She loved watching the ducks swim and seeing rabbits scampering along the sandy bank. The river ran all the way through the Emerald Plain, and there was so much wildlife to see. Sometimes, if she was really lucky, Ava would catch sight of a magical creature.

There were lots of amazing magical animals in the Kingdom of Arramia, such as giant eagles with golden feathers, star wolves that sang, and even sky unicorns! The river sparkled in the sunshine. Two planets, one green and one purple, hung in the cloudless sky.

Leaning out a bit farther, Ava watched the six boats following hers. The Secret Rescuers: The Sky Unicorn the river. Each one had a large white sail and a cabin painted in bright red, blue, and green. Ava and her family were part of Mr. Right now they were on their way to the town of Blyford on the shores of Misty Lake. Ava smiled to herself. She was going to perform a new dance in the turquoise dress she was wearing.

It was made of a silky material that shimmered in the light. Then he fetched a small silver trumpet and blew a single note. Then they blew a note on their own silver trumpet. This was how they sent messages down the line of boats. Soon all the sails were in, and the boats slowed down a little. A mass of glittering water lay just The Secret Rescuers: The Sky Unicorn it. Then she twirled around.

They were moves from her new dance. The boat sailed around a bend in the river, and a towering hill came into view. Standing at the top was a pale shape that made Ava catch her breath. It was a sky unicorn. As Ava watched, more unicorns trotted over the brow of the hill, their snowy manes flowing in the breeze.

Ava felt as if butterflies were dancing inside her. There must have been at least twenty of them! The tallest one at the front lifted its head, and its golden horn gleamed in the sunlight. She watched them eagerly, but the magical animals showed no sign of leaving the hill. A little foal skipped to the front of the herd, its turquoise tail swishing happily. Then it bent its head to drink from the river.

Ava was so excited she could hardly breathe. Its legs were slender, and its soft coat was so white it almost glowed. It raised its head and looked at her with big dark eyes. The foal nodded its head and shook its snowy mane, The Secret Rescuers: The Sky Unicorn as if it were saying hello back.

Just then a man dressed in armor and riding a horse appeared at the top of the hill. Ava guessed at once that he must be a knight. When he saw the unicorns, he shouted at two guards who were hurrying after him.

Then he drew his sword and rode down the slope toward the unicorns. He chased them, urging his horse to go faster. The sky unicorns quickened into a gallop. Racing along the riverbank, they dashed across the wooden bridge that spanned the river. The Secret Rescuers: The Sky Unicorn hooves The Secret Rescuers: The Sky Unicorn a sound like thunder. All magical beasts are to be captured, by royal order.

Ava watched with wide eyes. Why would anyone want to chase a unicorn? The herd had almost reached the end of the bridge now. Soon they would be on the other side of the river. Ava smiled as she watched them gallop so quickly. Then her heart dropped.

Where was the foal? Quickly she scanned the bridge and the river-bank. The foal had fallen over beside a bramble patch halfway to the bridge.

It was trying to stand up again, but its leg was caught by a prickly branch. The knight was riding toward the bridge with his sword in his The Secret Rescuers: The Sky Unicorn. Any moment now he might notice the baby unicorn. Then, as soon as she was sure the water was shallow, she climbed onto the side of the boat and jumped in.

The boats behind theirs were hidden by the The knight was riding towards the bridge with his sword in his hand. Any moment now he might notice the baby unicorn. She eyed the water. It was so shallow that she could see the bottom. She knew she was a good swimmer anyway. Climbing on to the side of the boat, she jumped in.

The Noise in the Dark Maya landed in the river with a splash. The Secret Rescuers: The Sky Unicorn water reached her waist, soaking through her turquoise dancing dress. It was freezing cold, but there was no time to think about that.

The little unicorn needed her help! The knight was still riding hard with his guards running after him. Their eyes were fixed on the herd of unicorns on the bridge. None of them had spotted the unicorn foal by the bramble patch. Get a move on, Brinch! The little unicorn shivered as she got closer. Maya crouched down, glad that she was hidden from the knight and his guards by the tangle of bushes. The foal twitched nervously. She sighed with relief when she saw the men crossing the bridge.

But where had the unicorn herd gone? The knight and his guards reached the other side of the river. They stared all around, as if trying to find the unicorns, before riding away along the road that led to town. Maya smiled as she watched him.

Her muddy dress clung to her legs. She was so glad the foal was safe again. Her mum and dad had been busy searching for the mooring rope in the cabin. The rest of the troupe had She was happy that her meeting with the unicorn foal was her special secret! Everyone disembarked and together they built a fire that they could use for cooking. Dinner was to be a stew made with freshly caught fish. The troupe relaxed around the campfire while the stew was cooking. Then there was Mr Inigo, who sang opera songs in his splendid deep voice.

Were the unicorns still sheltering among the trees on the other side? It was hard to see now it was growing dark. Her footsteps sounded loud on the wooden boards. She watched the river flowing slowly under the bridge into the huge lake beyond. When she reached the other side, Maya tiptoed through the trees into the little valley where the sky unicorns had hidden. They were still there. Some were grazing and others were resting.

Their pale coats and manes shone in the twilight. The little foal was sleeping next to a larger unicorn and Maya guessed it must be his mother.
