that they never want peace. Once Moonlight's orphaned kits are weaned, Snow and the other sisters leave the lake. Other members Sunrise: a long-headed, wide-shouldered yellow cat. Tempest: a muscular, broad-shouldered ginger-and-white cat. Sparrow: a long-shaved ginger-and-white cat. Hawk: a turtle shell. Characters who are not seen in other groups, Original Series The Original Series, but also play smaller or significant roles in the history from Into the Wild to The Darkest Hour. Many of the characters mentioned here were introduced in the original series, but also play smaller or significant roles in the New Prophecy and Power of Three. Barley Barley is a black and white Tom who lives in a barn beyond WindClan Territory. He is hit by Firepaw as he is on his first trip to the Highstones, a remote region of caves that house the Moonstone, the source of the clans' connection to StarClan. Barley is a friendly cat and always ready to help cats who need protection. He accepts Ravenpaw openly when he flees ThunderClan, and the two live a comfortable life afterwards. Barley joins Ravenpaw in ThunderClan's The Darkest Hour to support Firestar in the upcoming invasion of BloodClan. [10] Barley and his throwing mates were automatically placed under the rule of Scourge at birth, and his two brothers Ice and Snake, formerly known as Jumper and Hoot, soon became fierce enforcers of Goco's orders. When Barley defied one of the clan's most important rules to take care of his sister and live with her, Violet, Ice and Snake attacked her, leaving Violet seriously injured. Barley narrowly escaped with Violet, leaving her in the care of a generous two-leg as he left the area altogether and eventually met the abandoned barn (revealed by clan secrets,[5] he crossed to get there). He reveals to Firestar the secret of the weakness of scourge does not believe in StarClan, he has only one life. Barley then fights alongside Firestar and Ravenpaw. The remaining cats of all four clans against BloodClan. Barley and Ravenpaw eventually supported the clans in their exodus by giving them in The New Prophecy Series. It is believed that they continue their peaceful existence, although due to the immense distance between them they are now effectively separated from the clans. In Ravenpaw's farewell, however, Ravenpaw dies of liver cancer in Barley's paws. In The Ultimate Guide, Ravenpaw, now with StarClan, says Barley will soon be in Starclan. He has been alive since Graystrip's vows. Violet Violet is Barley's sister. She is an orange tabby and wears a purple collar. She was born in BloodClan with her three brothers Barley, Hoot (Snake) and Jumper (Ice). She lived with Barley against the rules of scourge and is discovered one day by Bone with Barley injuring Violet. He orders her own brothers, Snake and Ice, to kill her. They seriously injure her and believe she is dead. However, Barley is able to take her to a kitten's nest to save her where she lives. She has two kits, Riley and Bella, both taken by Barley and Ravenpaw to live in SkyClan. Hattie Hattie is a pretty brown, tabby cat with amber eyes who now lives in Firestar's former twoleg house. She was featured in Firestar's old Twolegs garden in The Darkest Hour,[10] but it was in Firestar's Quest when she was correctly introduced as the new kitten of Firestar's former Twoleg owners when she asked him if he wanted to use her scratching tree. She is a neighbor and friend of Smudge and was not mentioned after Firestar's quest. [11] Princess, a light brown tabby with a distinctive white chest and paws, is Firestar's Kittypet sister. He first discovers her garden in fire and ice[8] and returns regularly to talk to her during the original series. Princess is thrilled with Firestar's stories about life in the forest, but also worried about him because of his often torn appearance. When she learns that her kits are to be given away, she gives one of them to Firestar to bring him back to ThunderClan. This kit eventually becomes Cloudtail, a well-known ThunderClan warrior. Jake Jake is a plump ginger tom. He is also the father of Princess and the grandfather of Cloudtail, Leafpool and Squirrelflight. He is the father of scourge, socks and Ruby, but they have another mother, Quince. In Bluestar's prophecy, Bluepaw spoke to Jake when a squirrel chasing her walked over a two-legged fence. [4] His buddy is nutmeg. In Tallstar's revenge, Talltail leaves WindClan to find a cat he believes killed his father. During this journey, he meets Jake, and Jake helps Talltail on his journey. Henry is a cat that is in the Twolegplace from which Firestar originally originated. He apparently went to the vet and has never been the same since. Henry is mentioned only in the first book and has no real meaning in history. [1] He was taken to the cutter and was apparently 'fixed', 'fixed', his ability to be a real Tom. Ravenpaw Ravenpaw is a slender, thin black loner with a tiny white line on his chest and a white pointed tail who lives with Barley. Ravenpaw was originally a ThunderClan apprentice, but had to leave the clan when he murdered tigerclaw, his mentor, the ThunderClan MP Redtail. This knowledge put his life in danger. He