These semantic units cannot be understood based on the meaning of individual parts, but must be taken as a whole. For example: He always underestimated me. Fights erupt among a group of 40 men. I will look to the animals. Don't put me, I try to concentrate. The report explains the need for more staff. Brian asked Judy out for dinner and movies. My wife backed me up on my decision to quit my job. We have to be 50 balloons for the party. Someone broke up last night and stole our stereo. I count you to make dinner while I'm out. Phrase sedations are very common in English but they also cause some problems. Firstly, there is very, very much a word of phrase and it can be hard to know where to start. However, two linguists called Mélodie Garnier and Norbert Schmitt have made a very useful list of the 150 most common. I am below each looking at the 15 most common phrase words. Secondly, phrase words often have more than one meaning. 'Departure' can mean both 'leaving the ground' and 'being successful'. 'Go 10' has eight meanings in the Oxford Student Dictionary. How can we choose the meanings that need to be studied? Again, the list made by Garnier and Schmitt helps. Here I see the most common meaning for every phrase frog. Thirdly, phrase sedations are often used only in specific situations. They have a narrow meaning and you will often see the same example again and again. This is an important situation to learn. Although 'go 1st' means 'happening', we can use 'happening' in more situations than we can use 'continue'. Word of Phrase 1 Explanation. Word Of Phrase 1 Exercise. Working Word Phrase 2 Explanation.
