We got James, a sales rep, and he persuaded my husband, but I have to get a new skylight because they couldn't get flashes because of our existing skylight. I knew he wasn't telling the truth, but my husband chose to go with them anyway. We were not at home when the roof came. My mother-in-law was dying and actually passed the next day. When I got home, the roofer was in the wrong size skylight and they were too big, so they literally cut the openings to fit them. The roofer told me they didn't know what to do, so they called the owner who just told them to fit in. So when they did it, dry wall was my family room and everything in it. I repeatedly called the owners and they did nothing. It cost $2,000 to repair the roof and skylights. We had them return cheap skylights and undo our old ones. So we didn't pay them until they took us to court. Apparently the judge didn't care about our side at all, so he didn't make allowances for repairs, cleanups or the damage they did to our shrubs. I came to the landlord's attention, told me that TEC was difficult to schedule. They apologized for the problem. But both times they said they were sending people out to look into the damage, that person was a no-show. To date, the problem has not been resolved. My daughter's bedroom still has a nasty leak. During the installation the workers were very unprofessional. I couldn't see the location of the toilet in the harbor. I caught one of the workers peeing behind my garden, in a tree line. My 10-year-old daughter pointed out that there was a guy peeing in the backyard. Workers also used me and my neighbors outside the outlet to power radios and various power tools without permission. At the end of each day, the job site remained messy and dangerous. Tools are left around and nailed everywhere. My children couldn't play in the garden for more than a week. My husband picked up nails on the roof from sidewalks, driveways and gardens, but my daughter still stepped on one leg. In short, I don't recommend an external company at all. We weren't sure we were damaged, but we thought it was best to get a professional opinion. When I first reached out to them about doing the inspection, someone emailed me back within a few hours and by the end of the day I had received a call from James, who was our project manager. He came out to our house a few days later (actually on holiday) and did his inspection and explained everything to us in detail. Our insurance adjuster was out a few days later and James was on the scene earlier that day and walked through the roof/damaged area with the adjuster to make sure we weren't in a hurry and saw no damage. We got approval on the spot. James put together a guote for our adjuster and cut us the first check that day. We were going to complete the roof on Thursday. We've experienced a little shortageWhen the trash can appeared unannounced & amp; placed in front of our garage door, we wish we didn't have to take the car out of the garage. Also note that edge flashing comes in multiple colors and should be discussed during your contract signing. I'm glad to be home during the installation to catch a completely different color since our siding, but after the call to Jossia he politely discussed my concerns and he stopped by my house to confirm the choice of colour and immediately ran the workers to the supplier for edge flashes matching our siding. At the completion of the project, I pointed out some damage to the garage gutter and a couple shingles. Jossia said he would be replaced. For us, our main project manager, James Lilley, was on another project out of town when our roof installation happened, so Jossia stepped in and doubled the workload of work that day (and I'm sure the other day too), I honestly didn't feel that my house had the attention of a project manager like my neighbor Pam Landis. The installation of the roof is where we found some problems. The crew who came to work on our roof were quite confused in our gardens and flower beds. Some of our plants were also damaged. The workers quit their jobs with tar on our siding, flashing damaged aluminium and the strange arrangement of vents on our ridges.