rejoices in Barley's barn; the loner lifestyle suits him better than clan life. In Ravenpaw's Path, which was released on November 24, 2009. Smudge is a friendly, contented, plump black and white Tom with a narrow face, round amber eyes, black shoulders, a white tail tip and a black nose who was Firestar's best friend during his kithood. Smudge was upset when Firestar's best friend during his kithood. imagine why Firestar wants to live in the forest with a bunch of violent Ruffians. Although he misses his friend, he does well with Firestar's replacement, a cat named Hattie. Smudge's garden is right at the site of SkyClan's old camp, and as a result it is full of dreams about the exodus of the lost clan in Firestar's Quest. [11] He mistakenly interprets these dreams as a sign that he must live in the forest, as Firestar had done, and goes into the forest to find his friend. He is attacked by a Border Patrol, but Firestar arrives in time and calls the patrol. Firestar then spends the night in Smudge's garden to better determine the will of SkyClan's elusive leader. Smudge is very relieved to learn that he does not have to live in the forest and wishes his friend luck on his journey. The New Prophecy Series The New Prophecy Seri with the original series, most of the characters listed here also play a minor or significant role in the following series, Power of Three. Midnight is an older badger that was first featured in the Midnight is actually a badger, since most badgers are hostile to cats and several cats were killed by them. Midnight reveals the true purpose of their journey by telling the mountains, which led to Feathertail's death. She later returns to Twilight to warn ThunderClan of an imminent badger attack. [18] Midnight is displayed have connections to numerous spiritual entities, including StarClan and the tribe of events that happen in the future and far past is comparable to Rock, who also has almost omniscient knowledge of the cat universe. She points out that there are many more communities of cats living in clans and tribes, other than the forest cats, which predicts the introduction of the tribe's prophecy regarding the feathertail before sending the cats to the mountains and actually sending Feathertail to death. She appeared in Starlight's proloque. [3] She is also able to speak and understand the languages of many other animals, including cat, dog, fox and rabbit, in addition to the language of her own species. Her last appearance is in Sunset. [13] However, she made two appearances in Long Shadows, one in the proloque where she is datorted with the original leaders of the four clans and then with Rock, and one while talking to Jayfeather in a dream. [25] When Brambleclaw finds Midnight, however, seems to appear to Jayfeather in a different dream. Cody A cute, hapless, slender, heavily feathered and plump brown, tabby kitten and bright blue eyes, Cody was captured in The New Prophecy by Twolegs because her collar had been torn off when she ran away from her house crowd (twoleg owner) and just wanted to have a bit of fun before returning home, so the twolegs mistaken her for a wild cat. She befriended Leafpool while they were being held captive and woke them from their depression. After being rescued by ThunderClan, she stayed for a while to take care of Ferncloud's Kit Birchkit. Before the clans left the forest, Cody was forced to say goodbye to Leafpool, because although she was willing to help the clan in her hour of need, the life of a warrior cat was not for her, as she could not bear the blood and dying and went home to her owners. Sasha A tawny she-cat with bright blue eyes, darker brown ears, paws, muzzle and tail with brown Brindle stripes on her legs, Sasha (also called Brownie from a twoleg) was a kitten in her early days. But when her house moved because of the woman's death, Sasha remained on her own and ventured into ShadowClan Territory. Her collar was taken off by Pine, another villain. She spotted a patrol of Tigerstar, Jaggedtooth and Rowanclaw and called Tigerstar, Jaggedtooth and Rowanclaw's claws Tiger star and Sasha start talking, and they meet soon every night. They have a bump in their relationship when Tiger star discovers that Sasha is a kitten, he did not come. But when he saves them from foxes, their relationship becomes stronger, and he invites them to join ShadowClan. But after learning of his evil plan to rule the forest and kill all the cats with half-clan blood, she realizes that he lied to her all the time and rejects his offer. She is the mother of Hawkfrost and Mothwing and another kit called Tadpole. She left Hawkfrost and Mothwing in RiverClan because she knew clan life wasn't for her, but she wanted her kits to grow into warriors. Earlier, Tadpole, Hawk (Hawkfrost) and Moth (Mothwing) travelled away from their nest to find Ken. They got lost in the Twolegplace and became trapped. Tadpole sacrificed his life to save his throwing mates. The place where they were caught flooded and Tadpole drowned. She asked her to stay with her in the forest when the clans left, but they refused. In a chat it was revealed that Sasha is still looking for her house. Smoky A muscular