Composite Chart-aspects

However, one of the ways to determine what the two people bring to their Composite is to use the method of applying the ruler on the cusp of the natal house, in this case the 9th and any Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships therein to the Composite.

This is why in all of these Composite analyses, I have used the pertinent natal house of both people to compare Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships contrast what innate abilities, expectations, and limitations, each might bring to the Composite Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships.

Having said that, some relationships are just simply easier for one Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships the other person, which you can see in the natal when applied to the Composite.

So a natal Gemini and a natal Cancer, once their degrees are added and divided, may very well end up with a Composite Gemini or Cancer Sun. When under the microscope, it might very well turn out that the person who rejected you represented a mixed blessing at best.

The requirements of how to keep the relationship going are more easily met by one person than the other, and not everyone is up to the effort required. This is not to say that difficult relationships will not last, just that being realistic is key to relationship success.

Accept that you might be the one doing most of the heavy lifting. Of course not. Not a baby! A relationship, represented initially by the Composite Sun, and then expanded upon by the rest of the chart.

Whereas it is difficult for Angular house relationships 1, 4, 7 and 10th houses to let loose the reins of power making interpersonal relationships a source of intense learning, not to mention irritation and power struggles Cadent houses 3, 6, 9 and 12 are associated with Mutability, and therefore blend their energies a little more easily, or are supposed to, anyway. Resistance to blending or synthesis is also found in the Succedent houses 2, 5, 8, Eventually, though, everyone learns that adaptability is the key to fixing broken relationships.

The 9th house Composite relationship is great for hiking and philosophical talks and travel of course as well as friendships based on common interests. This relationship might very well start while the two Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships you are in college, or seminary, or through something to do with religion or searching for a larger purpose in life astrology!

Fun is not the point here; there has to be a larger purpose for the two of you to stay together. Ideally, the thing that bonds you is a shared dream. Keywords for this relationship: Shared worldview, common interests. Higher purpose. Goals, aspirations. Always learning. Search for enlightenment. Nobility, honor. Fair fights. Freedom is something the 9th assumes or permits the native or the Composite to expect, even when total freedom is not the right answer for humans, who are not, Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships all, wild animals usually.

Most people require boundaries of some sort to bring out their higher, more philosophical nature. Limiting human excesses is an underlying rationale for formal marriage, by the way. Marriage is designed to keep your licentiousness under control. The Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships here is always going to boil down to radical acceptance of the other, which is based in humility and compromise.

These people aspire to be Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships than they were when they met, a noble goal indeed. From this website : There are other types of marriage styles that have been identified, though; take a look.

Very generally I would look at the 9th house Composite Sun as a likely location for friendships and partnerships based on mutual interests rather than deep-level romance, passion, or even sex. Do 9th house Composite Sun relationships have sex? Sure; humans are biologically-compelled, after all. Before you start to wail and get all despondent though, you must assess other aspects, particularly the synastry.

Most marriages are not fairytales, 9th house dreamers. When you remove blame, and all self-awareness, who will you be? The relationships of this house are the result of two people coming together to dream big dreams. When we analyze the 9th house, no matter what sign is on the cusp, we tend to think of it as having a Jupiterian overtone, with all that comes with it, good and bad, and all that lies in between. One or the other will eventually put their foot down when it comes to outside interference, or should if they want the precious core of this very different type of marriage to endure.

The more you let others in, the fewer dreams you will have left to share. This kind of emotional diffusion mostly happens to 9th house relationships that also align themselves with groups, movements, organizations churches come to Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships and other sources of philosophical and spiritual nurturance.

Cults too. Stuff like that. This is not a relationship that thrives on fencing itself in, but you should not be surprised when uninvited interlopers interrupt your beautiful dreams. An excellent example of the ways in which a Composite represents the Venn Diagram of any relationship that which the two have in common is the marriage of Jack and Jackie Kennedy. The overall goal here is to try to understand a few different problems that plague some marriages, like imbalanced affections, infidelity, and emotional distance and loneliness, and touch on the complicated question of why women stay with unfaithful husbands.

Their separate natal charts show all the ways in which they were very different people with certain unusual things in common. The disconnects in their marriage serve as a warning for many who marry in haste and repent and repent and repent. Her lived reality was much, much more complicated than conveyed by charming images of a happy family. The astrology of this problem is not complicated. Aries Moon in the 5th on Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships own is in love with romance, though.

These fiery dreams Moon in the 5th are up against some major power-players, who may love you, but force you to do what they Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships Pluto in the 8th. I will elaborate more on this mess as we go, but Neptune on her Midheaven is also involved, with its constant quest for the perfect outcome, so difficult to manifest.

