Legion pathfinder part 2 removed

Flight lovers rejoice! You will no longer be brutally chained to the ground in the Draenor Warriors and Legion zones. Blizzard has confirmed that they are removing Pathfinder's requirements from both of these extensions in Alpha Shadowlands. Now the ability to fly on these continents will be complete with expert riding skill that you can unlock at level 30. Originally published by Kaivax (Official Post) With major changes coming to align characters from 10-50 in Shadowlands, we want to make sure there is navigational parity between all the different extensions you can choose during the search. In the next version of Shadowlands Alpha, which will appear this week, testers will see a deliberate change coming to Shadow for a few old Pathfinder achievements. Specifically, awards for flight training from Draenor Pathfinder and Broken Isles Pathfinder, Part 2 will no longer be required for flights to Draenor or Broken Isles content. Now they will be provided at level 30 with expert flights. Achievements will remain in place as before, and Draenor Pathfinder will continue to be a way to earn soaring Skyterror mountain, while the broken Pathfinder Island, Part One will continue to reward the increased speed of the mountain on the broken islands. Thank you very much! Achievements will not go away, as both of them have other rewards associated with them. The Draenor Pathfinder lets you ride the soaring Skyterror, one of the magnificent two-headed chimera mounts from warlords. Better yet, it's red - everyone knows that reds go faster! Legion Pathfinder Achievement will increase your set speed while you are on the continent, thus actually making red (and all other colors) go faster! There is no discernible battle for Azeroth. I hope there is a plan in place to make it no longer necessary for new players. Will we see that the Battle Pathfinder achievement has changed, as will the other two when the next expansion comes out? He has a heartbreak with him, so there will still be a reason for the players to come back and do it if they want Wonderwing 2.0. But with the BFA specifically excluded from Blizzard's announcement, they may want new players - only those who will be bound to level through the BFA - will have to explore the world on foot before taking to the skies. If you are interested in flying into battle as soon as possible, it is a good idea to take full advantage of the now active impressive positive impact positive before it goes away in mid-May. Buff raises your reputation bonuses by 100%, so it's a great time to finish off your rep grinds. Battle for Azeroth aside, I'm glad they're finally easing restrictions on the other two extensions. I know more than a few players who have never planned to align through any of them, that it's just just be so much fun without flying. Everyone should be able to play through the Legion! I still slow down and complete my class hall storyline with every character I take through it. These are some of my favorite stories that Blizzard has made. See you in the sky! Gameplay quests and Achievements I returned a couple of weeks ago in WoW and since I haven't finished Pathfinder of Broken Islands 1 and 2 achievements the last time I played, I still want to finish them (for a moment of alignment in legion content, and especially rep grinding for new factions). I'm close to completing reaching Pathfinder 1, but now I'm not sure if I'm not just wasting time since Reaching Pathfinder 2 is nowhere to be found in the achievement log. Like any other achievement, it is also a reward that would allow me to fly to the Broken Islands. Has this achievement been removed with the help of the BFA and excludes players from flying on broken islands who have not finished reaching? Another member of the guild (who finished the achievement and therefore can fly in legion content) told me yesterday, he doesn't have Pathfinder 2 Achievement in his Achievement Tab either. So: It's just a display error that doesn't show the achievement of Pathfinder 2 in the Achievement Tab - but once I've finished all the requirements, will I get the achievement nonetheless? I am grateful for any advice what it may be! Hey, Lunara! Broken Island Pathfinder, Part 2 is certainly still available and can be found by the Legion's zgt. study. You'll only see Part 1 until you've completed this achievement, so can explain it to you - Part 2 will appear after, with Part 1 as the requirement included! Rest assured, it is still available for earned and unlocked for those who want to :). Just a little tip - if you want to know what the requirements are for Part 2, so you could work both on Part 1 and Part 2 at the same time, you'll find them here: Wowhead Complete The Broken Island Achievements listed below. In the Legion of Exploration Achievements category. Always up to date with the latest patches. Essentially, outside of completing Part 1, you should be revered with the Legionfall armies and explore the area of the broken shore. Two other achievements, i.e. the completion of the Legionfall campaign and the victory over the invasion in each zone have been removed, so you don't need to worry about those, if you need information on how to gain a reputation with Legionfall armies, you'll find a good guide here (don't forget to check out the comments for some extra tips): Wowhead All About Legionfall's Army faction in Patch 7.2 Legion - rewards like winning a reputation Pathfinder requirements and more. Good luck isn't it discouraging for new or returning players, aligning the new character to 60, have fun with flying to 90 and then it's taken away if you rep grinds outdated content? This, however, is not a problem for me, I am always a pathfinder as early as possible. Also, I don't mind rep grinding old content, for example, for mounts. I just think that the reputation requirements of the pathfinder's achievements should be removed with the prepatch of the next extension. Thank you guys so much! I was confused because Pathfinder Azeroth Achievements 1'2 is available in the Achievement tab, although I haven't finished either. But it's great to know its still available. And also a big thank you for helping to complete it. I hope this will help me more effectively! I think you should think about changing that. There is no reason not to see Pathfinder Part 2 requirements in the game until you have completed Part 1, since you can make them parallel. In general, the less a player needs external sources to progress better. In the Legion Pathfinder Part 2 was a rep gate for new factions in the new zone - the same in the BFA, so when you start you might not be able to run them in parallel, so part 2 will only open in the Progress log when Part 1 has been completed. You're making a good point though - as a new or returning player can access the entire set of zones quickly they need to let them see progress in both that's not entirely true. The only requirement to get to the Broken Shore was to unlock the world quests, which required only a friendly reputation. So you can grind it to the revered as well as do Broken Shore at the same time. This topic was automatically closed 30 days after the last response. New answers are no longer allowed. So if you just managed to get the Draenor Pathfinder achievement last week, this news may come at an inopportune time, but it's officially announced in world of Warcraft: Shadowlands Alpha that flying to Draenor and Broken Islands won't require earning these achievements anymore. Instead, you will be able to unlock the flight there at level 30, like other zones. You know, just like people basically wanted to fly to work in these zones when the extensions were new. On the bright side, there is no word on the battle to reach Azeroth's Pathfinder to be deprecated, so it may still be required to align through Kul Tiras or undalar. Looking back, there is no reason for this statement to start with on the bright side. Even so, at least two areas in the game will be exempt from this rather arbitrary restriction when the next expansion continues, and at least you'll be able to get around the Battle of Azeroth if you like.