grey and white Tom, Smoky lives at the horse court with raft and formerly Daisy. It was first introduced in Starlight. [3] He is the father of Daisy's kits. Berrynose, Mousewhisker and Hazeltail, and (along with the other horse cats) refers to man as nofurs instead of twolegs. Although he is daisy and floss's buddy. Daisy has moved on: Smoky is sad about this. [26] Floss A small grey-white cat, Floss lives at the horse court with Smoky, her buddy. Their kits were all taken from the Twolegs; or as the horse-drawn cats call them, the Nofurs. Sister of Daisy and aunt of Berrynose, Mousewhisker, Hazeltail, Toadstep and Rosepetal and great aunt of Poppyfrost and Berrynoses kits, born at the end of The Fourth Apprentice. [28] Dies between The Last Hope and Bramblestar's Storm. Sharptooth is a giant tawny mountain lion that terrorized the trunk of rushing water when the rushing cats hit them. It was introduced in Moonrise and has not appeared in any other book. [2] Feathertail hit its end by pushing a spike of rocks into it, successfully killing him, and fulfilling the prophecy that said, A silver cat, not of this tribe, will deliver us from Sharptooth once and for all. Power of Three series covers events in the history from The Sight to Sunrise. Brightspirit Brightspirit is a deceased, very young, beautiful silver tabby cat with bright green eyes mentioned in Long Shadows. It was remembered in memory of the 10-year-old Emmy Grace Cherry, who died when a tornado hit her home in Russellville, Arkansas. When ThunderClan had little catnip, she appeared in Jayfeather's dream and told him that Catmint Catmint Was. After thinking about it, Jayfeather realized it was in WindClan. Flick A thin light brown Tom with large pointed ears, Flick is one of the invaders who invade the area of the tribe of rushing water in Outcast. [31] Flora A dark brown-white cat with green eyes, Flora is one of the invaders who invade the area of the tribe of rushing water in Outcast. [31] Sol Sol is a large, stocky, long-furry dark brown and bright tortoise-walker with pale yellow eyes, a face that rejuvenates at the muzzle, a curved tail at the top and large wide ears. He is a mysterious character introduced to Eclipse. [40] He knows all four clans (given to him from midnight), although none of them has ever seen him before. Sol predicts the impending solar eclipse, an act that seems to be the beginning of his attempt to convince the clans that StarClan, to give up his faith altogether and not to allow his clan to participate in meetings. Sol's character is ambiguous at the moment. He is polite but not friendly. An attempt by Jayfeather to scan his mind leads to a swirl of thoughts that extend far beyond all clan territories, implying that this cat knows much more about the clan universe than he wants to reveal. He is also aware of the prophecy about Jayfeather, Lionblaze and Hollyleaf. Sol plays a major role in Long Shadows; his face is on the cover and in the excerpt he is seen trying to convince the clans to renounce their faith in StarClan and the four clans, for a reason she will not reveal. [25] Hollyleaf also has a nightmare in which she sees Sol bleeding the moon and her clan mates screaming in fear. It may be a sign that Sol will destroy all clans. In Long Shadows, when Hollyleaf runs to Sol on the lakeshore, he heads to WindClan's territory, where Ashfur's body is later found. [25] Some people suspected him of being Ashfur's killer instead of Being Squirrel, but Sol does not appear to have a motive. When Jayfeather read Squirrelflight's ghost after Ashfur's assassination, she was terrified and seemed to confirm that she had killed Ashfur, not Sol. But in Sunrise's prologue, when Leafpool examines Ashfur's body, she finds a bunch of black fur that bears Hollyleaf's scent and identifies Hollyleaf as the real killer. [26] However, the rest of the clan does not know this, so ashfoot, the Brambleclaw reveals that she saw Sol near the Sun a patrol consisting of Brambleclaw, Brackenfur, Birchfall, Hazeltail, Lionblaze and Hollyleaf. You are looking for a large twolegplace near the Sun Square and find a group of cats, the Sol Sol to fight a pack of wild dogs that threaten their homes. After hearing the terrible story of their defeat, the new leader Jingo takes her to Purdy, while Sol stays with him. They find him and take him to the ThunderClan camp to be interviewed by Firestar, with Purdy being tagged and becoming a ThunderClan elder. After being interrogated by Firestar, Sol is held as a prisoner, but escapes when he lures Lionblaze to help him by telling him that he knows who his real father is. When the rest of the clan finds out, it's more of a relief because the other clans threatened Firestar because they were nervous that someone like Sol was among them. That's why Firestar just told the other clans that he had banished Sol. In The Forgotten Warrior, Lionblaze finds Sol in the tunnels as he tries to the Clan and tells them that he saves Cherrypaw and Molepaw from a fox (Hollyleaf is the one who saves them). Berrynose, Poppyfrost and the younger cats accept him. The older cats don't trust him, but Firestar allows Sol to stay with them. Dovewing