I do not blame Jackie for projecting her idealism onto Jack. She was young, and being idealistic about Jack was pretty much a given for anyone who met him. What I and many others invariably question is why a woman stays with an unfaithful man, and I will look at Fixed star Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships as well as asteroids Zeus, Hera and Pan.

Jack was able to project the kind of charisma that would make it very difficult to avoid being seduced by him. Pan conjunct Sun therefore defines his personality, and would not change just because the person got married. So what do you do when Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships two people are very different, want very different things from life, and marry anyway? Jack Kennedy, 36 years old when he and Jackie, 24, wed, had long been primed by his father Joe to aspire to the White House.

Jack needed a wife to be taken seriously as a contender. Meeting Jackie and having her conveniently fall for him meant he had one of the pieces of the puzzle necessary to become president. Yes, this process was that cynical. The 3rd house in the natal is implicated when someone marries some sort of sibling replacement, or someone they see more as a friend than a lover.

Caution is necessary. Although you might see positive indicators in the synastry, the differences and similarities in the individual natal charts reveal much, and the lucky stardust of Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships synastry wears off.

Jackie went into her marriage with this common assumption, that she could change him. That which bound them together were very simply 9th house interests. They shared a love of books and talking about books; a love of art, a love for history and politics. When a miracle occurred and they had some quiet time alone, especially when Jack was sick, Jackie would read to him and they would discuss issues of the world.

As with the 5th house Composite Sun happiness in the 9th is pretty easily attained, but for Jackie, these moments were fleeting. First look at the Ascendant signs; determine rulers in this case, one is Venus, one is Pluto—what are the similarities and dissimilarities between these two planets in general, do you think?

How likely are they to understand each other overall? These are not trick questions, just food for thought. You can then assess the houses their Suns fall in.

Or you would do what I do, which is assess what houses the rulers of the charts fall in. She had in common with Jack then that the ruler of her chart fell in the 8th. They were both capable of keeping everything hidden if they needed to; she had a very hard time revealing her true nature to him especially since her truest feelings were fear and jealousy when it came to his incessant infidelities.

He certainly did not reveal his truest nature to her, but I take that as a given with an 8th house personality who has no incentive to give away his secrets. This requires a lot of denial. To appear weak or compromised is not possible; everything in the nature of these two proud signs tells the native to fake it till you make it, and look regal dancing backward in heels.

I would argue that no one ever truly understands the 8th house-dominant person, but it does help to have planets in the 8th like Jackie did. Much of the 8th house person is hidden from expression, operates covertly rather than overtly, and keeps secrets, especially from the prying eyes of the spouse.

These two are automatically operating in separate realms. Also, the nature of the Ascendents are so very different from each other. Venus as the ruler of the chart with Cardinal Libra on the Ascendent pushes the native to seek pleasure. Compare that energy to Pluto ruling the Ascendent. This appears very controlling, of course, but people rarely take the time to understand Plutonian motives, which are based on fear of loss. Not that anyone sits around singing a sad song for Pluto, who overcompensates like Saturn, pissing people off as he goes.

Jackie was also desperate to prove her overly critical mother wrong about her desirability, and knew snaring an ambitious Kennedy would impress the snobbish socialite.

More than anything, Pluto ruling the chart means this person will do anything for emotional survival. Not all of the secrets Jack had learned to hide were necessarily about sexual conquests. Jack was physically weakened by a childhood filled with illnesses. In short, he was not at all the man Jackie projected her dreams on to. Astrologically, far too many errors in judgement are obvious when you look, not at the places where the synastry implies happiness, but at the places where the synastry Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships you off.

Love is never enough.

En definitiva, un libro sorprendente y revelador. Robert Hand has written an important reference book that is mucho needed in the astrology community. Until the appearance of Planets in Composite no astrologer has written a definitive work about human relationships.

Perhaps Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships the customary technique, called synastry, was just too complicated and unreliable. Instead, Robert Hand used a Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships developed in Germany about thirty years ago.

After much research and professional experience, he has discovered that the technique not only works, it is easier to use. This technique combines two individual charts and creates Planets in Composite: Analyzing Human Relationships composite third chart This gives the student or astrologer a single chart to interpret, rather than two as in the synastry method.

Planets in Composite contains an explanation of the composite technique, chapters on casting and reading the horoscope, five case studies illustrating the use and validity of composite charts, plus twelve chapters of delineations. There are delineations for all the planets including Sun and Moon in each house and every major aspect conjunction, sextile, square, trine, opposition.

And there are 41 delineations of the Moon's nodes as well. Planets in Composite is not only the first major textbook to use the composite technique, it is the most complete, in-depth astrology book ever written about human relationships.