and lypool don't trust him and while he's in the tunnels, he hears some WindClan cats planning to attack ThunderClan through the tunnels. Dovewing and lypool are almost caught by WindClan, but a cat saves them and turns out to be Hollyleaf. Lionblaze takes Hollyleaf to the camp and she reveals that she is the one who saved Cherrypaw and Molepaw from the fox. Many cats, including Berrynose and Poppyfrost, grow angry at Sol and discover that he hasn't returned to camp for a few days. Hollyleaf trains the cats in underground combat, and with the training they defeat WindClan. Hollyleaf fixes Sol and tells him that he should never return and that She will kill him herself if he does. Sol is also a main character in the SkyClan and The Stranger Manga series, which takes place long before his first appearance. He joins SkyClan and reveals that Sol doesn't know the clans just because Midnight told him about them. Although he is desperate to become a warrior and tries to unite with his new clan mates, Sol quickly proves to be egocentric, lazy when it comes to duties and completely unconcerned about the possible consequences of his actions. This is shown when he steals food from some foxes living nearby and accidentally leads them into the clan's camp, which makes Leafstar, the leader of SkyClan, angry with him. To impress them, Sol Leafstars steals three very young kits and hides them far from the gorge so he can play a heroic role in the search for them But his plot is discovered and banished in anger Leafstar Sol from SkyClan and tells him that he can never be a true warrior because he is selfish and has no understanding of the warrior code at all. Sol scrolls and curses the clans for Stupidity. Stripes A large silver tabby tom with dark stripes and amber eyes, Stripes is the leader of the invaders who invade the area of the tribe of rushing water in Outcast. [31] He is portrayed as a mocking, cruel and amoral cat who leads the invaders through no code of honor other than a life-or-death policy similar to BloodClan. At the end of the book, he and the other invaders in battle are defeated by the clan cats and the tribe and surrender and promise to leave the tribe alone and respect their limits. Twist A young turtle shell with white stripes on its face. Twist is one of the invaders who invade the area of the tribe of rushing water in outcast. [31] Hollypaw notes that she is of apprentice age, and if she had been a clan cat, they might have been friends. By the way, during a wall and worlds chat, a fan asked if Twist would make another appearance. [59] It was followed by Erin Hunter, who asked who Twist was. Therefore, it is assumed that Twist will not be displayed again. Jingo is the leader who tries to keep the band of Twolegplace cats together after Sol's dark lead, which was introduced in Sunrise. [26] When the wild dogs hunted the ThunderClan cats, she found them and brought them to safety in their abandoned Twoleg nest, and she led them back to spurdy life. Sol convinced Jingo to leave her house and join his new Twolegplace clan, and she decided it sounded exciting, and she also told her neighbor Flower about it. Unfortunately, Flower was killed by the wild dogs during a hunting mission. When Sol was the leader of the Twolegplace cats, he acted like their king and always asked them to bring him food, but never to hunt themselves. After Flower was killed, he devised a plan to show the dogs whose territory was the nest. He made it sound as if there was no other choice, and Pepper, Fool and Frosty were killed by his bad judgment, and all the cats had wounds, except Sol, because he did not raise a paw to help his own cats. After the battle, Sol refused to take responsibility for his mistake, and Jingo asked him to leave. Jingo is obviously a very emotionally strong figure, as she had to deal with guilt by inviting Flower to join Sol just to be killed. She also has to hold the shattered group together, and Lionblaze and Brambleclaw, when she returns to the abandoned Twoleg nest, says too guietly to hear: Goodbye, Jingostar. StarClan illuminate your path. This shows that he thinks they are as noble as a clan leader. Hussar A wide-shouldered grey Tom, Hussar has a long scar on his side from fighting with the wild dogs. He joined the Twolegplace clan with Jingo so they can be very good friends. Hussar is probably the strongest of the and therefore he acts as jingo's deputy. Despite his size and strength, he is rather calm, but shows an uncharacteristic hatred of Sol. Speckle A spotty brown cat. Speckle maintains four kits, one of which is called Frisk. Her buddy went when the wild dogs started terrorizing the lonely cats in the abandoned twoleg nest, but shows an uncharacteristic hatred of Sol. Speckle maintains four kits, one of which is called Frisk. Her buddy went when the wild dogs started terrorizing the lonely cats in the abandoned twoleg nest. she would be very happy to see him. She also defends Sol's reputation when they discuss him with the clan cats. She seems very protective of her kits and extremely suspicious of the clan cats, perhaps because she knows they are looking for Sol, and if they find him, it won't be for a friendly visit. Fritz is a little black and white Tom with a torn ear from the dog fight. He is a very erratic, softly spoken cat. He is obviously friends with Jingo or possibly pals because he comforted them when the subject of Flower came up, and vice versa when Fritz was afraid. He was the first to hit the ThunderClan cats near the edges of the Twolegplace and tipped them off that Sol was nearby when he said, obviously terrified to death by the clan cats: That's what he said! And look what happened! They assumed he was talking about Sol. In battle with the so-called BloodClan, Fritz was kidnapped by BloodClan and ThunderClan attacked BloodClan from launching raids and stealing fresh broadcast shots from ThunderClan, Fritz's mother. Pod A scrawny brown tom with a scarred, gray muzzle, pod is rather conical, but he is very talkative and is not afraid to say his opinion, unlike Fritz. He complains a lot and often insults things he hates, like the dogs or Sol. It seems that he has a grudge against Sol, who acted as a leader among the Twolegplace cats, while he and his clanmates became hungry and had to train non-stop for the fight against the dogs. Pod was one of the first to arrive in Sol's abandoned Twoleg nest, along with Fritz and Speckle. Merry & amp; Chirp Merry is a ginger and white cat with green eyes, while Chirp is a pale grey tabby tom. They are the last of the Twolegplace cats to meet the ThunderClan patrol. Their appearance triggered all the Twolegplace cats who thought they were the dogs. When they arrive, Merry walks shortly afterwards and mutters: These cats are like Sol. This signals that she probably doesn't like strangers, like everyone else in the abandoned Twoleg nest after Sol's lead. But Chirp stays close to the door. As he listens to the discussion, he gives the clan cats very valuable information: there are rumors that Sol is back, and he lives with Purdy. Flower Flower was a young cat killed by the wild dogs. She was a former kitten, and was Jingo's neighbor. Jingo convinced her to come with her to the abandoned Twoleg nest. Her death caused to draw up a plan to combat wild dogs, leading to more deaths. Jingo misses Flower and feels guilty about killing her. Pepper was chosen by Sol to lead the dogs into the cave of the unused monster. But he never made it; the dogs overran him and killed him, then he played with his body. After the battle, Sol walked in and asked Jet to give him some play, and Jet would have killed Sol if Hussars hadn't held him back. Jet walked in while the clan cats and the Twolegplace cats were discussing Sol, and he showed extreme anger at Sol and said to Jingo: It's not okay. It will never be okay. It will never be okay. I never want to think of this cat again! Jester & amp: Frosty Jester and Frosty were the two cats who died of sol's plan to fight the dogs. Jester was a Tom who was so badly wounded that he died from his injuries in the abandoned Twoleg Nest. Frosty was a cat torn apart by the dogs. Oscar Oscar is a kitten that meets Firestar in search of cats ready to join the new SkyClan. He is very grouchy and thinks that everything Firestar tells him is complete nonsense, and refuses to join. He is described as a muscular black Tom with green eyes. Stick, Cora, Coal, Snowy and Shorty These five cats meet Firestar when he's on his way to rebuild SkyClan and is separated from the sandstorm. Stick is a brown Tom with yellow eyes and a torn ear, Cora is a black cat with bright blue eyes, and Shorty is a brown tabby tom with a stub for a tail and amber eyes. Shorty rescues Sandstorm from some twoleg kits and then shows Firestar which way she has gone. In Dawn there is a cat whose name is coal in a two-leg nest, [22] which could be the same coal mentioned in Firestar's Quest. They can also be seen in SkyClan's Destiny, where they join SkyClan for a while. [55] They leave after SkyClan helps them fight Dodge, Stick's greatest enemy. During this battle, Stick's daughter Red was killed. Red's mother was Velvet, Stick's former buddy. A Vision of Shadows Series Darktail Darktail, hence his name, is the main antagonist of the first three books of the story arc A Vision of Shadows, as well as the superedition Hawkwing's Journey. Darktail is later the biological son of Onestar, the leader of According to Onestar, the leader of Accord While she was still heavily pregnant, Smoke wanted to join WindClan so that her kittens could be raised as warriors (Onewhisker had never had the harder side of warrior life). Onewhisker refused, partly because it wasn't life for her, and partly because he knew he had mated with a kitten, which would ruin his reputation. The only one of their litters was Darktail, and Onewhisker refused to let his son join windClan for the same reason as his mother. Angry at this double rejection, Smoke Onewhisker vowed that she would raise her son to hate his father, the clans and their way of life. What happened to Darktail is unknown, as a very long time (at least several years) passed between his father's rejection and reappearance next. But his father's rejection and his mother's teachings appeared to have a dramatic negative impact on his personality; he grew up to be a cold and bitter cat with cruelty and revenge. When Darktail reappears, he has become the leader of a large group of rogue cats who try to copy the way of life of the clans, but are without honor, mercy or compassion. He tries to hunt down the warrior clans and destroy them to reject him all those years ago. He and his group join SkyClan, but instead come across Darktail and his group. They are deceived to believe Darktail and his group secretly follow them into the clans' territories. Darktail and his group eventually manage to take over ShadowClan's territory, with many of his cats choosing to join their group as they are fed up with Roawnstar being a weak leader. Darktail dubs his group 'The Kin', although the title has no real meaning for them. He drowns every cat that tries to leave the group. At one point, Onewhisker, now onestar and leader of WindClan and with the other clans, launches a comprehensive attack on Darktail and its villains. During the battle, Onestar fights darktail in person and comes very close to killing, but before he can do so, Darktail whispers in his ear that surely a cat that rejected his own son and then killed him would end up in the Dark Forest. Frightened, Onestar orders his clan to withdraw. This will cost the clans the battle and lead to the death of several cats, and many others are badly wounded. Shortly thereafter, Darktail takes over the RiverClan area. When the battle is over, Darktail takes over the RiverClan area. When the battle is over, Darktail takes over the RiverClan area. the sun. Darktail sadistically torments riverclan inmates by starving them and letting their wounds smoulder, and humiliates them by forcing the Kin to flee the RiverClan camp. Later, SkyClan reappears and all five clans compete against Darktail's group. Most of Darktail's villains flee and a now fully determined Onestar takes them further and further out until both reappear under and without. Nettle A brown tabby Tom with long, prickly fur, Nettle is an exceptionally cruel and sadistic member of Darktails group. He is the closest the villains of a medical cat have, but knows only a few herbs. He tried them all on sick cats, but nothing made them better. He is also a vicious fighter. At some point after Darktail's death, Nettle steals the two kits that his former buddy Yarrowleaf, who was born in ShadowClan, gave birth to as part of Sleekwhisker's plot to kill Rowanclaw. He is stopped and killed by Rowanclaw, although the later one dies. Raven Raven is an elongated black cat and an older member of the darktail group. She firmly believes in Darktail's brutal nature. It helps drown cats that rebelled against darktail Rain A large, elongated grey Tom with a single green eye and a bushy tail, Rain is originally a temporary member of SkyClan, but later gets frustrated with his leader and tries to assassinate him, but Darktail kills him. Sleekwhisker, a slender, golden-yellow cat with green eyes, is the daughter of Dawnpelt and Crowfrost of ShadowClan and the sister of Juniperclaw and Strikestone, making her the granddaughter of Rowanclaw and Tawnypelt. She is cared for by her uncle Tigerheart, and it is obvious that she does not believe in StarClan when she was watched by Alderheart, then Alderpaw, at a meeting when he first met her and Needlepaw. Sleekwhisker follows Needlepaw, Juniperpaw and Savs that they are now villains, not clan cats, and that she can learn to hunt and fight on her own, as roques do. It becomes obvious that she does not like or prefer Violetpaw more. As soon as Darktail and its villains go to ShadowClan and push Rowanstar out of the lead, she follows the suite as well as Needletail, and some other ShadowClan cats like Spikefur and Mistcloud. She asks Dawnpelt, her mother, if she is happy to see her and Juniperclaw as herself, Juniperclaw as herself, Juniperclaw and Strikestone, since Crowfrost, her father, had died of Yellowcough. Dawnpelt reluctantly agrees with her and says she can't leave all of her kits, and ShadowClan is only at home she knew it and cannot leave it. Sleekwhisker, satisfied with her answer, remains in the newly founded Kin. Sleekwhisker is considered one of Darktail's most loyal followers after taking over ShadowClan and bringing together the remaining ShadowClan cats and his villains and making what he called the Kin. She supports every decision he has made and is deeply suspicious of Violetpaw. She also begins to become suspicious of the needletail after Rain died in the claws of Darktail because he had betrayed him. When Dawnpelt realizes that it was a mistake to stay with the Kin, she tells Violetpaw that she's going to leave and has already sent Juniperclaw and Strikestone to search for ThunderClan. Dawnpelt tells Violetpaw that Sleekwhisker never wants to leave the kin and hasn't even asked her to leave. When Dawnpelt mysteriously disappears, Sleekwhisker shows no emotion about her mother's absence and doesn't seem to care, unlike her brothers, who show extreme concern for her missing mother. While the former ShadowClan cats soon realize that Darktail is a cruel and dishonorable cat, Sleekwhisker still stays by his side and agrees with virtually every word he says. She tells Darktail that she is now a kin, through and through, and hasn't considered herself a ShadowClan cat for a long time. She shows no remorse if Violetpaw's plan to feed Darktail and his followers poppy fails and Violetpaw is to be punishment is that Darktail Needletail drowns to show Violetpaw what it's like that the only cat she cared for has disappeared. As soon as a weak and starved needletail turns on herself, Roach and Raven, she attacks Needletail along with Roach and Darktail. Sleekwhisker helps to drown Needletail at the end at the lake and shows no remorse for the murder of her childhood friend and shows her total devotion to Darktail. As soon as the Kin is driven out by the other clans, she runs away with what is left of the Kin; Yarrowleaf and Spikefur follow him. Rowanstar notices that Sleekwhisker ran away with the kin, and he explains her and the other traitors. She is missed by Juniperclaw and Strikestone, who wonder where she went. The ghosts of the cats that drowned in the lake show that Sleekwhisker, along with the ShadowClan cats who had not returned, are probably still alive. Sleekwhisker and a heavily pregnant Yarrowleaf later remain in ShadowClan's former camp. They find Violetshine, Tree and Sandynose and are surprised and angry to see them. Violetshine notes that Sleekwhisker tells them that Spikefur died of the disease because they couldn't find the right herbs to treat him, and no one else helped. Upon their arrival, Strikestone and Juniperclaw greet them warmly, and Sleekwhisker and Yarrowleaf beg for their past crimes, but are hidden by Whorlpaw, Juniperclaw, Strikestone, Snowbird and Scorchfur. Once Tree has found a solution to keep them, Leafstar eventually agrees, albeit reluctantly. Tawnypelt also shows hatred for them and calls them traitors; on the other hand, Rowanstar, now Rowanclaw, forgives them. Juniperclaw supports his sister, claiming that many former ShadowClan cats have followed Darktail as he is one himself, and asks if Leafstar doesn't believe a cat can change. As an apprentice in SkyClan, Sleekwhisker is later revealed to have betrayed her brothers, who went behind Leafstar's back to give her a place to stay, and Yarrowleaf, who relied on Sleekwhisker during her pregnancy and thought the two cats were friends. She secretly teamed up with two annoying kittens, Susan and Jacques, to help with a plan to get revenge on Rowanclaw, blaming him for everything that went wrong in her life. Sleekwhisker drugs Yarrowleaf with poppy and steals their kits, hopkit and flax kit to use as hostages. She also works with Nettle and Raven to catch Tawnypelt, who intends to murder her right in front of Rowanclaw, as she is the cat he loves most and the one thing he has left. However, Rowanclaw, Macgyver, Yarrowleaf and Violetshine manage to save Tawnypelt, fetch the stolen kits and defeat Sleekwhisker and the others. She and Nettle take Down Rowanclaw by fatally wounding him, although Rowanclaw manages to kill nettle in the process. Violetshine and tell them never to come back because they have betrayed the clans too often. Smoke is a kitten that never appears, but is mentioned and described. She is the former lover and partner of Onestar and mother of the Darktail. Onestar describes her as a beautiful cat with soft grey fur and bright blue eyes like pools of pure water. According to Onestar, he and Smoke met and fell in love in a twolegplace when he was known as an Onewhisker in the old clan territories. Onewhisker gained Smoke's affection by telling her exaggerated stories about clan life (leaving out the harder aspects), while Smoke became pregnant with Onewhisker's kits and searched for him on WindClan Territory, where he was fortunately alone on the hunt. She asked WindClan so that their kits could become warriors. Onewhisker rejected Smoke's request, partly because he knew he would be in terrible trouble to mate with a kitten, as mating with non-clan cats was forbidden by the Warrior Code. Smoke Smoke with Onewhisker for a while, but eventually abandoned. But when she was still on her way home, she went to work, and because she had no help, only one of her kits survived. This kit was Darktail. Rauch and her son then went back to Smoke's owners, but only for a short time. As soon as Darktail was old enough to leave, Smoke took him to his father and asked him to join his son WindClan while he was young enough to learn about the warrior code. Onewhisker, however, rejected Smoke; partly because he knew he had fathered a kit with a kitten, which would ruin his reputation, and partly because he feared that Darktail would not survive being a clan cat. Rauch was furious at this double rejection and turned against Onewhisker, angry that she would raise her son alone and teach him to hate the clans who rejected him. Smoke apparently went through with it as Darktail grew into a cold and brutal cat with a single purpose: to destroy the warrior clans. The rise of the scourge socks The brother of scourge and ruby and the son of Quince, socks is a black Tom with a white muzzle, tail tip and paws. Together with Ruby, he tormented her younger brother Tiny to run away from home in The Rise of Scourge. [6] However, he seems to have a less vicious personality than his sister. Later in the book, Socks and Ruby appear before Tiny, now a scourge, abandoned by their twolegs and desperate for food and shelter. After a vengeful speech in which Scourge says that he no longer considers them as a family and does not think of family at all, he allows them to eat, but then he banishes them both. In a Wands and Worlds chat with Erin Hunter on August 16, 2008[59] it was announced that Socks and Ruby are still alive. Ruby Scourges's sister Ruby mocked and frightened her brother, along with her brother's socks, so he ran away from his twoleg nest, saying tiny would be thrown into the river because he wasn't wanted. She and socks were later adopted by housemen but abandoned when they moved away. They came to Tiny (now scourge), asked for help, but were soon turned away. In a Wall and Worlds chat with Erin Hunter, it was revealed that they are still alive. She is described as a light grey cat. Quince Gecourge's mother Quince had a litter: Ruby, Socks and Tiny (later scourge). In a Wall and Worlds chat with Erin Hunter, it is revealed that she is still alive but quite old. [59] She was married to Firestar's father, although she is not his mother. She is seen as a dark grey cat with a red collar and amber eves Gravstripes Adventure Trilogy Diesel A light brown tabby tom with black zig-zag stripes and white chest, paws and muzzle, Diesel befriended Graystripe and Millie at a truck stop in Warrior's Return. [62] When he was the one Millie accepted, while Greystripe was hit by a car shortly afterwards. Diesel suggested getting them to the sun spot by driving on a truck. Diesel is a very wise cat, but he wasn't always like this Duke A giant, black-and-white Tom with a prickly collar and nicks in his ears, Duke was first introduced in The Lost Warrior. [63] One of the domestic cats in the surrounding Twolegplace, where Greystripe lives with the Twoleg family for a while, is the leader of a small gang of enemy kittens. It is said that no one defeats Duke because he is a vicious fighter. Graystripe, weakened by his stay at the Twolegs, is defeated by the combined efforts of a strengthened Graystripe and the newly trained Millie. Ironically, Duke calls Graystripe hypocritically wild as he walks in shame, but Graystripe remembers what it means to be a warrior, doesn't listen to him, and proudly walks away with his apprentice, Millie. Husker is a patriarch of species of the family of barn cats Graystripe and Millie discovered in Warrior's Refuge. He is moss's buddy and father of Birdy, Pad, Raindrop and Little Mew. He is sheltering Millie and Graystripe after Millie's eyes were injured in the cornfield near the barn where he and his family live. He explains that he and his family used to live with a family with older twolegs, but when they died, a new twoleg family moved in and chased the cats away. He is seen playing with the Twolegs after Graystripe and Millie deserve the two-legs' gratitude for saving one of the stable cats. It is believed that Husker will then become one of the Kittypets of the Twolegs, as well as the rest of the family. Moss A slender black cat, Moss is the partner of Husker and the sister of Splash, as well as the mother of Birdy, Raindrop, Pad and Little Mew. She is introduced to Warrior's Refuge along with the other stable cats and persuades Husker, Graystripe and Millie to sink in the barn after Millie's eves were injured by the cornfield. [62] Due to the rescue of Graystripe and Millie of one of the twoleg kits, Moss and the rest of her family are accepted by the Two Legs at the end of the novel, and it is believed that they have become their new kittens. Splash A young black and white Tom, Splash is the brother of Moss and is one of the in Warrior's Refuge. [62] He retains an off-the-hand role throughout the novel and is ultimately accepted by the Twolegs, who were previously hostile to them. It is believed that he and the rest of the stable cats have become their new kittens. Tigerstar and and Trilogy Patch Patch is a black and white kitten first featured in Escape From the Forest. [64] He would have drowned in the river if it had not been for Sasha who had alerted the captain of the boat in the river at that time. Over time, the captain began to love Patch. When the river solidified, the captain loaded a truck, but Sasha didn't come in and said she had to stay and told Patch to take care of the captain. The captain said goodbye to Sasha because he understood that she was a hiker and went with Patch. Pine A battle-hardened, pale Tom with dark marks running across his back, Pine is a loner. He was first featured in Into the Woods, the first novel in the Tiger Star and Sasha trilogy. Tadpole Tadpole is a black tomkit, a son of Tigerstar and Sasha and brother of Mothwing and Hawkfrost. He drowns in a two-legged cavity at a young age. Ravenpaw's Path Violet is almost killed by Barley's (and thus her own) brothers Ice and Snake (née Jumper and Hoot), but Barley takes her to live with Fuzz, a kitten. Violet is described as a small cat, pale orange with thin darker orange stripes and white paws.
